Jaycees retort: 'We're dealing in big money'

The Wheeling Jaycees have taken exception to remarks by Trustee John Koepfen that the service organizations in the village are dealing with pennies instead of dollars.

Koepfen made his remarks in calling for a meeting of all civic organizations in the village so they could combine efforts for larger community projects. "This way, instead of working with pennies, you would be working with dollars," he said.

The Jaycees, however, said that Koepfen was misinformed about the amount of money donated by their organization for community programs. Jaycee Pres. Marly Marecek said the Jaycees are now operating on a yearly budget of more than $30,000.

"ALL OF THIS money will be returned to the residents of Wheeling in the form of our many community projects. We feel that this is not pennies, as Mr. Koepfen would have us believe," Marecek said.

Marecek said the Jaycee membership voted last week to take exception to Koepfen's statements. He said the Jaycees have received numerous calls for residents about these remarks.

According to Marecek, the Jaycees were most disturbed because Koepfen cited a Jaycee offer to assist the park district in developing a proposed park site on the west side of town. This project would cost the Jaycees $10,000.

Marecek said other Jaycee projects included the community blood drive, annual Easter egg hunt, junior sports jamboree, Fourth of July celebrations, glass recycling drive, donations to service organizations and the annual Halloween party for children. He also noted the community event sign in front of the village hall which was donated by the Jaycees.

KOEPFEN TOLD the Jaycees that his remark about pennies and dollars had merely been a play on words. He said he was aware of the Jaycees' contributions to the community, and had no intention of slighting the organization in his remarks.

The trustee said he is hoping that the meeting of civic organizations might lead to large projects like a recreation center, a garbage dump or a hospital. He said for such projects, the resources of all the organizations will have to be combined.

Jaycee Gil Monson asked Koepfen for his help in getting other civic organizations to help with the upcoming drive for the Wheeling Community Blood Plan. Koepfen said he would work on the blood drive at the meeting of the civic organizations scheduled for 7:30 p.m. July 24.

Village won't act yet on obscenity bill

Wheeling officials have decided to keep a proposed obscenity ordinance in committee and take no action unless problems arise with the sale of "harmful materials" to persons under 17 years of age.

The ordinance, patterned after one recently enacted in Niles, was drawn up in April, and expressly defines materials harmful to minors. Such harmful materials include anything that has explicit language on nudity, sexual conduct, sexual excitement or sadomasochistic abuse.

The village board decided not to enact the ordinance because of problems that might result from enforcing it. "The more I read this thing, the more I feel we are just wasting our time trying to pass it," said Trustee Al Lang. "It just seems stupid."

LANG SAID the ordinance had originally been aimed at controlling the sale of various "adult" magazines to minors. He said the ordinance would have made shopkeepers carrying such magazines keep them under the counter so young people cannot leaf through them.

The trustee said, however, the merchants are already doing a good job of policing themselves. He said that the board might want to talk to the merchants to make sure they are taking precautions to keep such adult magazines away from minors.

"FLYING IS LIKE A DISEASE. You can't get rid of it once you've got it." So says veteran pilot George Priestar, who has been the owner of Pal-Waukee Airport for 20 years. For more about the man who has a love affair with flying, see Page 12.

Village won't act yet on obscenity bill

Bill Bleber, building director, said he would contact the shopkeepers about displaying such magazines as soon as possible.

Trustee Ron Bruhn said the village might be overstepping its authority in trying to define obscenity. "From what I can see, the Supreme Court can't even determine what is obscene," he said.

THE ORDINANCE prepared by the village attorney relied on the old Supreme Court definition of obscenity in prohibiting the sale of harmful materials to minors. It defined such harmful materials as appealing to the prurient interest of minors, offensive to prevailing community standards, and utterly without social redeeming value for minors.

If passed, the ordinance would have applied to movies, publications, pictures, photos, drawings, sculptures, books and records. According to the prepared ordinance, "such material may be a contributing cause for delinquency, sexually promiscuous behavior, and along with other factors, tend to incite criminal behavior on the part of young persons."

Generally, anti-obscenity ordinances have been struck down by the courts as unconstitutional. Bleber said he has also found the courts unwilling to take a stand on the present village ordinance which prohibits the sale or display of indecent publications.

Bleber earlier this year issued a citation to The Luv Bug, a novelty shop at 845 W. Dundee Road, for the sale and display of indecent publications. He said his department issued the citation after purchasing several drinking glasses which pictured various sexual acts.

"PEOPLE WERE complaining about the glasses down there," he said. "It seems like the stores are getting bolder and bolder. The small kids are the first ones to notice this, and I don't think it should be part of their education."

Bleber said the citation was the first one he had ever issued in an attempt to control the sale of such materials. "It's the first time we've gone on something like this," he said.

The building director said he hoped the court would uphold the village ordinance on indecent publications, thus giving him some basis for further enforcement in the village. He said, however, the case is now up to the interpretation of the judge.

"It's a matter of interpretation whether it's indecent or not," he said. "None of the courts want to make an exact determination."

Bleber said the case has been continued until Sept. 18 so parties involved can read various legal briefs presented to the court.

Fire department gets $14,000 rescue vehicle

The orange and white rescue vehicle of the Prospect Heights Volunteer Fire Department will soon be a familiar sight in the area.

The $14,000 Wayne Medicruiser, ordered by the department in February, was delivered to the fire station Tuesday. Fire Chief Donald Gould estimates the unit will go into service by mid-July after special equipment is installed by the firemen.

Buffalo Grove pageant set for Aug. 25

Almost every young girl dreams of becoming Miss America, and local girls will soon have a chance at the title. The Miss Buffalo Grove Pageant, preliminary to the Miss Illinois Pageant and the national Miss America Pageant, is scheduled for Aug. 25.

The contest is open to all girls between the ages of 18 and 25 residing in Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Aptakisic, Long Grove, Prairie View and north Arlington Heights.

Any entrant must be a high school graduate by Sept. 3, 1974. Girls must be single and never married.

The winner of the contest will compete in the Miss Illinois Pageant, and possibly in the Miss America Pageant. Judging will be based on the same values considered at the Miss America Pageant.

Poise, beauty, and talent are the three major requirements. Each contestant will be judged in evening gown, swimsuit, and the presentation of some talent.

Mrs. Jan Sirabian, chairman of the contest, said the talent requirement is flexible and no girl must necessarily be trained in a specific field. She said many contestants in previous pageants did not realize they possessed a particular talent until they considered entering the contest.

SHE SAID that in almost every national Miss America Pageant, conducted in Atlantic City, N.J., there have been state winners who presented dramatic readings, comedy monologues, or gymnastics for the talent requirement.

The winner and the first and second runner-ups in the Buffalo Grove contest will receive cash prizes.

The Buffalo Grove Jaycees are asking local organizations to encourage girls to enter the pageant.

The deadline for entering the contest is July 8. Further information can be obtained from Mrs. Sirabian at 537-7926 or from Mrs. Sharon Cuculic at 537-7579.

Eucharist vigil set at St. Mary's Church

The Eucharist prayer vigil for the northern Chicago area will begin at 8 p.m. tomorrow at St. Mary's Church, Buffalo Grove.

The vigil will begin with a mass celebrated by Rev. Donald J. Duffy. Also scheduled is a procession with the Virgin Mary statue, recitation of the rosary, consecration of the parish and confessions.

Talks will be given on the message of Fatima and the feast of the Sacred Heart of Jesus and the Immaculate Heart of Mary. The men's choir from Our Lady of Victory Church, Chicago, will sing for the services.

Union problems in Maine Township

Still some trouble spots in teacher salary talks

by KATHERINE BOYCE

School's out but teacher salary negotiations are still going on in six of 15 local school districts.

Trouble spots in negotiations this year have occurred in the two elementary and one high school district in Maine Township, and Mount Prospect Dist. 57, Prospect Heights Dist. 23, and Palatine Township Dist. 15.

High School Dist. 211, 214 and Lake County Dist. 125 have settled teachers contracts as well as elementary school districts 21, 26, 56, 59 and 25. Teachers at East Maine Elementary Dist. 63 accepted a two year salary contract last year and are not negotiating for wages this summer. Negotiations in Schaumburg Elementary Dist. 54 seem to be running smoothly.

BY THIS TIME last year, seven local school districts had settled teacher contracts — fewer than the nine who have settled this year.

The most significant difference in negotiations this year has occurred at the high school level. Dist. 211 and 214 both settled their contracts in the fall last year after negotiations dragged over the summer, but Maine Township Dist. 207 wrapped up its contract last year in early June.

This year the situation is reversed. Dist. 211 and 214 have settled but teachers at Dist. 207 have threatened to take the district to court because the board of education has refused to negotiate with the Maine Teachers Association, the district's local chapter of the Illinois Education Association, a state-wide teachers union.

Dist. 207 teachers joined the union last fall after accepting a 2.25 per cent increase in pay. This year teachers are asking for more money but the board says the district, operating under a deficit budget, can't afford it. The new teachers association at Dist. 207 is also asking the board to negotiate working conditions.

THE BOARD broke off negotiations recently charging the union doesn't have the backing of the Dist. 207 teachers. Teachers then gave their leaders an overwhelming vote of confidence and now leaders say they will file a law suit if the board still refuses to bargain.

Negotiations were peaceful at Dist. 214 and 211 this year. Teachers accepted a three-year contract in Dist. 214, which provides for a 4.5 per cent increase over this year's salary schedule. At Dist. 211 teachers accepted a 4 per cent increase in salary.

Base pay for beginning teachers next year will be $8,950 in Dist. 211 and $8,681.50 at Dist. 214. The board's final offer at Dist. 207 was a base salary of $8,900.

Of the five local elementary school districts who have settled, the base pay ranges from $8,000 in Arlington Heights Dist. 25 to $8,389 in Dist. 59.

Negotiators in Mount Prospect Elementary Dist. 57 still haven't settled on a teachers contract for next year. The board's more recent offer was a $250 "across the board" increase for all teachers, but the teachers' negotiating team hasn't accepted the offer. The Illinois Education Association is now conducting an audit of the district's finances to determine just how much the school can afford to pay its teachers. Last year Dist. 57 teachers accepted a 3.9 per cent salary increase in May.

TEACHERS IN Palatine Township Elementary Dist. 15 settled contracts last year in mid-June but negotiations this year are expected to continue all summer. According to members of the teachers association, teachers are asking that a total of $537,000 be added to this year's salary schedule in addition to raises given each year to experienced teachers. Teachers accepted a 4.5 per cent increase in pay last year but the salaries of beginning teachers were frozen at the 1971-72 rate.

Beginning salaries for teachers in Dist. 15 range from $7,730 for a teacher with a bachelor's degree to $9,353 for a teacher with a master's degree and 30 additional hours of college credit.

Negotiations in Prospect Heights Elementary Dist. 23 are in public, as they were last year, and haven't reached the salary issue yet. School board negotiators want a three-year contract covering all elements of the contract except money items, and a clause against teacher strikes and picketing. Salaries probably won't be discussed until the district tentatively approves next year's budget in July. Last year dist. 23 teachers accepted a 2.3 per cent cost of living increase and a $21,825 merit pay fund in late November.

AT DES PLAINES Elementary Dist. 62 teachers have released prepared statements complaining about the lack of progress in contract negotiations this year. In March, about 280 teachers rallied outside the district's administration center during a negotiating session to show support for their negotiating team.

Teachers are complaining the board will not negotiate working conditions, including the size of classes and student discipline guidelines. Last year Dist. 62 teachers accepted a 5.84 per cent raise in salaries in September.

Although teachers at East Maine Elementary Dist. 63 are not negotiating for salaries this summer, bargaining sessions have been sparked by two teachers rallies asking the school board to negotiate working conditions.

Because of declining enrollment the district plans to cut its staff by 33 teachers next fall. Teachers are asking the size of classes and other working conditions be part of their contract.

Groups fighting to preserve landmarks

A citizens organization and a regional planning agency have joined forces in a fight to preserve historic landmarks throughout Northeastern Illinois.

The two groups, the Landmarks Preservation Service and the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission, are beginning work on a listing of all significant historical locales and structures in the six-county Chicago metropolitan area. At the same time they are seeking immediate preservation of architectural landmarks and outstanding examples of town planning and landscape design.

The groups plan to complete their work on the project in 1975 after finishing the list of sites and developing strategies to ensure their preservation or conservation.

"Northeastern Illinois is rich in its cultural heritage of historical sites, scenic views and landmark structures. Yet this heritage is in critical danger of being lost. The ever increasing pressures of expansion and development are causing the loss of these irreplaceable sites and structures at an alarming rate," Matthew L. Rockwell, NIPC executive director, said.

RICHARD A. MILLER, LPS founder and president, said past efforts to save individual buildings or sites at the last minute "have been generally and predictably unsuccessful. Too often preservationists begin to fight only after a decision has been made to demolish an architectural landmark or historic site."

Miller points to the fact that groups striving to save historic sites have lacked plans of action and have had inadequate preparation and a lack of knowledge of real estate and finance.

The plan of the two agencies eventually calls for including landmark preservation as an element of NIPC's regional development plan and for programming landmark locations on NIPC computers used in reviewing development proposals for areas within NIPC's jurisdiction.

Among the types of structures and locales NIPC officials plan to strive for preserving are patches of original Illinois prairie and woods, sites rich in Indian artifacts and antique structures such as bridges and grist mills.

Prospect woman included in mail-fraud indictment

A Mount Prospect woman was among three officers and five salesmen of a Chicago mortgage brokerage firm indicted yesterday by a federal grand jury on charges of mail fraud and submitting false statements to a federal agency.

Charged was Sharon Paladino, 1843 W. Golf Rd., Mount Prospect, treasurer of the Allstate Mortgage Corp. of Chicago. Also indicted were Charles Karp of Glenview, president of the firm; Rae Schlegman of Chicago, secretary, and five salesmen.

The indictments were announced yesterday by U.S. Attorney James R. Thompson, who said the indictments charge the company defrauded "hundreds" of persons by persuading them to sign FHA refinancing loan contracts with blank spaces in which brokerage fees were inserted later.

THE OFFICERS AND salesman, the indictments charged, found persons buying homes on contract and convinced them into refinancing the homes with FHA-insured mortgage loans.

A spokesman for Thompson explained that when the purchasers signed the forms, the mortgage company "slipped blank documents" among the forms the purchasers signed. He said the company later filled in the blanks on the signed forms for brokerage fees of up to $1,000. The company has been working the scheme at least since 1970, he added.

The spokesman said the company would receive the commission at closing. If there was no closing, he added, the company would sue the purchaser, even though he had received no service.

THE SPOKESMAN SAID the indictments resulted from a complaint filed with Thompson's office by a single citizen who was defrauded in the scheme. He said the indictments followed a six-month investigation by the FBI.

Those indicted will be permitted to go free in their own recognizance following their arrest or surrender.

The Allstate Mortgage Corp. has no connection with any of the Allstate subsidiaries of the Sears Co., nor with the Allstate Enterprises Mortgage Corp.

Park board to sell $100,000 in bonds

The Wheeling Park Board tonight is expected to sell $100,000 in bonds, completing the $700,000 bond issue authorized by park district residents in last December's referendum.

The park district has been able to sell only $600,000 in bonds because the assessed valuation of property within the district was not high enough to cover the entire bond issue.

By state law, a park district can issue bonds for an amount equal to 2 1/2 per cent of the assessed valuation of all property in the district.

THE REVENUE from the bonds will be used for park improvements, land acquisition and new recreational facilities.

Other items on the agenda of tonight's meeting include:

- Bid opening for the installation of ceramic tile at Neptune's Pool.
- Discussion of a land survey at Heritage Park to determine the suitability of part of the property for a garage.
- Consideration of a request by directors of the local Head Start program for pool passes.
- Publication of the district's appropriation ordinance for the 1973-74 fiscal year.
- Annexation of several areas into the district including Foxboro and Harmony Village.
- Executive session to discuss a personnel matter.

Train slams into car, kills woman

A Park Ridge woman was killed Tuesday night when a Soo Line R.R. freight train slammed into her car at a crossing north of Mount Prospect.

Mrs. Margaret Rogers, 62, was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital after the 7 p.m. accident.

The engineer, Robert Acord, of Fond Du Lac, Wis., told sheriff's police he was traveling southbound about 40 miles per hour when he saw a car start to cross the tracks at a private driveway crossing at Morrison Avenue.

Acord said the car paused on the crossing for unknown reasons, and he was unable to stop the train to avoid the collision. The car was knocked from the tracks and was found about 50 feet from the point of impact, police said.

Sheriff's police said Mrs. Rogers was apparently returning home after a visit with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. David Wunsch, 150 Morrison Ave.

The street does not cross the tracks, but the driveway leading to a few homes on the west side crosses them. Morrison Avenue is in an unincorporated area five blocks south of Kensington Road just west of River Road.

First Federal Savings offers all its passbook savers everyday interest on every dollar every day it's on deposit with us.

"everyday"

Interest. That's pretty special. But there's more. That daily interest is compounded daily. Paid quarterly. So you can deposit when you like. Withdraw when you need to. Never lose interest provided you maintain $25 or more in your account at the end of the quarter. In fact, you even gain. All money deposited by the 10th earns from the 1st ... if you leave it on deposit until the end of the calendar quarter. Sounds interesting? But what does "everyday" interest mean in dollars and cents? It means that our 5% passbook interest actually earns more when compounded every day the First Federal Savings way. It makes a difference.

For the mildly retarded

Special living center to open

The Clearbrook Center of Rolling Meadows next week will open its new community living quarters for mildly retarded adults in the convent building at Our Lady of the Wayside Catholic Church in Arlington Heights.

About 10 mildly retarded adults are expected to move into the living quarters on Tuesday or Wednesday, a Clearbrook spokesman said yesterday. By September, 20 young adults will be staying in the former convent building.

The live-in quarters at Wayside are the first such facility for mildly retarded persons in the Northwest area.

Since permission to use the building was granted by the Arlington Heights Village Board in January, Clearbrook has been renovating the building at 432 S. Mitchell Ave. About $15,000 has been spent on the structure originally built to house 27 nuns.

A fire alarm system has been installed along with other fire safety modifications needed to meet state and village fire codes, the spokesman said.

Clearbrook is licensed by the Illinois Department of Public Health to operate the community living facility which must pass inspection by both state and village fire marshals.

IT HAS A three-year lease for use of the building at an annual rent of $12,000. After two years, the center has agreed to provide the village with a written evaluation of the live-in facility.

Boards will be supervised by "house parents," a married couple living in the building, as well as two assistant house parents or a part-time recreation director who will be available on weekends and in the morning and evening hours.

All of the residents are employed, either at Clearbrook's sheltered workshop in Elk Grove Village or at private jobs in the community, the spokesman said.

The purpose of the live-in center is to give moderately and mildly retarded adults experience in semi-independent living in order that some of them may eventually move into their own apartment.

Men and women at the facility are adults over 18 years of age. All boarders are ambulatory and must either be current or former residents of the Northwest suburban area or be enrolled at a state institution or school.

RESIDENTS WILL BE trained in areas of personal grooming, socialization and communication, management of food, clothing, finances and transportation, vocational training, community services and leisure time activities.

The estimated cost per tenant is $396 per month and will be paid by the state. In addition, persons employed and earning more than $50 a month are responsible for a proportionate amount for room and board.

Establishment of the live-in center was opposed by some residents in the vicinity of the Wayside convent. Other residents, however, said they supported the new use for the building.

Last year the convent building was occupied by only seven nuns and would have been completely empty by the start of the next school year, the church said.

Faith healer brings his ministry to Northwest suburbs

by MARY HOULIHAN

The voices come slowly at first, anxious and hesitant — "Halleluhah, Praise the Lord!"

Salesmen, businessmen, teen-agers, they are all a little now to this kind of ministry, this faith healer. But they watch evangelist Donald Odon with expectancy.

A very ordinary-looking man in a blue, summerweight suit, Odon came to the Town Hall at Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect to speak. To speak, and to bring the Lord's power to his people. About 40 came to listen and watch.

Despite their attendance, they are still a little unsure. Testimonials and faith healing are more at home in the South — but this is Mount Prospect, not Mississippi.

BUT BEFORE the spectacle begins, there is the mundane issue of cash. Following a singing session, with hymns about lifting up your hands to the Lord, the song leader takes the microphone in hand.

"We're going to take up a collection now and get it out of the way," he says. "So get your checkbooks out and start writing."

Several large white boxes are passed through the audience. Change and dollar bills are thrown in. Some people just pass the box without throwing anything in.

Finally, Odon begins. "I am here to acquaint you with the power of God," he tells the small audience. "My preaching is not really all that much good. All I do is tell you what happened to me, and I try to heal the sick."

AS THE AUDIENCE settles in, he begins to tell of some of his healing: A Japanese woman, his interpreter at one time, who had been blind in her right eye since birth. "She had tears come periodically out of her right eye," Odon says. "She told me how even on her wedding day, she had tears in her eye."

"While she was interpreting for me, God healed her right eye in front of everybody. What a joy it was. And then, many Japanese suddenly accepted the Lord Jesus," he tells them.

"Glory, glory!" calls out an older man sitting in front of Odon.

Odon begins to get into the main part of the program. "You can be delivered even tonight," he says. "You may have had some healing before, but you are still under construction. So this short hour will not be in vain. I will pass something on to you to promote you. You will get something else. If I couldn't give you that I would stop preaching," he says.

THEN, ALMOST as a proof to his words, he calls for a testimonial. An older, Roman Catholic nun from the order of the Daughters of Charity stands up to be a witness to her healing.

WITH A RAISED voice and the touch of his hands, evangelist Donald Odon claims to heal the sick through the power of God. Accompanying Odon at the meeting in Mount Prospect were a nun and some other persons who testified to his effectiveness. Not everyone in the audience went away satisfied, however.

"Several months ago I came to listen to you preach about the Epistles," she says. When it came time for the healing, the other Sisters and I got up to leave. But then you asked for anyone who had arthritis to come up to the front. I felt like a little girl walking up. But I felt you were being guided in what you were doing."

"I wore a steel brace," she says, "because of a degenerative arthritis in my back."

As Odon laid his hands on her to pray, she told the audience, she couldn't hear the exact words of the prayer. "All I could hear was the thumping of bones because they were being shoved into place," she said.

"My brace is packed away now. I have not worn it since that night," she told the people.

AFTER THE testimonial, the audience is very quiet. Several people appear to be praying to themselves, heads bowed almost into their laps. They are listening to Odon's every word.

"Perhaps many of you ask why didn't the Lord heal her before?" Odon asks. "Apparently, we are not enough to go around," he explains, referring to the shortage of faith healers.

"But don't try to understand everything. Just believe this," he tells them.

"Here is now the opportunity for Jesus to edify and save you," Odon says. "Together with your faith and my faith in Jesus, we will receive healing in God." "Who wants to confess Jesus by standing up?" he asks. Without a second's hesitation, 93 per cent of the audience stands.

"Praise God," Odon intones. The people enthusiastically repeat the praise.

Then the healing prayers begin. Odon asks the people to raise their right hands. If they have any pain. "Just as a test case before the Lord," he explains. Eight hands go up.

"As I pray, expect the Lord to touch you," he says.

ODON SQUEEZES his eyes shut tight and begins the prayer. "I cast these evil powers out in the name of Jesus." His voice rises and becomes more powerful as he reaches the end of the prayer. "Be thou holy. Praise the Lord."

There doesn't appear to be any change in the audience. "God is not a liar," Odon shouts. "Don't be passive. Enter into your healing."

Finally, he asks who has been healed. A teen-age girl tells him a slight pain is gone. Another tells of a sinus headache that was healed.

Then Odon points to a woman about 40 years old, sitting near the front of the stage. Her arthritic pain is still there, she tells him. He asks her to come to the front of the stage, next to him.

Again he calls on Jesus to cast out the pain. The powerful windup begins as he lays his hand on the woman's head and back. Suddenly, as his voice rises, she faints and falls back.

People stand up to see what has happened. The woman is lying face up on the floor trying to get up.

Odon looks embarrassed. He asks some women from the audience to help the woman up. Then he asks her if the pain is gone. "It's still there," she says. He asks how she felt when she fell back. "I just lost my own balance," she explains.

THE EVANGELIST becomes somewhat irritated. "You must cooperate," he tells her. "Visualize Jesus Christ with arthritis on his body. You must focus your faith in the moment. Why don't you be a bit simpler?"

"I'll try," she says softly, feeling embarrassed in front of the audience. "Don't try," he said. "Just be simple."

The ordeal has been an emotional one for the woman and Odon begins to realize it. "Would you like to sit down there and I'll pray for you," he says. "Some difficulty has to be readjusted."

She moves slowly into the chair in front of him.

As the evening progresses, Odon moves from one to another, singling people out for the healing power. Another woman faints, later saying that she knew that God had touched her. She tells Odon her pain has "loosened."

Later, a boy, partially deaf in one ear, claims that Odon has healed him.

"Isn't it wonderful? Praise God," Odon exclaims, his eyes filling with tears. The boy cries with him.

Slowly, he raises the audience up at this emotional level to have them sing and slowly end the meeting.

House panel OKs plan to fine tax collector

A bill to provide for a $500 fine levied against the Cook County tax collector for every day that annual property taxes are mailed late has been approved by a committee of the Illinois House.

Already approved by the Illinois Senate, the bill is expected to be acted upon by the full House within a few days.

The bill was attacked by Rep. Richard A. Mugallan, D-Palatine, as a Republican move to restore the duties and salaries of township collectors throughout Cook County.

Since a court ruling that township collectors could not collect their traditional 2 per cent fee for receiving taxes and forwarding them to the county collector, township collectors have existed without fees and without duties.

That ruling is under appeal, and Mugallan said that any change in the tax collection procedure before the litigation is settled would result in "chaos," since it is now unclear whether township officials may perform collection duties, with or without the 2 per cent fee.

Mugallan said the present system of mailing tax bills and receiving payment directly at the county collector's office is

"operating efficiently," and that a return to the former system of township collections would simply add the cost of township collectors' salaries and other administrative costs.

The bill was approved by a straight party-line vote of 9-7 in the House Revenue Committee, with Republicans for and Democrats against, according to Mugallan. Mugallan and Rep. Leo D. LaFleur, R-Streamwood, are members of the committee.

Bill would eliminate autos from probate

Among legislative measures awaiting Gov. Daniel Walker's signature is one sponsored by Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston, which would eliminate family automobiles from probate proceedings.

The bill would establish that ownership of an auto held in the name of a man and wife would automatically revert to the surviving party in the case of the death of either.

A second bill sponsored by Porter and sent to the governor last week would provide for immediate refunds of Illinois income taxes in cases of business losses in a category which now can take up to three years.

The bill provides immediate refunds of state taxes when the federal government has allowed a refund for "loss carryback adjustments." At present, the state does not grant refunds until the federal tax return has been audited or the three-year statute of limitations for an audit has run. Therefore, a loss carryback refund due from 1972 to 1969 might not be paid until 1976, Porter said.

Tie-vote breaker in compromise bill

A system of breaking tie votes on the yet-to-be-created state Board of Elections has been incorporated into a compromise bill introduced in the state Senate by four suburban Republicans.

The bill is sponsored by Senators John Graham, R-Barrington, co-chairman of the Illinois Election Laws Commission; David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect; John Nimrod, R-Skokie; and Terrell Clarke, R-Western Springs.

Under the compromise legislation, the board would consist of four members appointed by the governor, including two nominated by the leadership of each party in the General Assembly.

In the event of a deadlock on any vote, the clerk of the board would draw one name of the four members by lot. That member would then be prohibited from voting on the issue. An issue decided in that matter could not be reconsidered for nine months, except with unanimous consent of the four-member board.

The legislature last year failed to create the Board of Elections, mandated by the 1970 constitution because of partisan disputes, which included the size and makeup of the board.

Regner seeks change in election notices

Two bills sponsored in the Illinois Senate by Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, were passed by the House of Representatives last week and sent to Gov. Daniel Walker for his signature.

One would "bring Cook County into conformity with the rest of the state," according to Regner, in eliminating the "archaic" requirement of posting two election notices in each voting precinct.

The present law requires the posting of notices at such places as on telephone poles. Regner's bill would require instead that election notices be published in two newspapers published in the county, and would save an estimated $100,000 per election year, Regner said.

His other bill would allow junior college districts to participate in joint purchase plans with other governmental units.

Regner said joint purchase plans developed in recent years have saved local governments from 9 to 17 per cent in expenditures. He said a saving of 9 per cent by only 25 percent of junior colleges would mean savings of approximately $300,000.

Juckett's Springfield offices burgled

A 'Watergate' for state?

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — State Rep. Robert Juckett, R-Park Ridge, said yesterday tape recordings involving Illinois State University were stolen from his legislative office sometime Tuesday night.

The Chicago Sun-Times legislative office in the state Capitol building was also broken into during the night and some files apparently stolen.

Juckett, who asked for tighter security during a speech on the House floor, said janitors discovered yesterday morning that most doors to legislative offices in the state office building were unlocked.

He said the doors are normally locked overnight, but can be opened with a master key, one of which was stolen last month.

JUCKETT SAID his secretary discovered that the ISU tapes were missing when he requested them yesterday morning. The tapes were made during a hearing conducted last month by a legislative subcommittee investigating financing of the $102,000 home of ISU President David Berio, who recently resigned.

Rep. Robert Juckett

Juckett said the tapes were the only ones the committee had, but he was trying to get replacements from news stations which recorded the hearing.

"It looks like we have our own little Watergate," observed Rep. Carl Hunsicker, R-Pontiac, after Juckett made his announcement.

The Chicago Sun-Times bureau, which is located across the street from the state office building in the state Capitol, was rifled Tuesday evening, according to the bureau manager, Burnell Heinecke.

Heinecke said he found many of his file papers in a wastebasket outside his office, and was missing some papers relating to an insurance investigation.

He said his staff left the office door locked when they left early Tuesday evening, but it was unlocked when other members returned around 10:00 p.m.

Press offices in the Capitol are formed of wooden partitions and can be unlocked by anyone who is able to climb over the tops of the partitions.

Branch-banking bill buried

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — A House Committee has buried for this session a bill that would have allowed state-regulated savings and loan associations to establish branches. The measure, which had passed the Senate and was backed by Illinois Savings and Loan Commissioner John Langan, was sent to an interim study commission by the House Committee on Banks and Savings and Loans.

IN OTHER action:

• A proposed state board of elections with a "lottery" provision for breaking tie votes won approval in the Illinois Senate. On a 51-0 vote, the Senate passed and sent to the House a bill to create the board mandated by the 1970 Illinois Constitution.

Under the bill, sponsored by Sen. Don A. Moore, R-Midlothian, a four member board — two Democrats and two Republicans — would be the final authority in overseeing elections throughout the state. In the event of a tie decision on an issue, members would draw lots to determine which member would sit out as the other three settle the dispute.

• A bill to allow judges to "use discretion" in sentencing first offenders convicted of possessing up to 30 grams of marijuana cleared the Illinois Senate on a 39-2 vote.

12,000 to participate in national hamfest

A picnic 5,000 miles wide is what they're calling the observance this weekend of National Amateur Radio Week.

An estimated 12,000 amateur radio operators from Nova Scotia to Hawaii, from the Yukon to Puerto Rico will attend picnics in their home towns and communicate with each other via their equipment.

The Northwest Amateur Radio Club will participate in the nationwide emergency test by setting up four two-way radio stations in tents and trailers at the Des Plaines Forest Preserve at Euclid and River roads.

During a 27-hour period from 1 p.m. Saturday to 4 p.m. Sunday, the ham operators will set up and operate their equipment from parks and beaches, hilltops and forests without using electrical power.

The test is designed to determine the effectiveness of ham radio operators in helping in emergency situations.

Conservation: untapped cheap resource

by LIA TONKIN

GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS in Illinois and Washington are raising some doubt as to whether any sound effort to improve the environment must incur a prohibitive cost.

They're beginning to talk about one of the most neglected aspects of our energy shortage and pollution problems: conservation. We might even expect the topic to be considered at more of the business-oriented energy symposiums, where environmentalists are often criticized as impractical dreamers.

This week, Illinois Commerce Commission Chairman Marvin Lieberman announced the first of what will hopefully be a series of consumer information publications — an energy efficiency rating for air conditioners. The theory is that if we're going to buy one of those power-hungry units for our homes, we should be able to look for the models that will give us the most cooling power for the amount of electricity used.

Lieberman said concern for conserving energy is needed during the current shortage period. But consumers are also concerned about the money they'll have to pay to operate an air conditioner or other appliances, he said. The ICC ratings were listed on the basis of information given by the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers.

ECOLOGY AND economy make a good pair, emphasizes Virginia Knauer, the White House special assistant for consumer affairs. Speaking at a Chicago conference this week, she said efficiency as well as safety will become a greater concern for manufacturers and buyers of appliances.

Consumers may not give up any of the biggest energy users among the home appliances, as self-cleaning ovens. But they should be able to compare the efficiency of appliances before buying them, she said. Labels could provide a comparison of average power requirements and operating costs. And consumers could cut down on the number of smaller electric appliances.

CONSERVATION BY design is the topic of one session included in this week's "Neocoon Five" conference which ends Friday in Chicago's Auditorium Theatre. The gathering brings together experts in energy conservation, health care, architecture and education.

A CRASH PROGRAM is needed to develop relatively clean sources of fuel for the United States says Carroll Wilson, first general manager of the Atomic Energy Commission. Writing in the July issue of Foreign Affairs, he says our increasing dependence on the Middle East nations for oil supplies can be overcome. He calls for increased coal gasification research, greater use of nuclear energy and a cutback on energy consumption, especially oil.

Wilson also advocates the establishment of a National Energy Authority, "with appropriate powers to deal with the national emergency." This is in line with the White House plans to appoint a so-called "energy czar" to coordinate the research, development and regulation of our power resources.

GETTING DOWN to the cost for this clean energy movement, Interior Sec. Rogers Morton says his department needs an added $50 million for the coming fiscal year to explore new ways of burning coal.

A cooperative effort between private industry and the federal government is needed, adds George R. Hill, Director of the Office of Coal Research in the Interior Department. He envisions the possible expenditure of some $2.4 billion between now and 1980 to develop more efficient coal mining and cleaner methods of utilization of our most abundant fuel.

This should be good news to the Illinois coal industry, which is stung by air pollution control regulations prohibiting high sulphur coal to be used in some areas. Maybe it will soften the industry's hard-line opposition to many environmental programs.

TELECONFERENCE ON Pollution is slated for today by the National Association of Manufacturers (NAM). This nationwide closed-circuit television program will feature officials from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, state air and water pollution agencies and NAM. Among the participants will be Francis T. Mayo, Midwest regional administrator for the federal EPA.

"Under both the Clean Air Act and the 1972 Federal Water Pollution Control Act amendments, the period of implementation and impact has arrived. You might say the environmental crunch is at hand," NAM emphasized in its announcement to members.

WILL INDUSTRY leave Illinois to escape its antipollution laws? The Illinois State Chamber of Commerce says this will happen, and the public will have to pay the tune of lost employment opportunity and higher utility costs.

But the chamber's recently released study of the impact of pollution control regulations on the state economy is disputed by the Lake Michigan Federation. It would cost industry more money to evade than to comply with the standards, the federation says. The group cited studies which counter the state chambers reports of dislocations and shutdowns, particularly in the coal industry. While prohibited from using high sulphur coal in some areas, the Illinois coal industry is beefing up production as exports to Italy and Japan increase.

A survey by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency also disproves the chamber's complaint that there is widespread loss of jobs due to this enforcement.

CLEAN ENERGY is needed to meet our energy demands, and the Department of the Interior calls for stepped up research in coal gasification as one means to this end. Here, the world's first large-scale coal gasification plant to produce synthetic natural gas, located in Chicago, is shown.

State aid for schools may be changed

by WANDALYN RICE

With just over a week to go before the adjournment of the Illinois General Assembly, some observers are saying this may be the year for major changes in the way Illinois schools are funded.

Two state school-aid bills sponsored by suburban Republicans are awaiting passage in the Illinois Senate. Both bills would provide major changes in the way local school districts receive funds from the state.

At the same time, a bill supported by Democratic State School Supt. Michael Bakalis that would have perpetuated the present state aid system has been defeated by the Senate Education Committee. Backers say they may attempt to revive the measure by discharging it from the committee or by amending one of the bills now before the Senate.

THE TWO suburban bills are House Bill 372, commonly called the Dual-Unit Equality or DUE bill, and House Bill 1484, a "resource equalizer" plan sponsored by Rep. Gene Hoffman, R-Elmhurst.

The DUE bill, supported by suburban school officials in dual school districts (those in which elementary and high schools are administered separately) may be passed and sent to the governor as early as this week, according to William Hinkel, lobbyist for an organization of suburban school officials.

The bill eliminates the inequity between dual and unit school districts that has existed in state aid formulas since the early 1950s, but leaves other elements of the state aid formula unchanged.

UNDER THE present state aid formula, unit school districts, which administer kindergarten through twelfth grade, receive more state aid than dual districts in which elementary and high schools are separate.

The bill was opposed by Bakalis, even though the Bakalis-backed state aid bill also would have reduced the disparity between dual and unit district support. State officials say it would cost $57 million, 42 per cent of the $134 million set aside by Gov. Dan Walker for increasing aid to schools.

The resource equalizer bill sponsored by Hoffman would completely change the method by which the state distributes state aid. The bill would provide that each school district in the state would be guaranteed the amount of money its property tax rate would raise if it had a certain high level of assessed valuation.

The bill, according to Hoffman, would eliminate the disparities that now exist between school districts that have high property valuations because of industry and those that have low valuations.

ALMOST EVERY district in the state, except for a few districts with the highest assessed value, would profit from the bill, Hoffman said, although the increases in aid would be phased in over a four-year period.

The bill would increase state aid over this year's levels by about $139 million, he said. The amount is nearly the same as the cost of the defeated Bakalis-backed measure.

Hoffman's bill needs 30 votes to pass the Senate. According to lobbyist Hinkel,

"As difficult as that bill is to understand, I'm getting good vibes that he has the 30 votes."

Officials of Bakalis' office will continue to oppose Hoffman's bill, according to Mike Braver, a spokesman for Bakalis. The major objection, he said, is the fact the bill relies on equalizing school district revenues derived from property tax rather than moving away from the property tax as a source of revenue.

WHATEVER STATE aid plan passes the legislature, it will have to be signed by Gov. Daniel Walker. A spokesman for Walker said the governor will look at each specific piece of legislation as it comes to him.

Walker has said he favors elimination of the disparity between dual and unit districts, at least on a long-term basis. In addition in his budget message he said he hopes the state aid formula can be simplified by elimination of some special bonuses that have been added over the years.

State Sen. Bradley Glass, R-Northfield, agreed that chances for the resource equalizer look good at the present time. A member of the Senate Education Committee, Glass said the Bakalis-backed bill was defeated because "it is built on the present system. It isn't that it's a bad formula, but it is the old formula."

Glass said he expects the final form of this year's state aid bill will be determined in the final hours before adjournment and said the chances for major changes in the formula resulting from the deals "are better than they have been in many years."

Harper deserves new fieldhouse

The Illinois legislature should move quickly to help Harper College reconstruct its fire-ravaged athletic program, almost demolished two weeks ago when the college's physical education facility burned.

College president Robert Lahti and other officials have talked with local legislators about emergency legislation to start the rebuilding process. State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, has introduced an emergency appropriations bill which Tuesday passed the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Under the circumstances, the legislature should move quickly to help the Palatine community college to build a new fieldhouse. (Technically, it's not really a "fieldhouse," for college officials aren't seeking funds for a swimming pool or a gym for such sports as basketball.)

years — in a proposal which is nothing more than a speed-up of existing plans.

If the state legislature approves the emergency appropriation bill, blueprints for the fieldhouse will be pulled out of the files and construction will begin as soon as possible. Otherwise, the college would have to wait its turn in the Springfield funding line-up for new community college construction projects.

Lahti and others have pointed out that hundreds of students daily have used the horse barn. Its reconstruction is vital not because physical education is outstanding in itself, but because it's part of the college's well-balanced overall program.

Harper's proved itself as a community college, and the state should honor that performance by acting quickly to speed construction of a River voyage supported

I write to call attention to an incredible oversight by the Illinois General Assembly that may well prove a lasting embarrassment to Illinois' 11 million citizens.

This year marks the 300th anniversary of the exploration of the upper Mississippi and its tributaries by Louis Joliet and Father Jacques Marquette, S.J. As a result of their historic voyage, the whole midwestern region of the continent was opened up to development and the foundations laid for the region's, the state's and Chicago's present prosperity.

To commemorate the event, the Congress of the United States has passed a special resolution and a special stamp was issued earlier by the Post Office. The nine states whose history is involved are cooperating in sponsoring a detailed re-enactment of the voyage.

Illinois is the key state of the region. A total of 40 per cent of the historic voyage was spent on the waters that border or flow through the state — the Mississippi, Illinois, Des Plaines and Chicago rivers and Lake Michigan. More than 40 Illinois towns and villages are dove-tailing celebrations with the arrival of the modern day voyagers. The idea for the re-enactment voyage came from Chicagoan Ralph Freese and all eight of the men participating are from Illinois.

In short, Chicago and Illinois stand to benefit the most from the commemoration and its ramifications not only in terms of prestige and image-building but in the many tourist dollars that will come into the state's economy.

Yet, incredibly, Illinois is the only state that has not come up with its share of the re-enactment expenses. The men participating and their friends have not only had to endure the economic loss due to taking leaves of absence from their jobs, but they've also had to dig down into their own pockets and ask friends to help foot the bill for something that the whole state will benefit from. And the greatest indignity of all — they've been forced to "pass the hat" as they visit the various communities along the Mississippi and its tributaries.

I suggest that this is an intolerable situation that shames every Illinois citizen. What kind of political leadership do we have in this — the richest city and richest state in the region — that we would force these public-spirited citizens into such a demeaning position?

The Illinois appropriation bill has become bogged down in the General Assembly because so far no one with enough political clout has taken an interest in the cause. It's obvious to any informed observer that Mayor Richard Daley, Gov. Dan Walker or any one of half-a-dozen other key persons could spring this bill loose with a phone call. The problem is — how do you get to these men past the facade of filters that keep them from contact with the concerns of everyday citizens?

With the General Assembly coming into its final weeks, there is a danger that no appropriation bill will be passed at all. If that happens, then the state's leaders ought to hang their heads in shame for they will have put the state's citizens' in the position of being ingrates to the men who made their present prosperity possible.

There is still time to break loose the bill — Senate Bill 142 — if enough people let their representatives and senators know they want it passed. The state's honor should not become another victim of the small minds and myopic vision of petty politicians.

'Hold marriage sacred'

Marriage vows should be held sacred. It seems the swingers hold a different view on marriage, that of switching partners, for a few hours or a night. In the article on "swingers" in Monday's Herald, it mentioned many have found their marriage happier since becoming a "swinger." Somewhere along the way to love and honor must have been said with tongue in cheek. Can any man express his love, or a wife hers having been embraced, stating it lightly, by many others? I believe the "swingers" can be compared to the rabbit though I may wrong the lowly animal. Many animals take a mate for life, and we call them animals. Some "swingers" may have children too small to understand, guess again, children do have the habit of growing up. Not even the darkest secret can be hidden forever. How ashamed these children will be of their parents, most children are good. Will the parents say, "Don't do as I do, do as I say?" Pagans were immoral, but, through the course of years, changes in education, environment, have enlightened man. God gave us the Ten Commandments to guide us, the eighth one being, "Thou shalt not commit adultery." I may be labeled old-fashioned, right? but I thank God, He has given me the knowledge of right from wrong. I am as many of my friends, a content wife and mother, loving the one man I chose as a partner for life, feeling truly blessed in the knowledge of his love.

Swingers, the fad will fade in time, and not due to old age, and you will feel used and filthy in body and mind.

We would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank the board and the administration of Dist. 26 for their cooperation in helping open the doors to better communication within the district.

As parents of students at Parkview School we are particularly gratified to have been allowed the opportunity to work with you in trying to solve some of the pressing needs for space in our building.

The fact that we were afforded the opportunity to make a presentation and ask questions has reaffirmed in our minds that you are truly interested and want to know the feelings of the people in your district.

We look forward to working with all of you in the coming years.

When the fire roared through the old Tri-Color stables on Saturday, June 9, the college lost a "temporary" building which had served Harper since 1967.

College officials developed a recovery plan almost before the fire's embers cooled. First, with the agreement of the college's board of trustees, they decided to construct immediately an interim building for storage, locker space and a single classroom. Hopefully, the building will be ready for fall classes, but it can hold only a portion of the students scheduled for physical education classes.

Second, the Harper board agreed to seek construction of a $2.2 million permanent facility within two new building.

The fire was unusual, in one regard: Firemen fighting it found that the nearest fire hydrant was 2,000 feet away. Even when hose lines were extended to the fire, water pressure was insufficient to contain the blaze.

However, the building was regularly inspected by state fire officials and fire alarm equipment and emergency exit procedures were effective. An expensive water system would probably not have saved the building, and it seems far-fetched to consider blame for the college's board of trustee for failure to have installed a water system to protect an aging wooden and concrete barn.

Scandal shadows Brezhnev visit

by BOB LAHEY
Political Editor

Two of the least remarked, but very possibly two of the most ominous, signs to arise from the sewer of Watergate wafted through the land last weekend.

The first was the decision of the Senate Watergate investigating committee to suspend its hearings for the duration of the conferences between President Richard Nixon and Soviet Party Leader Leonid Brezhnev.

The second was the meek acquiescence of the Nixon administration to the Russian fiat that not one American news photographer, and only a token handful of professional reporters — whose job it is to record for the American people the activities of their elected President — should be allowed to witness the historic landing of Brezhnev in the nation's Capitol.

The first was not a simple courtesy extended by the Senate to a beloved President; nor was the second an act of petulance by a President who saw a chance to snub a press corps which has not demonstrated excessive fondness for him.

Rather, both were telling evidence of the present low state to which the stewardship of Richard Milhous Nixon has brought the presidency of the United States.

Few men are in better position than U.S. Senators to comprehend the forbidding importance of the matters which Nixon and Brezhnev are discussing.

It is this grim comprehension which has led to a firm policy, for three decades and more, of bipartisan congress-sional support of the President in foreign affairs.

Leonid Brezhnev

"Party lines end at the water's edge," as Sen. Everett Dirksen used to say. For Brezhnev's visit the Congress pulled back the party lines to the west bank of the Potomac. A gesture of solidarity — but symbolically it put Nixon, not Brezhnev, in foreign territory.

The Congress realizes that Brezhnev comes not to bear gifts, but to bargain. He comes armed with massive intelligence estimates on the man with whom he will do business.

He sees across the bargaining table a man in desperate need of something which he can deliver to the American public to restore his image. He says to himself, "Horoscho. Let's see how much he is willing to pay."

Suspension of the Senate hearings before the testimony of John Dean is tacit recognition that if Dean were heard from while the discussions were going on, Brezhnev's price might well go up.

For openers, the Russian dictated the rules for press coverage. "When you came to my country," he said in effect, "your reporters played according to my rules. Now that I am coming to your country, your reporters will play according to my rules."

It was a piece of gamesmanship equivalent to two tycoons jockeying over whose club they will go to for lunch. Then went to Brezhnev's.

The damage, indeed, to the freedom of the American press was negligible.

But one can imagine a Franklin Roosevelt or a Dwight Eisenhower rising up in moral outrage over a foreign leader trying to dictate terms to the American press on their native soil.

The President has — for how long? — lost the weapon of moral indignation.

First century the hardest for Kinder Hardware

by LEA TONKIN

Just plain old nuts and bolts — that's the stuff Jim Kinder's business is made of.

It's really a man's world, he says of the hardware and industrial supply business that's been in the Kinder family for 100 years in downtown Des Plaines. It's also hard work and long hours, ingenuity, a little craziness and a good deal of satisfaction.

When he talks about the business, Kinder is a plain talker as plain as the rows of hardware lining the walls of his store. If anybody is noisy enough to ask how the family store at Pearson and Ellinwood streets has continued its trade right through a centennial anniversary he remarks, "Well, I couldn't tell you anything about the first 70 years."

Kinder began working part time in the store in 1939, served in the military during World War II and later returned to the firm. His father, the late George W. Kinder, trained Jim in the hardware business. "My dad was pretty smart — he made me learn bookkeeping," says Kinder. His cousin David and his uncle Wallace Kinder are officers of the company. Kinder hardware was founded by his grandfather, Benjamin Franklin Kinder.

NOW JIM KINDER is president, and he looks forward to steady growth in the family-owned business. "The company has gone through shortages, and the switches from a buyer's market to a seller's market and back," he says. The depression, two world wars and the Korean war, the rapid development and industrialization of the Northwest suburbs have all marked adjustment periods for the Kinder business.

"We used to be a general hardware," Kinder recalls. "Then with the coming of O'Hare Airport, we went into industrial supply in the late 1950s. About 90 per cent of our business is now industrial supply."

The industrial supply firm sells directly to area plants and commercial enterprises. Kinder used to make sales calls himself, but now has too many duties at the store to make these rounds. There are shortages of many hardware items, and hardly a mail delivery has come in the last three months without a price increase announcement from suppliers.

"Our advantage is being in business so long. We can buy from old friends," Kinder adds. Some 80,000 items ranging from paints and chain and fasteners of all kinds are stocked at the store. "We just use a shoehorn, I guess, trying to fit everything in here," he says.

Just about every available space in the store is crammed with hardware. Cubbyholes line the walls. They are topped by shelves piled high with cans of paint.

"Everything squeaks in here," Kinder says with a smile as he swings open a creaky door to reveal dozens of small boxes stuffed with washers and bolts.

HE STOPS TO look down one cluttered aisle and then moves to the back of the store, where boxes and bins of supplies are stacked. Hoses and chains and gaskets are hung on hooks. Garden tools, pumps, wrenches, drill bits of all sizes, and adhesives and lubricants compete for space in the well-stocked store.

There are no inventory numbers on man of the storage bins in Kinder's store. How could anyone find the right hardware to fit the job when a customer calls? "It's all up here," says Kinder, and he taps his head.

It takes mechanical aptitude and years of experience to sit down and talk with a customer, find out what the problem is, and call out the right tools to do a maintenance or repair job right. "It's something you have to have a feel for," Kinder says. "You have to be a little bit of everything, and you have to be able to work out problems." It doesn't hurt to be a little crazy, to have a good feel for numbers and more than a little ingenuity, he adds.

"Sure, there are problems, and sometimes they get to aching," the storekeeper says. It's not the kind of thing you just forget when you go home at night after putting in long hours in the store.

Selling hardware supplies to the people who keep industrial and commercial plants running smoothly can be a fiercely competitive business, if you want it that way. Kinder says he prefers competition on the basis of good service. "No hard sell — that turns me off in a hurry," he says. "I just talk to customers and find out what they need."

Despite his liking for the family business, Kinder has been tempted a few times to go into another line of work. "I'm glad I stayed in this one," he says with satisfaction.

Will there be another Kinder generation coming into the hardware enterprise at the corner of Ellinwood and Pearson Streets? Kinder's son and nephew may eventually enter the business, "but it's up to them to decide. I wouldn't have it any other way."

Business Today

by DEAN C. MILLER

NEW YORK — These are traumatic days for the proud American abroad. American tourists are paying about 19 per cent more in Europe and Asia this summer because of the dollar devaluations since the Smithsonian Agreement in December, 1971.

The U.S. trade balance, once a big plus that testified to U.S. economic strength and industrial savvy, was $2.2 billion on the down side in the first quarter.

And now comes a study by Towers, Perrin, Forster Crosby, International management consultants in New York, which shows that American salaries are no longer automatically tops. Many German and some French managers are paid more, TPFC says.

Research by the New York firm around June 1 shows that the German marketing manager makes about $32,000 annually. His American counterpart earns about $29,500. French marketing managers earn roughly $30,500.

THE ECONOMIC wheel turns slowly but inexorably, however, and there are signs that Europe and Asia may be in for the same productivity problems that led to American backsliding.

Wage inflation in European Common Market nations, for instance, is four times worse than in the U.S.

Common Market wages went up an average of 6 per cent in 1972 compared with about 1.5 per cent in the U.S. That inevitably must show up in the trade balance figures. If American goods are produced more efficiently, therefore more cheaply, they'll be bought and the foreign goods squeezed out of the domestic market.

WHILE IT may be small comfort to the American housewife, the cost of living surge in the U.S. was the lowest among 21 major industrial countries in the 12-month period ending in April.

An organization for economic co-operation and development survey of 24 countries in Western Europe, Asia and North America showed that the U.S. inflation figure of 5.1 per cent was the lowest. Turkey led with 12.2 per cent; Ireland, 10; Spain, 9.7; Italy 9.6; Japan 9.4; United Kingdom, 9.2. Other majors included Germany 7.5 per cent, France and Belgium 6.8 and Canada, 6.6 per cent.

Another reason to believe that America's industrial star may be ascending again is the unit labor cost index. (United Press International)

Up, up and away

Fighting owner of Pal-Waukee Airport has a love affair with flying

by KAREN BLECHIA

On the second floor of a two-story white frame building, he surveys his world.

He sees it through a picture window with curtains that are never drawn, with glass that is rarely dirty. He can't avoid the view. Sure, with one swivel of his chair he's back to his desk, facing another day of paper work, another day of survival. But the view is still there — the airplanes, the runways, the hangars. The successes, the failures, the limitations, the frustrations. It's still there, behind him, and George Priester, owner of Pal-Waukee Airport near Wheeling, never forgets it.

He turns from the window as someone enters the office. His greeting is casual like his clothes, a beige Banlon sport shirt, green slacks, brown penny loafers. Today he is not wearing his cowboy boots.

"HOW ARE YOU today, Mr. Priester?" The query is louder than usual because Priester is hard of hearing.

"All right for an old man," he replies, smiling. And he gets up from his desk, a desk decorated with airplane models and a be-goggled statuette of Snoopy, one of Priester's favorite aviators.

George Priester is not just a nice old man who happens to own an airport. He is a man with a disease — the disease of speeding down a runway, of piloting a Lear jet at 30,000 feet, of sailing over the cloud-filled skies. In a word, flying. He is addicted to flying. He couldn't give it up. Unless one day he is forced to change his mind.

"I'm 100 years old," jokes Priester, who is really 65. "I'm the official warrior of this organization. But I'm getting too old to even worry about it."

Priester is owner of a 475-acre airport, the third largest in the state (O'Hare and Champaign are larger), one of the busiest private airports in the country. He is a man who is losing money on his venture because, he claims, the government doesn't care about saving private airports. It's been that way for 20 years (he and 1,800 guests celebrated his 20th anniversary of owning the airport last week) and he doesn't know how much longer he can continue with high taxes and no financial aid.

BUT HE'S fighting. He's been bailed out financially several times, once with the help of former White Sox owner Arthur Allyn, who used to keep his plane in a hangar at the airport. Priester knows that once the airport closes, it will probably never reopen. A factory, apartments or maybe condominiums will take its place.

The man will spout off in a minute, pounding his fist on the desk, about aviation — about how private airports have been neglected compared to railroads and steamship lines, about how government has done nothing to relieve private airports of heavy real estate tax burdens and high operating costs.

"Just look at those runways," he said, pointing to Runway Six. "Just to maintain them costs $60,000 to $75,000 a year. Just to maintain them." He shakes his head; he frowns.

He left the picture window and was on his way down the stairs, through the foyer of the first-floor restaurant and out the door. An employee had brought up a station wagon for a tour of the airport. The wagon is known around Pal-Waukee as the "G-wagon" ("G for George or grouch — take your pick," Priester says).

"I'd much rather drive a plane than a car," he complained, getting behind the wheel.

It was time to put the subject of aviation to rest for awhile. It was time to talk about Priester, to talk about his life, to talk about his airport. But it wasn't that easy.

PRIESTER HAS an "oh well, no big deal" attitude about himself. He's reluctant to talk about the man who rode the railroad 31 years and agreed to buy an airport without even having the downpayment. He seems to think nobody would be interested in a man who flew John Cameron Swayze around the country when the newsman was covering the Eisenhower-Stevenson presidential campaign. He doesn't take any credit for the mechanical wizardry his employees say he has.

"I always liked mechanical things. I'm not much interested in algebra or chemistry or that kind of junk" is the way Priester explains his mechanical know-how.

He arrived at the Pal-Waukee control tower, but hesitated before going up. Although he built the tower, the Federal Aviation Administration controls it. "I don't do anything up there," Priester said as he looked up. "I got my problems with just flying the darn things." He mounted the metal spiral staircase.

"Come right up, Mr. Priester."

There wasn't any problem. Like his employees, the FAA officials seem to like and respect Priester. The man doesn't need to raise his voice to command respect, nor would he. His employees admire their boss and tend to look out for him although he's a man who doesn't need any looking out for. But they do it anyway. Like his secretary who warns you before you meet him to speak louder and stand to the right so Priester can hear you better.

Priester seems to respect his employees as much as they respect him. "You should talk to them. They are the ones who run this airport," he said, descending the lower stairs, coming into the hot sun.

THE G-WAGON was gone. Someone had mistakenly driven it to the other side of the airport while Priester was up in the tower. He didn't complain.

"I shouldn't have left the keys in it, I guess" was all he said. He phoned to have someone bring the car back and waited. He moved inside a nearly empty hangar to get out of the sun. He talked a little, rubbing his chin.

He talked about his days on the railroad, how he still loved it even though in 1935 on the Chicago-Clinton, Iowa, run an engine compressor nearly mangled his leg. He talked about how he grew up with the railroad; his father was an engineer with the Chicago and North Western Ry. for 51 years. The father's love of the railroad passed down to his son and during high school summer vacations Priester started working for the C&NW.

He rode the streamliners and spent a few rough years shoveling coal. He liked the mail runs best. "On those trains you didn't have to worry about spilling the soup in the diner," he laughed, still rubbing his chin. "If a few mail bags fell over, nobody cared."

Priester was forced to leave the railroad in 1953, two years after he bought the airport. C&NW officials asked him to leave because they said he was spending too much time with airplanes and not enough time riding the trains. Priester admitted that if something came up at the airport, he'd always find someone to fill in for him on the railroad.

AVIATION ENTERED his life when he was still a boy. He soloed the first time on July 11, 1928 — he has a penchant for remembering dates. A fellow from Oklahoma had taught him how to fly in return for Priester's mechanical knowledge. Not too many people were piloting planes then, and Priester enjoyed it. Flying got into his blood and while riding the trains at night, he operated a flight instruction school at Pal-Waukee.

In 1953 Parks Aircraft, then owner of the airport, asked Priester to manage it. He said he would manage the airport only if he owned it. He made an offer; Parks said it was too low. But the Parks representatives were eager to unload the airport and they saw Priester as an easy target.

He fooled them. Priester is not a man easily duped and he wasn't. His first step was to get together some friends for cocktails and dinner and invite the Parks people over to talk.

"My friends were all well-dressed and dignified," Priester reminisced, still pleased with his own cleverness. "One of my friends looked real dignified, he looked like Mr. Gotrocks himself. Actually, he was a butcher."

After the Parks officials were "thoroughly impressed," Priester presented his proposal, a proposal he had drawn up on the back of a train control report.

"They told me they just 'couldn't' except me offer," Priester said, mocking the deep Southern accent of one of the representatives. "But I wouldn't budge."

The final meeting, the meeting that decided the fate of the airport and of George Priester for the next 20 years, took place a few weeks later at the Orrington Hotel in Evanston. Priester didn't budge an inch from his offer, and they finally accepted. He had bought an airport and he didn't even have the downpayment.

GUM MAGNATE Phillip K. Wrigley bailed him out. Priester sold him his Grumman widgeon and his flying boat for $25,000, the price of the down payment. "He told me it was the cleanest used airplane he had ever seen," Priester said. "After that he took me around his estate, showed me around..."

Priester continued to reminisce about those years when under his direction, the airport grew from 109 acres to 475 acres, from 63 airplanes to 400 airplanes. He talked about people who have kept their planes at the airport — Frank Sinatra, Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and former Gov. Richard Ogilvie. He stood there, rubbing his chin, his eyes staring at the airstrips. As though the field would disappear if he didn't keep a constant watch.

But the spell was broken. A boy in working clothes had brought back the G-wagon. Priester slid into the front seat and drove to the hangar housing his $1 million Lear jet. His NGP2, the GP2 standing for Priester and his grandson George, is used for charter and personal flights. The orange and brown carpeted interior smells like the inside of a new Mercedes-Benz. The jet is well-stocked, ready for a take-off within a few hours. A wastebasket is filled with blue and white bags of Jays potato chips. The six seats look as if they are ready for passengers.

Priester enjoys piloting his plane because of the challenge. "It is so super-sensitive. It's like riding on a guided missile."

THE GRANDFATHER, who has taught his three children to fly and love it, didn't get the same encouragement from his parents. His mother used to ask him if he got lonely on those long flights. He'd tell her he was "so damned busy" he didn't have time to get lonesome. His Dad wanted to know if he'd gone crazy and used to clip out newspaper stories of airplane disasters and set them on George's bed.

One Father's Day, Priester took his father up for a ride. "He loved it," his son recalled. "From then on, at every wake he went to he'd get in the corner with other retired railroad men and talk to them about airplanes."

Priester intends never to retire. He'll fly his plane as long as he's able, as long as he can pass the rigid yearly physical. He'll stay involved with flying, even if he is forced to leave his world. Some way he'll stay involved because he just won't be able to get aviation out of his system.

It was time to return. The tour of the airport had ended and Priester had finished the story of his life. The way back to the office was slow, Priester waiting for clearance from the tower at each runway. He stopped the car for a minute and pointed to a red fire engine that still bore the name of the Mount Prospect Fire Department.

"We even had to buy that," he said. "We're not entitled to a dime's worth of anything."

George Priester

Just back from a flight to Canada, the Lear jet gets a once over.

"Circling Chicagoland with complete real estate service" is a motto made true by Continental's 20 suburban Chicagoland offices. A unique experience in real estate companies, Continental was formed only 2½ years ago by the merger of four major firms in the north, northwest, west, and south suburbs - combining over 170 years of real estate experience and public service.

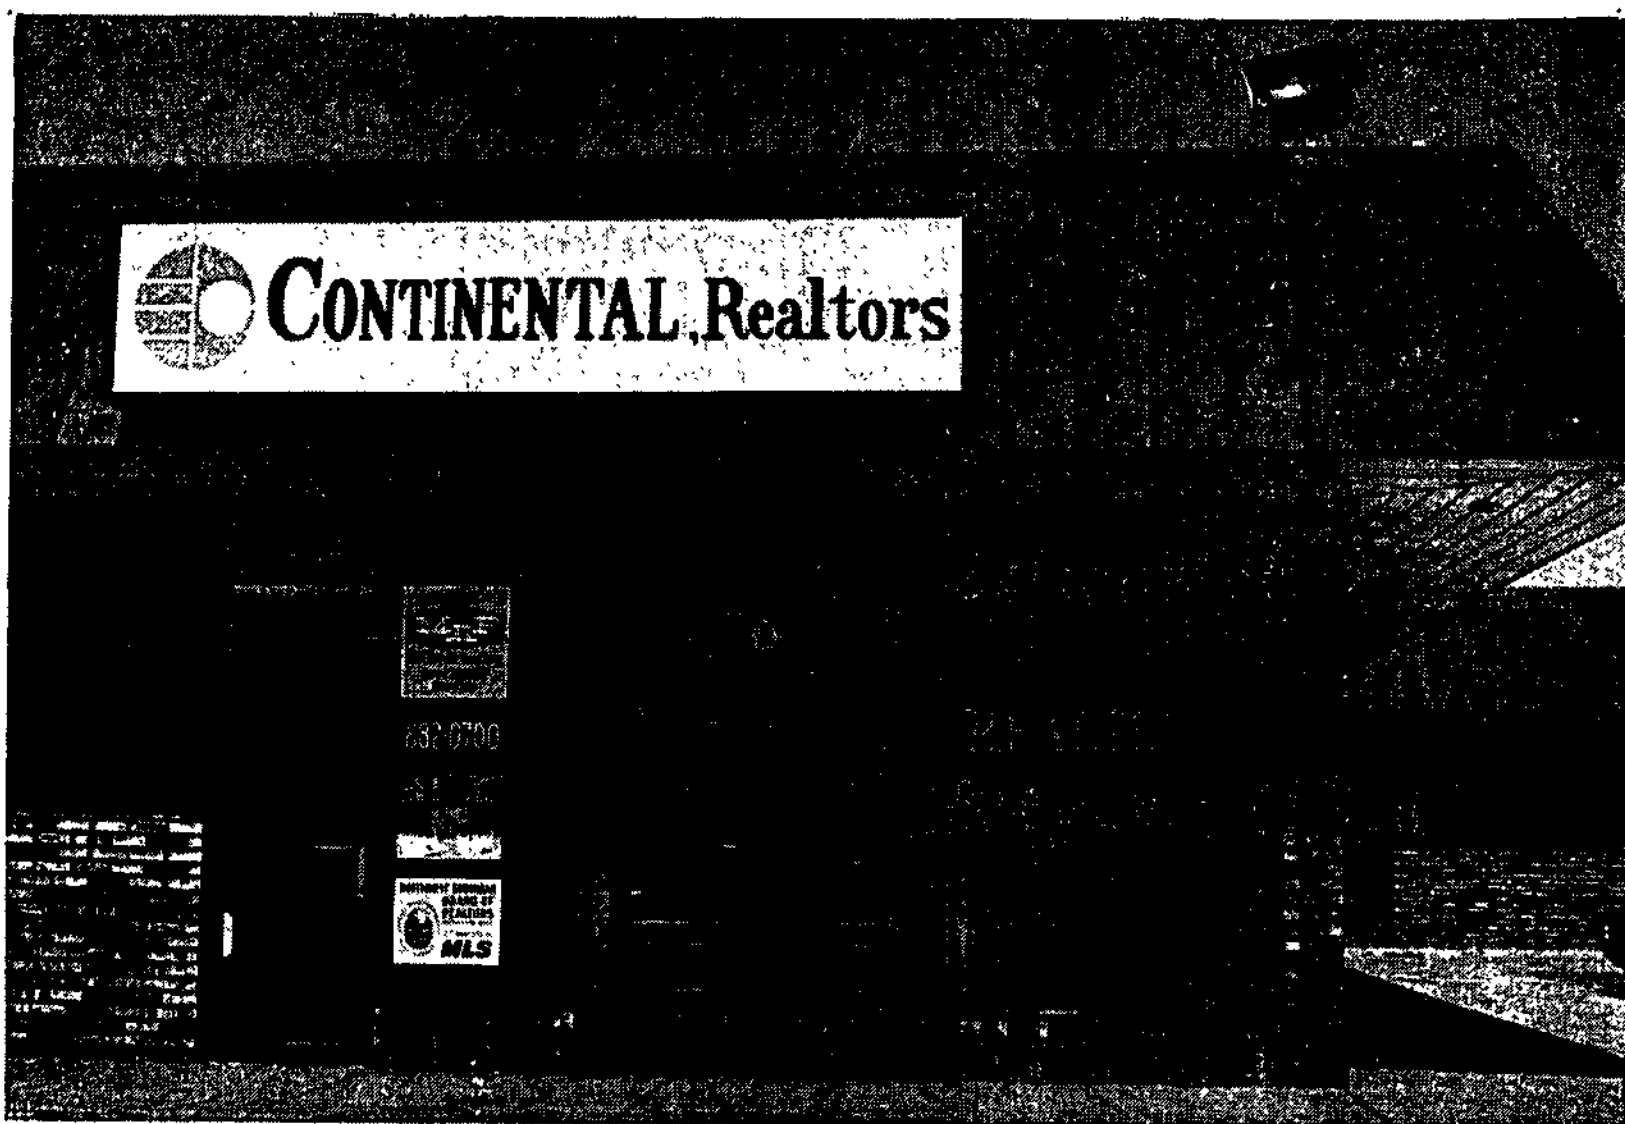

Since its initial formation, Continental has opened six new offices and now serves the real estate needs of the northern Illinois population from Indiana to Wisconsin. Continental participated in over 1,000 sales transactions in 1972 - which is quite a feat in only its second full year of operation.

Continental Real Estate, Inc. is a Realtor firm, and as such, is unique as it publicly states its support of and adherence to the Realtor Code of Ethics. The Realtor designation is a further assurance of fair and ethical service for Continental's clients. Many of Continental's sales associates are extremely active in local Real Estate Board activities and functions - all of which are geared to increased professionalism in real estate brokerage.

Continental has its corporate headquarters in Elmhurst; the Appraisal Division, Insurance Division, and Commercial/Industrial Division are located in Wheaton. These highly specialized divisions combined with the sales offices surrounding Chicagoland insure Continental's ability to provide qualified, efficient, total real estate service to clients.

Locally Continental is represented by three sales offices located in Hoffman Estates (Bob Love, sales management consultant), Mount Prospect (Tony Cirone, acting sales management consultant) and Rolling Meadows (Melba Berg, sales management consultant). Overall coordination of these northwest area offices rests with Henry Zander, regional vice-president (North Division) and with Bob Love, assistant vice-president.

Each of Continental's offices offer total real estate service to both buyers and sellers. These services include no-obligation market opinions for sellers, nationwide relocation service through International Realty Consultants (IRC), membership in Hoffman Estates office at 150 W. Higgins Rd.

Robert N. McGuire, president of Continental, Realtors, is a third generation member of the real estate community. He was installed as regional vice-president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards in January, 1972. He represents the three-state area including Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin. He is a past president of both the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards and the Evanston-North Shore Board of Realtors. He is currently a member of the Illinois Joint Real Estate Broker-Lawyer Committee. He has been awarded four bronze medallions from the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards for outstanding service.

John H. Towner, executive vice-president of Continental, Realtors, was recently designated a Certified Residential Broker, which is the highest professional designation a Realtor can attain. He is the past president of the South Suburban Board of Realtors, and has served on numerous committees of the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards. Recently he has been recommended to Governor Walker for appointment to the Illinois Real Estate License Examining Committee.

Henry G. Zander, III, regional vice-president of Continental, Realtors, is a third generation Realtor and is the past president of the Evanston-North Shore Board of Realtors. He is the current district vice-president of the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards and is also actively serving on numerous national, state, and local real estate committees.

Robert R. Love, assistant vice-president of Continental, Realtors, is a member of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers, the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards, and the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors. He is serving on several local Board committees, and was a Million Dollar Sales Club member in 1971 and 1972.

both M.A.P. Multiple Listing Service and the Northwest Suburban Board Multiple Listing Service, an excellent guarantee trade program, and professional guidance and personal service from fully trained sales associates.

In addition to the offices in the northwest area, Continental offices are also located in the following communities: Lake Villa, Evanston, Glenview, Winnetka, Deerfield, Elmhurst, Villa Park, Downers Grove, Wheaton, Steger, Homewood, Chicago Heights, Matteson, Richton Park, and Dolton.

55 booths rented for homes expo

Fifty-five booths have been sold to date for the Second Annual Home and Apartment exposition, being sponsored this fall by the Home Builders Association of Chicago and the Apartment Council of Metropolitan Chicago.

The Exposition, set for Oct. 11 and 12 at Arlington Park Exposition Center, is designed to bring the shelter industry supplier and his products together with the builder, enabling the builder to survey the newest in building products and supplies — leading ultimately to better amenities and enhanced living style and design for the consumer.

An equally important function of the Exposition is to bring together the builder and his supplier and/or sub-contractor from the allied trades and professions to emphasize their common interest in the industry. Symbolic of this liaison are the co-chairmen of Expo, one of builder, the other a supplier. Edward Zale, former president and founder of the Apartment Council, now serving as vice president of the Home Builders Association of Chicago, is president of Zale Construction Company; Arnold Greenberg, long-time associate member of the Chicago and Apartment Council, is vice president of The Sampson Company.

Booth space for the Exposition was offered initially to last year's exhibitors and the fifty-five booths sold to date come from that group. Booth space has now been offered to the balance of the associate membership as well as local non-members and out-of-state firms who have made inquiries. Space reservations are now being accepted at the Expo headquarters, with a maximum of 251 booths to be sold. For information and applications, call Judy Pedersen at 871-3331.

Sixty members of the Newark High School chapter of Future Homemakers of America visited Barrington Square in suburban Hoffman Estates.

For most of the students, it was their first look at a planned community, townhouses, condominiums, contemporary architecture, design and amenities and the type of development that is worlds apart from the traditional farmhouses in Newark, a small (population 500) agricultural community in downstate Kendall County.

The students, led by Yvonne Oleson, a home economics teacher, toured the development's model townhouses, quadruminiums and California-styled Villas. THEY ALSO PARTICIPATED in a discussion of the condominium concept with Barrington Square salesmen and Norman M. Hassinger Jr., regional sales manager for Kaufman and Broad Homes, Inc., developers of the community.

One of the highlights of the tour, according to several students, was the inspection of the opulent $750,000 Governor's Club, built for the exclusive use of Barrington Square residents.

2 top million mark for Quinlan

Two Quinlan and Tyson real estate sales representatives — Virginia Furst and Robert Griffith — have topped the magic $1 million mark in sales during May.

Mrs. Furst, who led the entire company in sales last year, set the pace with a mark of $1,107,500. She works in the Winnetka Area Office.

Griffith was close behind with a total of $1,107,500. He is a representative in the Arlington Heights - Mount Prospect Area Office.

Mrs. Furst, who received the Quinlan and Tyson Award of Excellence for her sales effort in 1972, is a long-time resident of the North Shore. She is active in the Junior League of Evanston and Kappa Kappa Gamma North Shore Alumnae Association. She and her husband have two children.

Griffith received the Q&T Award of Excellence in 1972 for having the best first full year in the real estate business. He joined the real estate firm in 1971 and was named "most likely to succeed" at one of Q&T's in-company training courses.

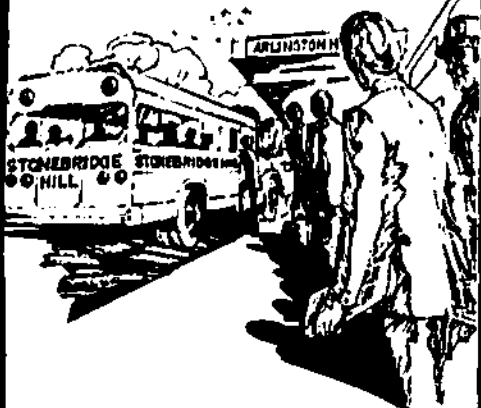

Apartment building decrease predicted

After passing the one million starts level for the first time in 1972, apartment building probably will retreat to 850,000 next year, the DuPage Realtor says.

Overall, this is a healthy adjustment in the pace of multi-family construction. While some markets can still support extensive additions to their rental inventory, many metropolitan areas are exhibiting signs of overbuilding. Knowledgeable builders and investors are recognizing the signals and are becoming more cautious.

Four new sales associates join R. W. Starck Realtors

Four new sales associates recently joining Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors were announced this week by Robert W.

Charlene Hallihan

Anne Schuerings

Tony Pavia

Starck, president. Each has completed the training program required before becoming a full-time member of the Starck sales force.

Paul E. Palm is with the Starck office in Palatine. He and his wife, Virginia Lee, live in Inverness.

Palm attended Northwestern University, where he was awarded a bachelor of science degree and a master's degree. His previous business experience is in the advertising field, with some of the years spent as account executive with J. Walter Thompson Advertising Agency and Young and Rubicam.

Palm belongs to the Artist's League of Chicago, the Masons and Inverness Association.

A MEMBER OF the Starck sales force in Hoffman Estates is Mrs. Anne Schuerings, who is well known to residents in that area for her work with the Hoffman Estates Park District for more than six years. She served as park district director for two of those years.

Mrs. Schuerings and her husband Anthony have three children and live in Hoffman Estates.

Taking an active interest in the community, Mrs. Schuerings is a member of the VFW Auxiliary, of which she was treasurer for three years, the League of Women Voters and the Illinois Park and Recreation Society. She was president of the Churchill School PTA and then a member of School Dist. 37 PTA Council Board for three years. Both Mr. and Mrs. Schuerings are charter members of a Parent Booster group for the new Hoffman Estates High School.

In Mount Prospect, Mrs. Charlene Hallihan is a recent addition to the staff. She and her husband Patrick, who is a sergeant with the Mount Prospect Police Department, have two children.

Mrs. Hallihan has always lived in the Chicago area and attended Mundelein College. She worked previously as a secretary-receptionist in an architect's office and sold insurance for Continental Casualty Co. at O'Hare Airport.

A member of PTA, Mrs. Hallihan also taught C.C.D. first-grade religion classes at St. Raymond's. Her hobbies have been bowling and golf and she especially enjoys decorating and cooking special dishes.

DATA-PROCESSING for a large national firm was the profession for Tony Pavia for many years and now he has turned his talents to sales for Starck's office in Schaumburg. He and his wife Mandy are Schaumburg residents.

Pavia was in the U.S. Marine Corps from 1957 to 1963, spending part of the time at Aviation School in Jacksonville, Fla., and later serving as part of a jet crew.

His extra interests have covered a varied field, including membership in a theatrical group at Loyola University, wine-making and nystosis on an amateur level.

No detail too small when buying a home

When your money is involved, no detail is too small to be overlooked before you purchase a home. An example of the care that should be taken on your behalf is the title search of separately located public records which normally precedes closing.

The importance of checking details in a title search recently was illustrated in a western state when a purchaser was about to buy real estate from a husband who survived his wife. In this situation, the husband was thought to share ownership with his late wife in community property so he would inherit her interest. Fortunately, a records search revealed the true state of title.

The public records disclosed that the real estate in question was the separate property of the deceased wife, and consequently was inherited by others in addition to the husband. After being furnished this information, the purchaser was able to properly close the transaction with all parties in ownership — rather than just dealing with the husband and experiencing land title difficulties with remaining heirs later on.

It is an excellent idea to become well acquainted with the details on home buying in your community before you purchase. That includes the facts on selecting a home, financing, closing — and safeguarding your ownership through a title search and owner's title insurance. Remember that real estate closing practices differ around the nation because of local law and custom.

Kitchen without exhaust fan is barely bearable

GET RID OF THAT HUMID AIR WITH AN EXHAUST FAN

A kitchen without an exhaust fan may be barely bearable most of the time, but come summer, it can be really uncomfortable.

The steam from cooking, washing dishes, the heat from the stove and the oven, even the warmth from the electric lights all push the thermometer up. This also is the most uncomfortable kind of heat, the heat you find in the kitchen. It's humid heat.

Making the kitchen more comfortable is a matter of getting rid of the warm air. The method can be elaborate or simple, depending on your skill and/or how much you can spend.

The best method is the modern kitchen exhaust system — hood, fan and vent — mounted right over the cooking area. These are generally hung on the bottom of kitchen cabinets with duct work running up through the cabinet and through the dropped wall and ceiling that fills the area between the top of the cabinet and the true ceiling. These are best installed during building or remodeling.

IN OLDER kitchens, exhaust fans are best installed directly in the ceiling (in a one-floor home) or in the wall. In a ceiling installation, cut a hole big enough to fit the unit. Don't worry about ragged edges. A trim plate will cover them.

The duct can be run straight up through the roof or out the side of the house. A cap on the end of the pipe will keep out the rain. Be sure to talk around it.

Electric wires are exposed in an unfinished attic making wiring of the unit fairly easy if you have any experience with that sort of work. If you are uncertain of electrical work, call in an electrician.

When you install an exhaust fan in an outside wall you don't have to bother with pipes. Such fans are equipped with a cap that opens when the fan is turned on.

Be sure to talk around the opening. Wiring of a wall unit is a little trickier since the wire may have to be fished up from the basement inside the wall.

IF YOU are not handy or are fearful of cutting holes in the wall (or you rent) then consider using a window fan. You can find them either doublehung or casement windows and all you have to do is plug them in at the nearest outlet.

You can make a unit by opening the top half of the window and covering the opening with a piece of hardboard cut so that there is about a half-inch all around for fastening.

First cut a hole in the hardboard the same size as the electric fan you will use with it. Make the hole big enough to allow for a shelf mounted on the hardboard with brackets. Position it so that the fan is up against the pre-cut hole. If space is tight, mount the shelf to the top of the lower frame.

If you use a window fan make certain you close the other windows in the kitchen or you will simply pull in air from one window and vent it out the other. Instead, keep the door open with a window open in another room so fresh air will enter to replace the warm air you vent to the outside.

Quadrohome models on display in Sycamore

GOOD STARTER HOME

Mundelein — newly decorated, 3 bedrooms, 2½ car garage, large, beautiful landscaped wooded lot, quiet neighborhood. READY TO MOVE IN!
Call 566-0260 $29,500

Six different furnished quadrohome models are now open for inspection by the public from noon until dark, at Woodgate of Sycamore, located midway between downtown Sycamore and downtown DeKalb on Ill. Rte. 23 and Rich Road, Sycamore.

The quadrohome involves four private homes in one structure. Each has a private entrance and garage, with nobody living above or below, plus other desirable features of the usual single-family residence — but at a lower price. A carefully planned cluster arrangement of buildings at Woodgate creates a more open environment than is possible on single-family lots and helps economize on land costs. A Homeowners' Association handles outside maintenance, to free the homeowner from these tasks. Recreational facilities for use of homeowners — including a clubhouse, swimming pool and tennis courts — are planned.

BUILDING MODELS at Woodgate range in price from $22,990 to $31,490. Homes purchased now should be ready for occupancy before schools open this fall. Upon completion, the housing project will have more than 600 residential units in a park-like setting on 81 acres.

The furnished model homes being shown are: The Somerset — penthouse models in two and three-bedroom versions with modern bath, cheerful kitchen, family/dining room and spacious living room... the two bedroom selling for $22,990 and three-bedroom for $23,990; The Arcadia — a two-story, three-bedroom unit available with one or 1½ baths, well-planned kitchen, family/dining room and large living room... the single bath available at $24,590 and 1½ bath at $24,990; The Cape Cod — a two-story, four-bedroom residence with two full baths, roomy kitchen, family/dining room and entertaining-size living room... available with an unfinished second floor at $27,990 or $31,490 finished; The Cranbrook — a three-bedroom ranch with one bath, attractive kitchen, family/dining room and large living room... selling for $24,990, and also available with two-bedrooms for $23,990; and The Farmingdale — a two-story, two-bedroom unit available with 1 or 1½ baths, thoughtfully-arranged kitchen, family/dining room and spacious living room... the single bath priced at $23,990 and 1½ bath at $24,490.

Busche & Markson Inc., Park Ridge, is architect and J. A. Boulton & Co., Chicago, is general contractor. Interior decoration of the furnished models was handled by Jean-Lee, Inc., Chicago.

EACH NEW home at Woodgate includes the following standard features: wall to wall carpeting, color coordinated kitchen, oven and range with hood and fan, formica counter tops, refrigerator and freezer, decorator kitchen cabinets, built-in dishwasher and disposal, ceramic tiled tub area, vanity with cultured marble top, individually-controlled gas heating, 40-gallon gas hot water heater, aluminum windows with insulating glass and screens, private garage, private outside entrance and walkway, gutters and downspouts, professional landscaping, total insulated and sound-conditioned construction and fire-resistant construction. In addition, each home, except the penthouse model, also has an outdoor patio and comes with an aluminum patio door with insulating glass and screens. The penthouse includes a privacy sunning balcony with patio door.

Options to meet specific family needs include air conditioning, full basements and fireplaces in selected models.

Steve Wisdom, director of sales at the Woodgate project for Centura Development Company of Park Ridge, said that public acceptance of the new quadrohome housing idea in the DeKalb area has been exceptional at Woodgate. This new kind of private home ownership in a planned community with recreation close at hand and more free time available, since a Homeowners' Association handles outside maintenance, has been highly successful in metropolitan Chicago and other areas of the United States. It is the trend of the future for the majority of family housing, due to rising land and construction costs, according to Mr. Wisdom.

Wisdom also revealed that a number of housing units at Woodgate have already been sold over the past few months from temporary showroom offices at the site.

He said, "One of the strongest appeals to purchasers is the fact they can now own a home furnished with numerous appliances and sought-after features for about the same or less than it costs to rent an apartment. They gain all the tax advantages of home ownership and build equity besides."

Hal Collins joins Starck Realtors

Harold "Hal" Collins, having six years' experience in real estate sales in the Northwest suburbs, is now associated with Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors in Mount Prospect.

Collins has taken courses with the Real Estate Institute of Illinois and expects to complete that series soon, as well as being able to fulfill requirements for a broker's license. Mr. Starck said the addition of Collins to the Mount Prospect office adds depth in real estate experience and knowledge of the area to the staff.

The Collins family lives at 205 N Stratton Lane in Mount Prospect. Mrs. Collins is a secretary for the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation for the State of Illinois. They have five children, all of whom are college graduates or are presently working toward a degree, one toward a master's degree.

After over 20 years in the service, Collins retired as an Air Force major in 1961, serving then as a command pilot and meteorologist. During his Air Force service, Collins spent six months in Greenland, three years in Germany and in the Korea-Japan area for five years. His family was able to accompany him during the years in Germany and Japan.

Collins is a member of the Lake-Cook Beekeeper Association and the Chicago chapter of the American Meteorological Association. His hobbies are sailing, gardening, photography and his favorite, beekeeping.

TIPS TO HOME BUYERS AND HOME SELLERS FROM MAP MULTIPLE LISTING REAL ESTATE SERVICE

The Importance Of Your Mortgage

Aside from the actual selection of your home, probably the most important transaction involved when purchasing a home is the determination of the mortgage loan. The selection of the "best mortgage loan" is of prime importance, especially in today's fast changing economical situation.

There are many hidden factors involved when you as a home buyer attempts to arrange financing by yourself. Factors such as acquiring the best interest rate, overall term of the mortgage, open end mortgages and, of course, your ability to know and trust the loan institution you deal with.

Your M.A.P. Multiple Listing Service Real Estate Companies are expert at coordinating your purchase through the most reputable mortgage companies available. Mrs. Rae Brown, vice president in charge of public relations for Baird & Warner, has been honored with a "Gold Key" award by Public Relations News, a leading international public relations weekly.

The award is presented to public relations practitioners who advanced to or within the ranks of top management the preceding year. Mrs. Brown, who developed Baird & Warner's RESET program (Real Estate Service for Employee Transfers), was promoted from assistant vice president to vice president in 1972. She is the first woman in the firm's 110-year-history to achieve that rank and is a bi-graphee in "Who's Who of American Women."

Mrs. Brown is one of the founders and secretary of Inter-Comm, a national real estate referral organization which she serves as a member of the applications committee.

Before joining Baird & Warner in 1964 as director of public relations and employee transfer services, out of which RESET emerged, she was associate editor of Modern Beauty Shop Magazine and was active in the newspaper and educational public relations field. She was made an assistant vice president in 1969. In presenting the award, Denny Gris-

Million sellers for Arlington Realty

Arlington Realty announced recently that two sales associates have already reached the million dollar mark in residential sales for 1973. Lorraine Larsen, associated with the South Arlington Heights office and Ed Joyce, of the North Arlington office both qualified for the Million Dollar Club prior to the end of May.

Ed Joyce

Lorraine Larsen

For Mrs. Larsen this represents the seventh year in a row she has reached the million dollar figure and the second year in a row her sales have exceeded the magic mark prior to the end of May. In 1972 she was one of a select few in the entire area whose residential sales were in excess of two million dollars and the first to accomplish the two million sales feat in the 23 year history of Arlington Realty. She has been with Arlington Realty for nine years.

For Ed Joyce it represents his third consecutive year of sales exceeding one million dollars, thereby qualifying him for honorary lifetime membership in the Arlington Realty Million Dollar Club as well as the Illinois Association of Realtors lifetime club.

Both sales associates will be honored at a special sales seminar to be held in the newly remodeled Palatine office in June.

Bill Kleiner, Arlington Realty spokesman making the announcement said,

"While most real estate salesmen have a goal of one million dollars in annual sales, both Lorraine and Ed Joyce are well on their way to record breaking two million dollar years! Our entire staff is most proud of them both."

Hinswood Patio Homes feature park setting

Looking for a way of life as well as a fine home? A home that offers privacy, roominess and that is located in an attractive parklike setting? Then you'll want to inspect the spacious Hinswood Patio Homes in Hinswood.

Hinswood Patio homeowners move into a new open-space, totally-planned community of two and three-bedroom homes designed for comfortable family living.

The outstanding aspect of this community, being developed by Realty Company of America (REALCOA) is its 19-acre private park owned by you when you become a homeowner and a member of the Hinswood Community Association. A clubhouse, Olympic-sized swimming pool, tennis courts, private sunbathing deck, baseball field, football field, bicycle and walking paths are just some of the park's attractions. Youngsters have three completely equipped playgrounds. For all ages, there are recreational facilities that contribute to the active lifestyle enjoyed by Hinswood Patio homeowners.

The Sierra model combines imaginative design, generous room dimensions, and private patio and private fenced yard features that attract the attention and approval of many homebuyers.

YOUR FAMILY will plan many activities in the huge 28x13½ foot family/dining room, located on the lower of the Sierra's three separate living levels. With its optional brick fireplace, this room also becomes a focal point when entertaining friends. On each side of the fireplace, sliding glass doors provide access to your private and completely fenced yard.

If you're the homemaker, you'll appreciate the beautiful and fully-equipped country kitchen featuring genuine wood custom-crafted cabinets, double-bowl sink, color-coordinated oven and range, waste disposal, under-counter dishwasher and extensive Miele top counters.

Another set of sliding glass doors from the kitchen takes you to your own private patio, which is ideally handy for outdoor living.

Near the kitchen is a spacious powder room, plus an enclosed laundry area for washer and dryer.

The mid-level of the Sierra is designed with an attractive entrance foyer and an entertainment-size living room. The home's upper level contains three large bedrooms and a master bath. A wrought-iron railed balcony on the upper level overlooks the living room.

Another distinctively exciting architectural design feature is the Sierra's high cathedral ceiling.

THE HOME'S attached garage is conveniently reached via a door from the foyer.

Many amenities come with the Sierra, including wall-to-wall carpeting in living room, family and dining room, hallways and all bedrooms. Baths are tiled, with cultured marble top vanities and exhaust fan. All exterior doors and windows are weather-stripped, and the entrance foyer is elegantly tiled. Abundant closet space has been designed into the home.

Excellent commuter train transportation is less than five minutes away. The new elementary school is right in Hinswood with high school and college educational institutions minutes away. In addition to convenient neighborhood shopping, extensive shopping centers, such as the Oakbrook Shopping Center and Yorktown, are located nearby. The Stevenson Expressway (I-55) is also conveniently nearby.

Hinswood Patio homes start at $34,990. Five beautifully furnished models are open 7 days a week from 10 a.m. to dusk. You can reach Hinswood Patio homes by taking the Stevenson Expressway (I-55) to the Cass Avenue exit, and going two blocks north on Cass.

Tops in sales for F-B-K Realty

In May, a sales volume of over a quarter of a million dollars was achieved by Hank Prochaska of FBK, making him salesman of the month for the Mount Prospect office. Hank had the highest volume of residential sales in his real estate career.

For his record breaking accomplishment Hank was presented a sport coat by Jack Keller, vice president of F-B-K. The presentation was made at F-B-K's regular sales meeting. Prochaska is one of the top sales producers in F-B-K's Mount Prospect office.

Paula Chambers, always a contender for top salesman in F-B-K's Arlington Heights office, was awarded salesman of the month for May. A winning combination of listings and sales skyrocketed Paula to top honors. Paula is a mother of five children.

F-B-K Inc. Realtors have two offices. One in Mount Prospect at 150 S. Main St., and the other at 123 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

Townhouse, condo project

Phase I now open

PLAZA I of Dominion Golf and Country Club, the first stage in the $175 million, 3,500 high-rise condominium and townhouse community being developed in west suburban Wood Dale, is open. Dominion Golf and Country Club is another development of NEI Corporation, a publicly owned real estate development and construction firm. The first high rise condominium homes in Plaza One are scheduled to be ready for occupancy in March, 1973.

Lawrence J. Thomas, executive vice president of NEI Corp., said the Dominion Golf and Country Club is a "dramatic new concept in condominium living." Eight plazas will be situated within the 200 acres of the club's 18-hole championship golf course. Each plaza will contain three 15-story condominium home towers, clusters of plaza homes, and a large recreation complex. Each complex will incorporate outdoor sports facilities and a recreation building housing indoor recreational facilities, as well as craft and hobby rooms. A swimming pool, ice skating rink, courts for tennis, badminton, volleyball and shuffle board will be among outdoor facilities. Indoors will be a card room, ping pong room, billiards room, ceramic studio, wood working shop, and areas for almost any hobby or craft.

At Dominion a 24-hour security system incorporating gatehouse guard service and modern electronic equipment will protect all homes in Plaza One and Future plazas.

DOMINION OFFERS all of the usual conveniences of condominium living, along with several optional services not generally available. These optional services, available at moderate additional charge, include valet parking in the plaza's underground parking garage, a shuttle bus to the nearby train station, and full mechanical and electrical maintenance for each home.

Charter membership, which bears no initiation fee or assessments, in the Dominion Golf and Country Club will be offered exclusively to Dominion homeowners. Thomas said the costs of operating and maintaining the club and golf course will be borne entirely by owners of the club and its members — they will not be part of the usual monthly condominium charges.

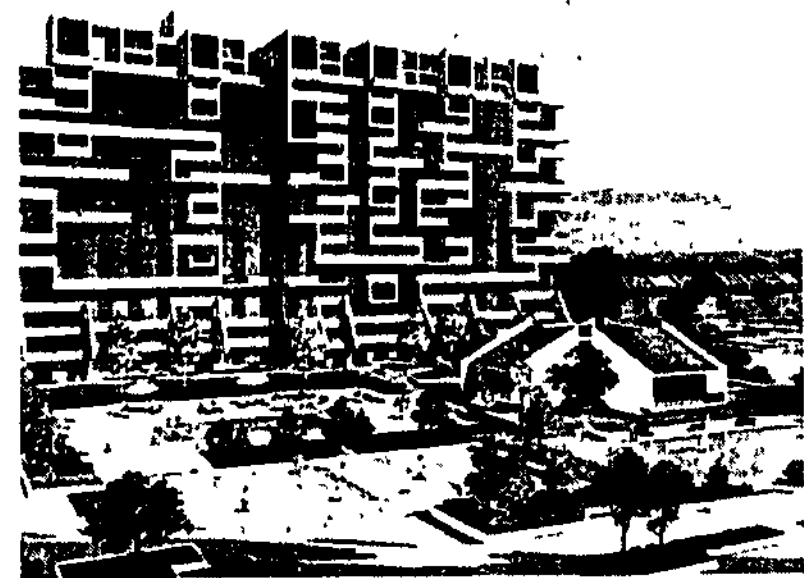

The club provides accommodations for private entertaining, an informal bar and grill, and dining and lounge areas. It features two tennis courts, a swimming pool, and a complete golf and tennis pro shop.

THE CHAMPIONSHIP 18-hole golf course surrounding the plaza communities is a mature 40-year old course designed to be enjoyed by every type of golfer, from the low-handicapper to the average weekend golfer. The course is in play now and will remain in play throughout all phases of construction. A legally recorded covenant guarantees that it will remain a golf course for at least 25 years.

NEI Corp. also is building major developments in New Orleans, Houston and Atlanta. In New Orleans, the company has developed 2,000 acres of its 5,000-acre city within a city, that includes shopping centers, apartments, residential subdivisions, office buildings and industrial parks. In Houston, NEI is developing five major projects encompassing more than 2,000 acres of prime residential and commercial land. In Atlanta, the corporation is engaged in the development and construction of two luxury planned unit developments containing conventional and condominium homes with complementary recreational and commercial facilities.

Chase Manhattan Realty Trust of New York is handling construction financing for Dominion, with Talsman Federal Savings and Loan Association providing permanent financing.

ARTIST'S RENDERING of the $175 million, 3,500-home high-rise condominium and townhouse community being developed in Wood Dale. Eight Plaza communities will be situated within the 200 acres of the club's 40-year-old, 18-hole championship golf course.

Over 80 per cent of the 200 acres at Dominion will remain open green area," said Thomas, "offering homeowners the beauty and seclusion of a lushly wooded setting." Each plaza will have underground parking, assuring homeowners a spectacular view uninterrupted by large parking areas. Bordering the Dominion site is an 8-acre forest preserve and the Elmhurst Golf and Country Club, complementing the country-like atmosphere. The Loop is only 25 minutes away by train or expressway, and Woodfield Mall is just 10 minutes away.

Quinlan and Tyson Inc., has reported a record breaking four-month sales total of $17,636,499. The figure is 30 per cent higher than the comparable period of 1972 when sales hit $13,621,221, according to Richard G. Rutledge, executive vice president. Through the end of April, the North Shore and Northwest Suburban real estate firm participated in 448 transactions — 177 more than in the first four months of 1972.

An April sales volume of $13,241,525 — almost $1 million more than April, 1972 — helped boost the total. April sales fell just short of setting a new Q&T monthly high. The record high, $13,370,409, was set in March of this year.

LET'S SET THE record straight on the commitment of the banking industry to the success of America's housing effort, says American Bankers Association president, Eugene H. Adams. "We owe it to ourselves to make sure that our support of housing is recognized by those who govern us, those who regulate us, and most important, those who come to us for these services. I won't deny that thrift associations are making four home mortgage loans for every one made by a commercial bank," he said. "What I will deny is that housing can be boiled down to a simple matter of mortgage loans."

Adams said that banks rank first in the number of construction loans outstanding. In 1972 banks held construction loans totaling $18.8 billion — almost half of all construction loans.

"At the end of last year, banks had an estimated $60 billion invested in municipal bonds — bonds for roads, sewers, sewage treatment plants, schools, fire departments, police buildings, city hospitals — all the necessary physical facilities needed to make a community function."

Banks had lent $112 billion for land, construction and long term mortgages in 1972. This compares with $206 billion for S&L's, $75 billion for life insurance companies, $469 billion for mutual savings banks and $12 billion for real estate investment trusts.

Adams said the banking industry lacks statistics on total housing investments. To overcome this problem, the ABA is working with the Department of Housing and Urban Development in compiling the figures.

TWO SALESMANSHOPS will be conducted in Palatine this summer, announced Leadership Techniques Institute in Chicago. Low-rise condos gaining popularity, says exec

The old neighborhood is making a comeback, believes architect Salvatore Balsamo. There have been some changes though.

Physically, it's returning in the guise of a low-rise condominium community. The ethnic ties of yesterday, have been traded in for homogenous lifestyle relationships.

Balsamo, president of his own architectural and land planning firm in Chicago, points to the chronological progression causing this trend. In the early 1960s, the country experienced substantial growth. People were drawn to the city as a job center and nestled in ethnic communities.

As cities expanded and transportation became more sophisticated, there was an exodus towards suburban living, where developments became socio-economically clustered rather than ethnically oriented.

THE LATE '50s and '60s brought skyrocketing building costs, land prices, and real estate taxes, stimulating growth in the condominium concept. High-rise condominium for city dwelling was a natural step due to land scarcity. But because of zoning considerations, aesthetic requirements, and the need for community identity, low-rise condominium communities emerged in suburbia.

These communities became satellites of suburban centers, providing convenient and accessible sources for shopping, recreation, educational, and entertainment needs. These "islands" began representing a private, well-defined society.

Today, the cycle has resulted in the emergence of communities appealing to specific lifestyles. Each community appeals to a definite market segment. Water sport enthusiasts now have available communities with access to oceans, lakes, or streams. Golfers are attracted to another community. There is a place for every lifestyle today with planned unit developments attracting pilots, skiers, horsemen — even those who simply want to enjoy the natural environment.

Balsamo has delineated the "preferred lifestyle" in many of the communities he has designed near Chicago. "People are attracted to a low-rise condominium community by its image, or mode of living it suggests. Many developments are designed to enhance the environment. In others, the scope of amenities such as recreational activities takes precedence," says Balsamo.

Mission Hills Country Club Village near Northbrook was designed to beckon both the avid golfer and the spectator. Housing is being built on the fringes of the fairways of an existing 18-hole golf course.

To preserve and enhance the area, over $30,000 was spent on tree preservation, and 200 trees were added. More than 81 per cent of 144 acres will remain permanent open space with the density only 0.75 units per acre.

WHEN COMPLETED, the community will consist of 150 townhouses, 600 condominiums, and 200 apartments in five-story buildings. The personality, design, and location of each building complements the setting. Balsamo decided on a "country traditional with rough sawn cedar siding and massive stone chimney caps relating to the ruggedness of the golf course itself, and making the entire concept attractive to the buyers."

Arbor 40 in Oak Brook blends its architectural style with the environment, suiting those seeking a natural setting. "It's really a small colony of only 40 units nestled among the beautiful willow trees, some of which have been replanted," says the architect. His goal was to design buildings highlighting the area's environment. The townhouses will have exteriors of rough siding and brick. Some will feature double balconies emphasizing the outdoor atmosphere.

Chambord, also in Oak Brook, is another example of a lifestyle concept influencing the community's design. Development

THE SPORTS-MINDED family may be attracted to the water-oriented lifestyle Vacation Village offers. A second-home community at Fox Lake, the development has a 350-boat marina and access to 64,000 acres of continuous waterways for boating and fishing. Architect of Vacation Village, which will ultimately have 2,500 condominium homes, is Salvatore Balsamo & Associates Inc., Chicago.

oped for couples whose children are in college or have grown up, "they're looking for the elegant living they've worked hard for, and the privacy of the single family home they have sold because it's too large and demanding," Balsamo says.

The architecture is sophisticated French Provincial and each group of chateaux blends with the pleasant, park-like surroundings. Even the roofs have been covered with hand-split wood shakes. Cul-de-sacs lead away from the main arteries to the private clusters of two-story condominiums. Yet the location enables residents to leave their oasis and within minutes arrive at major shopping, sports, and entertainment areas. Recreational amenities at the community were set aside, maintaining the peace and privacy inherent to the lifestyle Chambord owners have selected.

WHAT ABOUT the sports-minded family? "Water orientation is one priority for this group," says Balsamo.

A second-home community, Vacation Village at Fox Lake provides year-round sports and leisure-time facilities. The development features a 350-boat marina with channel access to the Chain O'Lakes' 64,000 acres of continuous waterways for boating and fishing. Adjacent to some 6,000 acres in the Chain O'Lakes State Park, Vacation Village will consist of 2,500 condominium homes along with extensive recreational facilities.

The recreational activities list is diverse with opportunities for fishing, boating, swimming, water skiing, sunbathing, hunting, horseback riding, hiking, picnicking, tennis, badminton, croquet, horseshoes, tobogganing, ice skating, ice fishing, snowmobiling, and much more.

For the future, Balsamo envisions continuing development of low-rise to mid-rise lifestyle-oriented condominium communities. "The world is growing smaller as our mobility increases; the population is moving on the average of every four years."

"THE RAPID sophistication of the lifestyle condominium development will enable a family to move cross country — Chicago to Atlanta, New York to Los Angeles — and find a planned unit development offering the same amenities, the same mode of living."

"Additional leisure time is also a factor in condominium growth. A person now can go around the world with the security that his home is being well-protected and cared for in his absence. The maintenance package gives more time to use increasing leisure hours to the fullest."

Balsamo feels today's buyer is not just looking for shelter, but a concept of living.

F/M Construction begins new building

Work is now under way by F/M Construction Corp. on a 47,340 square foot building at 300 King St. in Elk Grove Village. Located on 2 1/4 acres in Centex Industrial Park at the intersection of Northwest Tollway and Higgins Road, it is designed for light manufacturing and warehousing.

According to general partner Robert Fridstein, the building will have 1,600 square feet of office space with provision for a second floor of offices immediately above. Warehouse area has 19-foot ceilings, and exterior walls are load bearing "jumbo" brick. Extra insulation is provided to stay within gas company minimum requirements for heating.

The building will be ready for occupancy about Sept. 15.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I have a hard time in bringing my blood sugar down. I have sugar diabetes, and even when I stick to my diet I have a hard time keeping it down. I take two shots of insulin for a total of 60 units a day. I test my urine every day. I am overweight and 52 years old. What do you recommend I do to get my blood sugar down? Even when it is high, I don't feel too bad, but sometimes I do feel sluggish.

Dear Reader — If a person has sufficiently severe diabetes to require insulin therapy, the amount of insulin has to be regulated in relationship to the diet that's eaten. If you don't stay on your diet, the insulin dosage may either be too little or too much.

People with untreated diabetes often feel sluggish because they don't have enough energy in the cells to carry out normal cell function. This happens because the glucose sugar used for cell energy requires insulin to be metabolized, that is, converted to carbon dioxide and oxygen to release energy. When the insulin is not effective or when there is not enough insulin in the body, the glucose sugar in the blood can't be utilized and its level increases to large amounts.

The high blood sugar isn't what makes you tired. It's the inability to provide energy to the cells. Because sugar can't be utilized in severe untreated diabetes, these individuals use fat and proteins for metabolism. The end products, particularly of the fat, are ketone bodies or acetone bodies which are strong acids. The excess accumulation of these leads to diabetic acidosis and even coma.

INSULIN SUGAR also is formed from the proteins in the body, if you don't have any carbohydrates in your diet. An animal with no pancreas that's fed only fat and protein will maintain a high blood sugar level. This is done by converting the proteins to glucose sugar. Even the body proteins from muscles can be converted to glucose sugar in this way.

Of course, the glucose sugar can't be used by the cells if there is no insulin, and as the blood sugar goes up this causes sugar in the urine. One of the functions of your insulin then is to enable the cells to use normally produced glucose sugar and give you energy. This in turn combats the "sluggish feeling" or fatigue that diabetics experience.

Diabetic specialists have different opinions on how well controlled the blood sugar level should be. Certainly the diabetics should be controlled well enough that the body doesn't have to depend on fat and protein for energy alone and cause acidosis or other problems.

Often an overweight diabetic needs less insulin once he has eliminated his excess obesity. If you are able to stay on a good diet that gradually eliminates your excess fat this might help you, but I think you should let your doctor worry about what your blood sugar level should be, and that your main effort should be to stick to the diet that he recommends for the amount of insulin he is giving you. If you don't do this, you're not going to get the maximum advantage of his help, and in fact could run into difficulties.

More will become eligible for free school lunches

Economic guidelines for participation in a free lunch program, required of all public schools in Illinois, have been raised by about 10 per cent, making more children eligible for the program next year.

All public schools are required to provide free lunches for children for low income families. Private and parochial schools participate in the program voluntarily.

State school supt. Michael Bokalis has announced economic guidelines for the 1973-74 school year which determine whether a child is eligible for the free lunch programs. Next year's guidelines are the maximum allowed by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture and represent a 10 per cent increase over last year's level.

The level of eligibility for free lunches for a family of four is an income of $5,310 or less per year. Children may receive reduced price meals of 20 cents or less, if the family's income does not exceed $6,380, again for a family of four.

Currently all schools serving free lunches to eligible children are reimbursed at the rate of 48 cents per lunch from federal funds plus an additional 15 cents per lunch from state sources.

Male's mid-life crisis not disruptive

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, a fully-accredited 135-bed psychiatric hospital known for its intensive programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education and community service.)

Men go through a gradual change of life called the male climacterium. During this period of life, which generally is when a man reaches his mid-40's, there is a gradual decrease in his body's production of testosterone, the male hormone.

According to Dr. Leo Jacobs, director of the Forest Hospital Sexual Dysfunction Clinic, the male change of life is not necessarily a disruptive process.

"While women face the sudden and distinct cessation of ovarian function in mid-age," Dr. Jacobs explains, "men as they age have a very gradual decrease in their testosterone or male hormone level. But many men do face a mid-life crisis."

WHAT HAPPENS to a man who is having a mid-life crisis? "Generally he's in his mid-40's, and he sits back and appraises himself. He no longer believes he can rise higher in his work, and he realizes that his work record has not met those aspirations he had for himself as a young man. He becomes discouraged.

"He may say he's now bored with life. But this is just an excuse. He's afraid that if he becomes introspective he may discover the negative underlying feelings he has about himself.

"Many men become depressed or despondent," Dr. Jacobs continued, "other stagnate and still others become amorous and take on love affairs as a way of boosting their sense of masculinity.

"The man who is vulnerable to the psycho-social effects of aging is the man whose sense of self-worth is narrowly based. He may identify his worth completely with his earning capacity or his physical or sexual powers, and when he thinks this attribute has failed he loses his self esteem."

AS A MAN ENTERS mid-life, according to Dr. Jacobs, he is no less potent than he was as a young man unless he drinks too much and he then fails sexually. Fear may set in, and he fails again as he approaches sexual encounters as a testing ground for his masculinity. He may cause himself to become impotent — but this impotence is only a side effect to a real problem of feeling worthless.

Our culture's worship of youth and dread of aging contribute greatly to the mid-life crisis.

Social Security and You

Lost your Social Security card? Apply for a duplicate card at any Social Security office promptly — at least several weeks before you'll need your Social Security number, according to Norman R. Thoresen, manager of the Arlington Heights Social Security office.

"An application for a duplicate card is generally screened against files at the national record center in Baltimore to make sure that just one Social Security number is issued to the same person — and this screening can take time."

Thoresen said, "So to make sure you have your correct Social Security number and card when you need it — to show an employer when you start a new job, for instance — apply for a duplicate as soon as you know you've lost your Social Security card."

A worker builds retirement, disability, survivors, and Medicare hospital insurance protection for himself and his family by work and earnings credited to his Social Security number.

"Your 9-digit Social Security number is yours alone and remains the same for life," Mr. Thoresen said. "If you lose your card and get a duplicate, you will keep the same number."

"Using more than one Social Security number could mean you're not getting full credit for your work and earnings," he said. "That could adversely affect your Social Security payments in the future. If you have more than one Social Security number, get in touch with any Social Security office. People there will be happy to set your record straight."

When a worker gets a job covered by Social Security, he should make sure his employer copies his name and number correctly from his Social Security card to the employer's records, Thoresen said.

Today, more than nine out of 10 jobs are covered by Social Security.

The Lighter Side...by Dick West

Cover up that ugly political blemish with Scan-Shield

WASHINGTON — You see these trim, clean-cut young witnesses testifying before the Senate Watergate committee and you want to ask, "What's a nice boy like you doing in a place like this?"

But, deep down, you know the answer. If we but admit it, they are to a large extent victims of the American system.

From the cradle onward, they have had it drummed into them that coverups are desirable. The message comes across every time they turn on the television or thumb through a magazine.

On the tube or in a double-page ad they see exemplary people covering up gray hair, wrinkles, natural complexion, skin blemishes, odors of various sorts.

And all involved in these coverups are depicted as being better off for the deception.

THEREFORE, it is hardly surprising that when involved in something unsavory like the Watergate scandal the first instinct is to cover it up. The scene may have unfolded something like this:

"Hi, John. Why the long face?"

"I'm in a heap of trouble, Bob. A couple of FBI agents are coming to question me about the Watergate break-in."

"Surely you aren't letting a little thing like that get you down?"

"But I'm involved, Bob. I knew about the plans to bug the Democratic National Committee. In fact, I was the one who took those $100 bills to the laundry."

"SILLY BOY! Haven't you ever heard of Scan-Shield?"

"Scan-Shield? What's that?"

"It's the new super-powered scandal — covering with the miracle — deluding agent that conceals involvement in political espionage with just one easy application."

"Do you mean if I use Scan-Shield my involvement in the Watergate case won't be visible?"

"It's guaranteed investigation-proof, John. Keep you looking innocent as a lamb even under the scrutiny of Washington Post reporters. I use Scan-Shield after every involvement in campaign dirty work, and I feel safe 24 hours a day. It even withstands leaks to the New York Times."

"Thanks, Bob. You're a real pal. I'll get some right away."

Several months later, they meet again. "You spilled everything to the grand jury and to the Senate committee, John. What happened? Didn't you use Scan-Shield as directed?"

"Yeah, Bob. But you forgot to tell me it doesn't work under oath."

Veterans' News

Q — What is this work-study program for veterans I keep hearing about?

A — A program authorized under a recent law which allows the Veterans Administration to advance up to $250 in extra allowances to veterans enrolled in the agency's education programs. In return, the veteran agrees to work up to 100 hours for the agency.

Q — Is VA hiring its share of Vietnam Era veterans to help reduce unemployment among this group?

A — Yes, VA is a leader in this area. The more than 18,000 Vietnam-era veterans working as paid employees make up about 9½ per cent of the agency's total work force.

Q — My brother got addicted to heroin but came out of the service with a good discharge. His private clinic just went out of business because the methadone was slipping. Would VA put him back on methadone or let him go drug-free?

A — If he appears able to make it in a drug-free program, VA would let him try that. If he failed to remain drug free, he could receive methadone at a VA clinic.

Q — I am a female veteran receiving non-service connected pension. Can I claim my husband as a dependent?

A — Yes. Contact your nearest VA office for proper guidance.

Q — My husband has not changed the beneficiary on his National Service Life Insurance policy since our marriage. He says it is not necessary as the insurance is automatically paid to the wife. Is this so?

A — This is not true. Insurance proceeds are paid to the beneficiary last designated in writing by the insured. If none is designated, or no designated beneficiary survives the insured, proceeds will be paid to the estate.

Here's what you can do to save gasoline

Hey, Mr. Motorist — want to conserve gasoline? Here are 14 steps you can take:

- Reduce speed on all highways which could save 11 per cent fuel when driving 50 instead of 60 mph and 25 per cent fuel when driving 50 instead of 70 mph. Legislation requiring 50 mph maximum speed on state highways and interstates might be required.
- Consolidate airline flights to attain higher efficiency per passenger mile and thereby lower fuel consumption.
- Encourage mass transportation. In metropolitan cities, people could be encouraged to use buses and trains.
- Keep engine in top shape. A poorly tuned engine reduces mileage by 10 per cent.
- Form car pools.
- Plan trips to stores — combining visits to cleaners, drug, department and grocery stores.
- Use car air conditioners sparingly. You can save as much as 10 per cent on fuel consumption when it's not in use.
- Keep tires properly inflated. Under-inflated tires affect gasoline mileage by approximately one mile per gallon.
- Warm up engine before driving.
- Use multi-grade motor oil in engine. It can give you 10 per cent better mileage than regular grade oils.
- Start slowly and stop slowly — you save gasoline.
- Stagger working hours in metropolitan cities to ease traffic jams and wasteful engine idling.
- Walk more.
- Eliminate or curtail non-essential driving.

Collecting Coins

by Mort Reed

Any column serving 600 or more newspapers in the United States would expect more than normal reader response to a controversial question of national importance, especially when it is relevant to the currency in the reader's pocket. But the public reaction to whether or not we should have six new coins for our Bicentennial is beginning to clog the slot in our mail box.

None suggest we should retain our present designs and some even demand that we dispose of one or two of the current devices in favor of renewing some that have long since been retired. Incidentally, there is no coinage law that prohibits taking a design out of retirement and putting it back into circulation. And after reviewing the pictorial structure of the cent, nickel, dime, quarter, half-dollar and dollar, I can concur.

We have only been able to evaluate the ballots received from COIN WORLD readers since my weekly COIN LOGIC panel provided ballots ready to be filled in and mailed. Readers of this column have been sending in their stamped, self-addressed envelopes for their ballots and we will just have to wait for their return to see whether or not the collecting and non-collecting public agree. Should we have all new designs on our present coinage celebrating the American Revolution Bicentennial in 1976?

THE SECOND PART of the question is equally important. It has been proposed by the numismatic industry through spokesmen from the industries newspapers and magazines that the Treasury also issue a Bicentennial gold piece and Bicentennial silver commemorative coin, denominations to be other than any of the six we now have.

This makes a total of eight coins. Six old denominations with new designs and two new of pure gold and silver.

Mrs. Mary T. Brooks, director of the Mint, maintains this is an impossibility. According to Mrs. Brooks such a program would overload both the mint personnel and equipment to a point below required efficiency. She suggests removing the reverse of both the Kennedy half-dollar and the Eisenhower dollar and replacing them with a Bicentennial motif dated 1776-1976.

THE FOLLOWING is an open MEMO to Mary T. Brooks, Director, Bureau of the Mint. SUBJECT: Coinage Designs for 1976.

Since you will be reading this article it occurred to me to call your attention to the results of a slightly premature observation. From the ballots received to date, it looks as though the Indian-head (buffalo) nickel design is maintaining its popularity. As are Jefferson, Washington and Lincoln. Eisenhower and Kennedy, on the other hand, seem to be losing ground as appropriate Bicentennial devices.

Volunteers needed for special camp

Volunteers are being recruited to be counselors for the mentally handicapped at Long Lake Camp in Round Lake, July 15 to 21.

The camp, owned and operated by the Lutheran Council of Greater Chicago, needs volunteers who will receive free transportation, meals and lodging. Three training periods will be held before the camp starts.

Persons interested in volunteering should call the Lutheran Council of Greater Chicago, 11A 7-5746.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Sir Kay was the one cowardly knight of the Round Table. He was also a coward at the bridge table. He thought his jump to four clubs was a tremendous overbid and might keep Lancelot from getting to the right contract.

A more enterprising and valiant knight would have jumped to six clubs and probably kept Lancelot out of the grand slam. All the four-club bid did was tell the peerless knight and bridge player how to go about the business of making the grand slam.

Lancelot ruffled the club lead and drew trumps. He noticed that Kay followed to three leads. He also knew that Kay held a lot of clubs for his preempt. Hence, if anyone held all four diamonds it would be the unfortunate Sir Palamides sitting East.

Just to make sure Lancelot cashed his ace of spades, Kay followed to that also and now Lancelot was ready for the diamonds. He led a diamond to dummy's ace. Kay showed out and it was a simple matter to lead the 10 of diamonds, overtake East's jack, go back to dummy with the queen of spades and finesse against East's nine to make the grand slam.

Lancelot might have played diamonds that same way if Kay had not bid at all. After the four-club bid the play was just about a cinch.

Stamp Notes...by Bernadine M. Rechner

Boston Tea Party commemoratives due out July 4

The U.S. Postal Service will release a block of four 8-cent stamps July 4 at Boston commemorating the Boston Tea Party.

The issue continues postal recognition of the Bicentennial of the American Revolution.

The set-tenant design principle is similar to the Cape Hatteras issue of 1972 in that each of the four stamps is a design entity. Combined, they complete the scene of 1773, when enraged colonists dumped chests of tea from British ships into the harbor at Boston to protest the English-levied tax.

With the dumping of the tea, Sam Adams' wish came to pass. England was goaded into a showdown. "The die is now cast," wrote George III to his prime minister. "The colonies must either submit or triumph."

Tea ships were "persuaded" to turn back before entering the ports of New York and Philadelphia. Tea unloaded at Charleston was placed under bond in a damp warehouse.

Parliament debated for three months before meting out punishment for the Boston Tea Party... the passage of what Americans called the Intolerable Acts. Revolution was inevitable.

William A. Smith of Pineville, Pa., designed the Boston Tea Party stamp, which will be printed in two passes through the offset press and another through the Glori. There will be one plate number.

Collectors desiring first-day cancellations should send their requests to Boston Tea Party Stamp, Postmaster, Boston, Mass. 02109, enclosing the proper remittance, which is 32 cents for the block of four. (Remember to address your envelopes low and to the left-hand side so the block of four stamps will fit.)

TO PAUL G. of Mount Prospect: A spokesman for the philatelic unit at the Chicago Post Office suggested that to get a single Boston Tea Party stamp on each cover, specify on your envelope in the upper right hand corner, lightly in pencil, which single stamp of the block of four you want affixed... for example "8-cent Boston Tea Party stamp, upper right" or "8-cent Boston Tea Party stamp, lower left." Try to get all your printing in the area which will be covered by the stamp. (And if I were you, I'd get that request in soon because the Boston Postmaster might not honor the Chicago suggestion and may return the order to you. It seems to me that the Postal Service is encouraging collectors to spend 32 cents for this first class mail and I'd be interested in hearing how your request fares in Boston.)

THE NORTHWEST Suburban Stamp Club will devote its Sept. 4 meeting to a stamp auction. Members are also requested to bring their stamps to the June and July meetings. The group will not meet in August.

Toll Authority cuts 24 passenger cars

The Illinois State Toll Highway Authority has eliminated 24 passenger vehicles owned by the authority and assigned to executive and supervisory personnel.

The authority announced the new program recently as part of its effort under Gov. Daniel Walker's directive to cut costs.

The passenger cars eliminated will save $75,000 in annual operating costs, and will reduce the fixed assets of the toll authority by about $100,000, according to Richard Blakley, executive administrator and secretary of the authority.

Blakley also said the authority expects to recover $12,000 by selling the cars.

The cars will be replaced by use of other assigned cars or by an 18-car motor pool already used by the authority.

The cutback does not include any tollway police cars.

YOUR MONEY

Many families find difficulty in building savings because of high "fixed expenses." But the chances are that many of these aren't as "fixed" as you think. Here are some areas for close examination:

Car expenses are a big item, ranking only below housing and food in the average budget. Regular maintenance service may seem costly at the time, but it's a long-term saving. Trade in your car if possible before the really heavy expenses come... But don't trade a good, low mileage car just because a new model is out.

Watch heavy finance charges. Even those revolving charges can add up to true annual interest rates of 20% or more. Don't look for the longest terms and lowest monthly payments. Pay off as quickly as possible. Another saving: pay your life insurance annually, not monthly. And be sure you're getting all your possible income tax deductions.

Last but not least, get the most out of your savings. Insured accounts with Mount Prospect Federal Savings and Loan Association pay a current rate which enables your money to earn more — with safety.

The Hollywood Scene

by Vernon Scott

HOLLYWOOD — Gale Gordon is quietly celebrating his 50th anniversary in show business because he does everything quietly, unless he is bellowing at Lucille Ball on the Redheads television series.

Mustachioed, balding Gordon is one of television's top funny men. In person he is as funny as a weekend in Forest Lawn.

Gordon has been a regular on "Here's Lucy" for 11 years, playing the short-tempered foil for the star's zany adventures. When he made his professional show business debut in 1923 Gale had higher goals.

"I REMEMBER my very first job," he said. "I was hired as an atmosphere player in a Canadian saloon scene for 'The Dancers' on Broadway.

"I was paid $15 a week, and I didn't speak a line. But I got an extra $10 a week to be Richard Bennett's dresser. He was the star, and he taught me a lot about makeup and acting."

Gordon was only 17 years old. At 67 he is comfortably wealthy and content to play Harrison Otis Carter on Lucy's show forever.

"I'd like to think I'm not as stuffy as that character," said Gordon, arching a somewhat stuffy eyebrow.

Stuffy fatheads have been the actor's forte down through the years. "Here's Lucy" marks his sixth weekly series.

GORDON PLAYED the dimwitted Osgood Conklin, the high school principal in "Our Miss Brooks." He played the blustering landlord, Heckendorn, in "Make Room for Daddy."

In "The Joan Caulfield Show" and "The Brothers" he was an ineffectual boor. He was the irascible Mr. Wilson in "Dennis the Menace" before rejoining Lucy 11 years ago.

Back in 1947 he and Lucy worked together in radio's old "My Favorite Husband" series.

"I'll never forget my years in radio," he said. "In 1939-40 I earned $10,000 and counted myself the luckiest actor in radio. And I've made my share of movies, too."

GORDON'S FIRST picture was "The Temptress," a silent MGM epic starring Greta Garbo.

"Some years ago I figured I'd done at least 5,000 radio shows," Gordon said. "I worked two or three shows a day and was paid only $5 to $10 per show. I was lucky because I could do a lot of voices."

"But it wasn't until I got into television that people began to expect me to be funny in person. Well, that's not an easy thing. I'm not a stand-up comedian and I don't know any one-liners."

"The only time I try to be amusing is when I give a speech. I work like a dog on my speeches and never know if they're going to be funny."

Gordon assumed a Harrison Otis Carter posture and concluded, "my real name is Aldrich. But I changed it to Gordon early in my career because my father was a vaudeville headliner, a quick-change artist — Charles T. Aldrich. Like all kids I wanted to make it on my own."

DuBrow on TV...by Rick DuBrow

British boost earthy video comedy here

HOLLYWOOD — An earthy lot, the British — and if you don't think so, just consider the themes of some weekly American television programs adapted from series that originated in England.

The most famous American variation on a British video series is, of course, CBS-TV's "All In The Family," and it's a comedy with a bigoted working-class husband-father as its central character. This show is based on the English "Till Death Us Do Part."

Then there is NBC-TV's "Sanford and Son," also a highly successful comedy, concerning the touchy relationship between an aging junk dealer who will use almost any device to keep his grown bachelor offspring with him, despite the young man's periodic urges to go off and lead a life of his own. This show was based on the British creation "Steptoe and Son."

THERE WAS ABC-TV's "A Touch of Grace," now canceled, which dealt in comedy terms with an elderly but lively widow, her droll gravedigger beau (he worked at the cemetery where her late husband was buried), and her conservative daughter and son-in-law, with whom she lived. The inspiration for this program was the British series "For The Love of Ada."

There is ABC-TV's "Thicker Than Water," yet another comedy, this one concerning a prim middle-aged spinster, her wastrel brother and their general disagreement on everything except a mutual hunger for the estate of their ailing octogenarian father. He, in turn, keeps them on a leash by making them run his factory to qualify for their impending inheritances. It is based on the British series "Nearest and Dearest."

There is also another ABC-TV comedy, "Love Thy Neighbor," adapted from an English series of the same name. It deals with a white couple and black couple whose houses are next to each other in a neighborhood that not long before had been all-white.

IN SUM, all these have helped open the door for earthy, contemporary comedy on the home tube in this nation.

It is instructive to consider in retrospect what happened when the Smothers Brothers series, regarded in this country as outspoken in its new social attitudes, was taken on by British television.

In truth, the series was a force for new attitudes in America because of the mass video audience, and because of the brothers' commitment to the ideas behind their material. But in Britain, the series didn't last long. The people there simply couldn't understand what the fuss in America was about. An earthy lot, the British.

Logan Square suffers sixth straight loss

by TOM CARKEEK

"He's lost a few in a row. I'm afraid he'll be hungry for a win," said Park Ridge coach Jerry Stomes about Larry Nomellini's Logan Square Lions before Tuesday night's game.

But if Nomellini and his Lion cohorts were hungry, they went home famished after losing their sixth in a row and their second straight in the Ninth District 5-1 at St. Viator High School. Logan Square is 0-2 in league play and 8-9 overall.

The top third of the Park Ridge batting order toyed with Lion hurler Jim Dumke, combining for five hits in 10 at-bats and scoring all five Post 217 runs.

Park Ridge sent 11 men to bat in the first two innings and amassed all five of its runs in the process. Bob Lloyd opened the game with a solid single to center, Charlie Fahrner's walk and Russ Anderson's line drive single loaded the bases.

Dumke got Jim Lyons and Jerry Jones on strikes, but Lloyd scored when Mike McDonald was safe on shortstop Jim Bucaro's boot. Dan Lowy's base hit brought in two more, and Dumke escaped further damage when Tony Reibel lined out to left.

"After retiring the first two Post 217 hitters in the second, Logan Square cracked again when Fahrner drew his second successive base on balls. Anderson singled him to second and both tallied when Lyons parted a Dumke offering against the right field fence for a triple.

From there on, Dumke settled down and spaced three innocuous singles, although another Bucaro error in the fourth and a stolen base in the fifth permitted Park Ridge to threaten mildly.

Logan Square, playing without Ed Collins and Jim Miller, who were gone to Northern Illinois University for the day, stranded two runners in each of the first three innings before scoring an unearned run in the sixth. Bob Flagler, in relief of Post 217's Jay Liggett, fanned the first two hitters in the sixth before surrendering a double to Bucaro, who went two-for-two. Then Mark Rickerson hit a routine grounder to third which should have ended the inning, but Fahrner overthrew first base and Bucaro scampered home.

The Lions staged a potential comeback in the bottom of the seventh when Bob Foster was safe on an error and went to third on Stan Bobowski's single (Bobowski taking second on the throw), but Flagler struck out Tom Chapman for the second time to dodge any harm.

The Lions swung tired bats, getting only four hits off the Park Ridge pitching duo and falling to strikes 11 times. Liggett, a minuscule righty, gave up only a double to Steve Bobowski and a single to Bucaro in his five innings. Flagler dished out five strikeouts in his two-inning relief stint and surrendered one unearned run. Dumke went all the way for Logan Square giving up eight hits and two walks. He fanned six and only two of the runs he allowed were earned.

High school summer league highlights

Errors help area teams in division action

Hersey used eight Fenton errors and five walks to fashion a 7-1 victory in Tuesday night's summer league baseball.

Fenton grabbed an early 1-0 lead, but the Huskies notched two in the third without the aid of a base hit. Tom Vetta reached on a fielder's choice, stole second and took third on an error. Then Mark Krause walked and the two successfully executed a double steal, Vetta scoring. Krause followed his teammate home by stealing third and home.

In the fourth, Jim Lococo laced a long triple to rightcenter and came home on Dave Mielchewicz' base hit.

Hersey salted the game away in the seventh when they added four more. John Caruso was safe on a fielder's choice and walks to Bob Huber and Jeff Forster filled the bases. Caruso tallied on a wild pitch and Roger Muebach's single scored Huber. Then Forster came home on a passed ball which moved Muebach to second. From there he scored on Kevin Madden's hit.

Scott Topczewski worked 4 1/3 innings for Hersey, striking out seven and walking one. Huber finished up with four strikeouts and a walk in 2 2/3 innings.

Hersey got only five hits but took advantage of erratic Fenton defensive play and speed on the basepaths to post the triumph.

FREMID WINS, 7-3

Fremid scored six unearned runs to secure a 7-3 decision over Elk Grove Tuesday night in a six-inning summer league game shortened by darkness.

Seven Grenadier errors played a vital role in the Fremid win. Jeff Hantsch, the Viking starting pitcher, worked 4 1/3 innings and pocketed the win.

Three infield errors, a hit batsman and a fielder's choice put two runs on the board in the Fremid second. Two more unearned runs tallied in the third as a result of two errors, a passed ball and a stolen base.

Fremid made it 5-0 in the top of the fourth when Jeff Bryson walked and stole second, then tallied when Hantsch's ground ball went through the infield for another Elk Grove boot.

The Vikings closed out their scoring in the fifth when Mark Otteman walked and later scored when Scott Orbin was safe on yet another error. Mitch Gullett forced Orbin at the plate two plays later and then Jeff Schroeder delivered a run-scoring single to cap the scoring.

Elk Grove struck for two runs in the fourth when John Paul reached base on an error and came home on Steve Sheridan's double to center. Brian Sanosky's base hit scored Sheridan.

In the fifth the Grens added one more when Larry Lasplisa singled, moved to second on an error and tallied when Paul got a single to right center.

Sheridan took the loss for Elk Grove.

KNIGHTS COOP FALCONS

Prospect wasn't able to beat Forest View during the spring varsity season, and it cost the Knights a shot at the Mid-Suburban League championship. But Larry Pohlmann's crew — finally spared from facing Larry Monroe — whipped the Falcons 5-2 in Summer League action Tuesday.

Kevin Kelley went the distance for the win, displaying fine control with just one walk and four hits allowed. Don Stevens took the loss.

The winners snapped a 2-all tie with two runs in the fifth when Mike Radoff tripled in a run and also scored on a hit by Laddie Janda. Paul Obichowski hammered a home run in the sixth inning for an insurance run.

The Falcons had gotten on the board first in the opening frame when Frank Darras doubled and scored on an error. Prospect went ahead in the third on a single by Tom Hayes, error, fielder's choice, walk and bunt single by Garms.

Forest View tied it in the same inning on an overthrow error after singles by Keith Mallan and Tom Culkar. Two innings later Prospect went ahead to stay.

COMEBACK WINS FOR 'CATS

Wheeling's Summer League team, looking like a good bet to cop its division title with a veteran cast and at least follow in the footsteps of the spring Wildcats (who were 12-4 and second in the Mid-Suburban League North Division), rallied for five runs in the sixth inning Monday and a 6-5 triumph over Maine South.

After spotting the Hawks a 3-0 first-inning lead and 5-1 edge after five, the 'Cats exploded. Howie Brauer doubled in the winning run after Carl Pfister's two-run triple tied it.

Gary Wennerstrom was a little wild on the hill, walking 10 batters, but he allowed just two hits.

Wennerstrom walked the first four Maine South hitters and a wild pitch and sacrifice fly gave the Hawks three runs without benefit of a hit.

Wheeling got one run back, then in the sixth John Carlberg was hit by a pitch, Paul Groot singled, Steve Reumer singled in two runs and Pfister and Brauer followed with their clutch hits.

MUSTANGS WALLOPED, 9-0

By playing four times a week, an Illinois High School Summer League baseball team doesn't have much time to savor a hard-fought victory or suffer through a humiliating defeat.

Rolling Meadows was thankful for the hectic schedule Tuesday as Barrington leveled the Mustangs, 9-0. "Barrington is a good team, but not nine runs better than we are," a puzzled Meadows coach Al Otto said.

The Mustangs had played Barrington on even terms just one night earlier as both teams broke out of the clinch with four runs apiece before darkness intervened.

But it was all Barrington Tuesday as it bombarded a pair of Meadows hurlers for nine hits and cruised to an 8-0 advantage after just four innings.

Tallying two in the second and three each in the third and fourth off Mustang starter Dave Thorstensen, Barrington's instigator was big Dave Shellenback who completed a perfect 5-for-5 series against the Mustangs with three hits in three

Fly Tyers Club lands big catch in Wolf River

Eight members of the Northern Illinois Fly Tyers Club enjoyed a highly successful fishing outing the weekend of June 19th at George Steed's Wolf River Lodge at Langlade, Wis.

Using flies made during their weekly club meetings, the members took 137 brown, rainbow and brook trout from the unspoiled water of the Wolf. Weather conditions were near perfect, water temperature was ideal for fly hatches, and although the water was higher than normal, the trout were rising well. Patterns which scored best were the Near Enough, Quill Gordon, Adams and Light Cahill dry flies in sizes 10, 12, 14 and 16 tied to nine-foot tapered leaders floated on a natural drift.

Luck was with the group, who had planned the trip for more than six months, as George Steed said fishing conditions were at their optimum and should remain so for the next three weeks.

Plans for the outing were handled by club members Howard Smith of Palatine and Walt Twarowski of Arlington Heights, both of whom had fished the Wolf previously and know the water well.

Most of the fish were in the 8-10 inch size range with one 19 inch and three 14 inch browns being taken. Browns made up the largest part of the catch, followed by rainbows, and a few brooks.

Langlade is a 4 1/2 hour trip from the club headquarters in Arlington Heights, and plans are that one or more outings a year will be made to the Wolf.

Paul Logan

Paul Logan is on vacation. His column will be resumed on his return.

PARK RIDGE CLEANUP hitter Jim Lyons dives back to third, just missing an attempted tag by Logan Square third baseman Mark Hartley. Lyons had just tripled to right field to score two Park Ridge teammates, but a relay throw almost caught him leaning. Lions' shortstop Jim Bucaro backs up the play.  Broncho Bill Simond was in complete command in hurling the distance while yielding just three singles. He walked two and fanned 10.

Steve Breitbeil, Mike Saughling and Jeff Darges accounted for the trio of Mustang safeties — two of them coming in the fourth when Meadows loaded the bases with one out but failed to score.

ARLINGTON WINS, 3-1

Jim Letzel had a no-hitter into the seventh inning when he yielded two singles and one run as Arlington bumped off Maine South, 3-1, on Tuesday.

The Arlington moundman struck out just one and walked five but kept the flanks bottled up until the seventh.

Coach Joe Scarpino's Cardinals did all their scoring in the fifth inning on five singles and a walk. Don Stebbins, Don Kamps and Art Busby got the runs-barred-in. There were also singles by Bow McGarvey and Matt Split. Kevin Dick walked during the inning.

Those five singles plus one hit in the second were the extent of Arlington's production against Maine South.

Drag Olympics features Knievel

The undisputed "King of the Daredevils," famed motorcycleist Evel Knievel will be featured as the scheduled "Olympics of Drag Racing" gets underway Friday night at 8:30 at the Great Lakes Dragway. The three day National Championship meet, continues with night races again Saturday at 8:30 and winds up Sunday with racing starting at 2 p.m.

The "Olympics of Drag Racing" had previously been scheduled over the Memorial Weekend but was postponed to June 22-24 when heavy rains washed out the majority of the meet. It was then rescheduled in its entirety to coincide with the appearance of Evel Knievel at the Southern Wisconsin Dragstrip June 22-24. Knievel will do wheelstands the entire quarter mile plus various other forms of motorcycle stunt riding. On Saturday and Sunday he will climax his performances by doing the feat that has made his name a household word, jumping his motorcycle from ramp to ramp over a minimum of 13 cars and trucks.

Knievel is best remembered for jumping the water fountains at Cesar's Palace in Las Vegas and for the motion picture a short time ago that bore his name, "Evel Knievel." Tony Curtis played Knievel in the movie based on his life.

The jet, wheelstanders, nitro fuel dragsters, pro stocks, funny cars and the 200 plus MPH rocket go-cart will also be competing all three days.

Del Crandall can't wait to see his Brewers play

by MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK — Every time he tries to get a little fresh air, everywhere he goes, Del Crandall gets hit with the same thing.

"Can you stay there?"

"Can you keep it up?"

"Did you ever dream in spring training that a thing like this could ever happen?"

Del Crandall smiles. It's very easy for him to do that now with his high-flying Milwaukee Brewers carrying on as if somebody should give them a saliva test.

"Why wouldn't I dream of something like this?" he says. "When I dream, I try to dream of good things, not bad ones."

Del Crandall has a good thing now and he knows it. He has a ball club which finished dead last three of the past four years and nobody in the world, with the possible exception of the stockholders, would've batted an eye had they finished last again this year.

It isn't likely they will.

On the contrary, the bewildering Brewers are beginning to revive World Series' memories in Milwaukee for the first time in 15 years. That was the last time the city had a winner.

The old Milwaukee Braves had some pretty gifted performers that year. Players like Lew Burdette, Eddie Mathews, Red Schoendienst, Bill Bruton, Joe Adcock and Crandall. They also had a pair of superstars like Hank Aaron and Warren Spahn.

The Brewers don't have any superstars though.

George Scott thinks he is, but he has some way to go yet.

Mostly the Brewers are doing as well as they are with rookies and young fellows who aren't even hitting .250, players you've probably barely heard of like Gorman Thomas, Bob Coluccio, Darrell Porter and Tim Johnson. Davey May, who couldn't even win a regular job with Baltimore, is Milwaukee's most consistent performer, and rookie Pedro Garcia and catcher Ellis Rodriguez come closest to being leaders.

Tre pitching has been something else, averaging less than three runs a game this month.

Jim Colborn, the 26-year-old right-hander discarded by the Cubs, is the Brewers' Tom Seaver. He goes against anyone in the league and figures he can lick them. Jerry Bell, another right-hander, feels pretty much the same way. Jim Slaton is forever challenging the hitters with his fast ball, and Bill Parsons is just beginning to make a contribution. In the bullpen, Frank Linzy has been reminiscent of what Sparky Lyle was for the Yankees last year.

So turned on by the Brewers have the fans become in Milwaukee lately, that 22,706 of them showed up the other evening for a Monday night contest with the Red Sox despite the fact a tornado alert had been up until two hours before game time.

Colborn pitched a six-hitter in that one for his ninth win and by the ninth inning, all the fans were yelling "We're No. 1! We're No. 1!"

This is third baseman Don Money's first year in Milwaukee. He came to the Brewers this past winter from Philadelphia and isn't too used to such a reaction from the fans.

"It gets you goose pimply out there with all those fans yelling like that," he says.

All the excitement is getting a little to Del Crandall also.

"I can hardly wait to go out and see the club play," he says. He means it, too.

"I don't think I've ever been associated with a club that has shown more raw, sincere enthusiasm," he says.

Can he be a little more specific?

"Well, yes," says the Brewers' manager. "The man's name is Joe Lahoud. Here's a guy 26 years old who believes he can play regularly and wants to play regularly. He has come to me and said 'If I can't play regularly, please try to make a deal for me.' It is not an unreasonable request, and he made it a couple of times to me, but never in a malicious, nasty way."

"Okay, in Monday night's game with the Red Sox, they bring in a left-hander Rogelio Moret in the third inning, and I make a change, putting Thomas in right field in place of Lahoud. Lahoud goes up to the clubhouse, changes his sweat shirt, comes back down to the bench and roars louder than anybody else. To me, that is significant. Here's a fellow who'll give anything to play regularly, but you can see how he feels about the ball club."

How about Del Crandall?

When his manager would take him out of a ball game, and he went back into the clubhouse to change his sweatshirt, would he come back to the bench?

"Not always," he confesses. "Sometimes I'd just wait in the clubhouse."

Palatine Celtics play well in Canada

Thirty boys from the Palatine Park District are traveling Junior and Senior Soccer teams to Ontario over the weekend of June 16th, and look on 150 Canadians. The Celtics played six games against the members of the Linden Park Soccer Club of Hamilton — all of whom were so good for a crack at the Americans that the Palatine squads took on different teams in the two halves of some of their games. On the whole they turned out to be quite evenly matched. The Junior team 9-11 won two of their three games. The Seniors (ages 12-15) did not do quite as well — losing two and tying one — but the games were so close that they might easily have gone either way. In their first game (Palatine 3, Jordan Park 4) Jerry Norys scored twice and Bob Cudney once, and in the game Steve Norys booted in the only goal on a penalty kick. There were no scores in the third game — a 2-0 loss. Other members of the Senior squad were Joe Minzone, Mark Landeen, Bill Landeen, Mark Wolter, Tom Meyer, Bob Martin, Bob Taylor, Mike Barrio, Sandy Sutherland, Brian LaMare, Jack Tattman, and Sticky Sollman. The Juniors won their first game, 3-2, on two goals by Tom Selter and one by Andy Deubert. The second game was a 10-0 rout. Tom Selter again scored twice as did Kevin McKenna and Deubert. The remaining four were credited to Tom O'Driscoll, Jeff Selter, Matt Parker, and Mike Murphy. The tally of the final game, lost in the closing minutes, was 1-0. The remaining Juniors were Jay Haber, Chris Braun, Phil Roberts, Greg Norys, Paul Sutherland, Bob Cudney, Joe Nyskowski, and Charlie Marstrand. "Every boy, on both teams, played as well as I have ever seen them play," remarked Coach Jim Kinzel. "You would think they had played together for two or three years instead of just a few weeks." Coach Bill Hughes was overwhelmed by the very warm and cordial reception given to the Palatine boys by their hosts. "The Canadians were more than generous in their praise and with their cheers (although they seemed surprised that Americans could play soccer at all), and they gave our players a standing ovation after the first game was over." The Celtics are looking forward to a return visit from the Linden Park Club in midsummer.

WAXING YOUR CAR! PLATE IT! and FORGET IT!

with NATURAL COLOR GLAZE PAINT PLATING

A New Dimension in Auto Care
19 Magical Ingredients Formulated for All Paint.

HOW DOES IT WORK?
Natural Color Glaze Paint Plating is easy to apply and you don't need to spend all day making your car look new. The natural, shining color returns each time you wash your car. Your car's paint is clean, the pores are closed, the paint is solidified with a Natural Color Glaze Plating, to a transparent in-depth sheen. A superior finish that will last and last!

WHAT DOES IT DO?
Natural Color Glaze Paint Plating, utilizing a friction heat catalyst, cleans the pores of the paint, refines the paint to a satin smooth finish, then closes and seals the paint pores, resulting in a harder, more durable finish. Unlike conventional polishes which merely rest on top of the paint, the plating actually becomes part of the painted surface. The treated paint becomes almost completely resistant to normal fade and oxidation. Other paint deteriorating factors are resisted because few common substances will adhere to, or penetrate the cured paint. Only a wet cloth is needed to remove common road film and surface dirt accumulation. The paint is not covered with oils and waxes that can melt and cloud up from the sun's hot rays or that attract dirt and dust.

Poor John. Money just seemed to slip right through his fingers. Every time he planned to stash something away, there wasn't anything left.

Then John decided to join the Payroll Savings Plan where he works. Now, an amount he specifies is automatically set aside from his check before he gets it. And invested in U.S. Savings Bonds.

Because John has become such a systematic saver, he's almost forgotten about his money. We're going to have quite a nest egg laid away.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 15% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra 14% payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

If you keep forgetting to save something out of your check, join the Payroll Savings Plan and let somebody else do the remembering for you.

Take stock in America.
Now Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

U.S. Savings Bonds are sold by all banks, post offices, and dealers in U.S. Savings Bonds.

CHEC checks your blood pressure

The search for hypertensives: an all-out community effort

by ELEANOR RIVES

Here's what hypertension is not: It is not the stress and strain of living in today's fast-paced, competitive world. It is not an emotion or a state of mind. It is not hysteria, conflict or stress. Hypertension is simply another word for "high blood pressure." Hyper means "in excess" and tension is the force of the blood against the artery walls. When the heart beats, the pressure reaches its high point — the systolic pressure; when the heart relaxes between beats, pressure recedes to its low point — the diastolic pressure.

In recording blood pressure, both readings are taken. If they are consistently — not occasionally — high, the condition is called hypertension.

MILD HYPERTENSION, sometimes even severe hypertension, may produce no symptoms at all. It can only be diagnosed by a physician. Factors as simple as diet, drugs, perhaps a change of living habits, may be all the treatment needed. Unknown or neglected, hypertension can lead to enlargement and weakening of the heart; injury to blood vessels, kidneys and brain; and possible eventual heart attack or stroke.

About 21,790,000 Americans suffer from hypertension, according to the American Heart Association. The great danger lies in the fact that more than half of them are unaware that they have it. Of those who do know, over half are not being treated for it.

TO HELP CHANGE these figures, a battery of nurses armed with sphygmomanometers (the tongue twister that translates to an inflatable cuff, a rubber bulb for pumping air into the cuff and a glass tube with a column of mercury) took up battle stations in four suburban locations — Randhurst, Woodfield, Oakbrook and Lakehurst — to persuade hordes of weekend shoppers to have their blood pressure taken. Free. Anonymously. With no strings attached except one. If their blood pressure reading was high, they were urged to visit their physician for another reading and give him a copy of the nurse's form which would then be sent to the Ciba Pharmaceutical Co.

THROUGHOUT THE country, Ciba has been sponsoring large-scale, mass screening programs, properly termed Community Hypertension Evaluation Clinics (CHEC). On May 18 and 19, with the endorsement of the Illinois State Medical Society, 3,226 people in the four locations were screened. Of these, 660, or about 20 per cent, were referred to their doctors.

The Randhurst and Woodfield screenings were co-sponsored by suburban nurses clubs, the Northwest Pharmaceutical Association and Dr. Stanley M. Zydlow of Northwest Community Hospital, MESA chief of emergency services, who rounded up the necessary sphygmomanometers, half of them new, half of them from Harper College.

It was truly an all-out community effort.

WHEN DENNIS SULLIVAN, Ciba's coordinator of the CHEC program in Illinois, was looking for volunteer help for the Woodfield and Randhurst screenings, he tapped a gusher of enthusiastic, knowledgeable workers in the nurses clubs.

Mrs. Edwin Nolan, then president of the Round Table, representing 18 northwest suburban nurses clubs, recruited six from each of the following clubs: Hoffman Estates, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove, Lombard, Addison and Private Duty Club. They worked in two to three-hour shifts — all day, both days — with loudspeaker announcements almost every 15 minutes steering shoppers to the Schaumburg Room.

They tested 622 people; 103 had high enough readings to be referred to their doctors.

MRS. JOHN FRANKLIN, recruited seven women from the Mount Prospect Nurses Club and three women from the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Club to take readings all day Friday until 9 p.m. in the Randhurst mall.

Mrs. David Mason of the Arlington Heights Nurses Club supplied 13 women from that club to take over the Randhurst station on Saturday. Another Ciba representative, Joe Cortes of Mount Prospect, was so fired with enthusiasm he brought his own team — himself, his wife and daughter — to lighten the paperwork for the nurses.

People were standing in line. In those two days, a record 1,539 people were screened; 305 were referred to their doctors.

THE NURSES felt that their position in the mall right in the stream of shoppers was a definite advantage. "We were right where we could grab people," said Helen Jensen of Arlington Heights, who confided that she "always feels good putting on her whites."

"Why you could have a stroke walking around with pressure that high," she said to a strong, hefty middle-aged man she tested.

"Lady, you convinced me!" he answered.

Anne Franklin, who worked from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Friday, considered the screening a fantastic community service.

She was impressed by the fact that people seemed so conscientious about their health. A good percentage of those with high readings intended to go right home and call their doctors.

"AGE WASN'T a factor," she said. "Senior citizens took special pride in normal readings. One 83-year-old woman with normal blood pressure seemed to be in the best of health while a 20-year-old athletic-looking boy had a reading that was dangerously high."

At Woodfield, Pat Reickenbacker was surprised at how many people were frightened at the idea of having their blood pressure taken, a procedure that is completely painless, effortless for them and as simple as listening to a heartbeat with a stethoscope. In this case, the doctor or nurse "listens" to an artery in the subject's arm.

She was surprised, also, at the number of young people with high readings — "easily one out of five."

AT BOTH RANDHURST and Woodfield, the nurses tried not to alarm anyone, explaining that blood pressure varies from day to day and is influenced by emotions, body chemistry, heredity, stress and other factors.

"We think of a high reading as alarm clock," said Marie Nolan, "a signal that something else could be wrong."

Mrs. Franklin would like to see a screening program in effect on a permanent twice-a-year basis. "After all, a person doesn't make a trip to the doctor just to have his blood pressure checked," she said.

"Every individual should know his blood type, his normal temperature and his usual blood pressure. Every individual has the right to know his own physical condition."

If you missed screening, more testing is scheduled

So enthusiastic were the nurses participating in the recent hypertension screening program — so convinced are they of the value of mass screening — that many will continue with testing programs.

The Elk Grove Nurses Club will test blood pressures in its Health Booth at the Jaycees' carnival at Lions Park (south of Elk Grove Boulevard, a few blocks east of Arlington Heights Road) tomorrow night; Saturday from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m.; and Sunday from 3 to 11 p.m. Only this time it will cost something — maybe all of a quarter, which will go toward the club's lending closet.

Go ahead, go to the booth, have your blood pressure taken. Maybe it will save you from having a heart attack or a stroke. You don't find bargains like that anymore.

IF YOU MISS the carnival, there will be another mass screening program at the Wheeling Shopping Center at Milwaukee and Dundee Roads on Saturday, July 14, between 10 and 4 p.m. and at the Ranch Mart Shopping Center at Dundee and Buffalo Grove Roads, same day, same time.

At each of these centers, the nurses' station will be situated near the Mark Drugs Walgreen Agency. The free blood pressure testing will be done by volunteers from the Buffalo Grove-Wheeling Nurses Club.

Because of modern medicines, hypertension and its resulting complications can be effectively treated and controlled.

About one in every six adults has high blood pressure. Do you?

While parents are in court

by GEORGETTE WAGNER

CHICAGO — A courtroom is no place for a child, particularly when his home is being torn apart in divorce action.

To spare children such emotional stress, Our Children Foundation (OCF) recently opened a courtroom childcare center here which its founders believe is the nation's first.

The supervised playroom in the Chicago Civic Center is free of charge to any child, 2 to 12 years old. During its first six weeks, 90 children showed up.

Painted a sprightly yellow and orange with children's drawings on the wall and child size furniture, the center contrasts with the austere courtrooms surrounding it.

On a recent Friday morning, six children were seated primly at two miniature tables, munching cookies and sipping soda. They soon abandoned their party behavior for the real fun. The room is filled with toys and the children bounced from one toy to another.

A 6-YEAR-OLD hopped on a hobby horse. Three potential artists gleefully scribbled on tiny easels. A 4-year-old concocted "pretend" dinners. A little boy donned racer's goggles and hat to commandeer a plastic sanitation truck.

"It's like going on a Christmas shopping spree," Mrs. Beverly Steele, an administrative aide, said.

A 5-year-old breathlessly told her mother, "We had a party. Cookies and pop. And she read me a story. And..."

"We find people bring children to many courts because they have no place to leave them safely," Circuit Court Chief Judge John S. Boyle said when he announced the playroom's opening. "The center will be a boon, not just to divorce courts but to all the courts."

The energetic founder of the center and its supporting organization, Mrs. Rhoda Bresler, said, "I went into the Civic Center before the daycare facility existed and saw children sitting alone in the corridor. They looked frightened. I saw one child crying."

SOME PARENTS can't afford babysitters, some have nowhere to leave their children and others reject help from friends to conceal that they are in court, Mrs. Bresler said.

To use the facility, parents obtain a form from the presiding judge. The same parents must drop off and pick up his child, ensuring the parent can be located in emergency. The procedure is also a precaution in custody cases.

Mrs. Bresler expressed concern for children whose parents were getting a divorce. "We try to spare them the trauma of seeing their homes torn apart," she said.

"We realize we cannot erase whatever has been going on for two to five years," Mrs. Steele said. "The center is another side where people do care for kids. A bright side."

She stressed the center was strictly a child's playroom. "We don't question, apologize or quiz," she said.

WHILE THE CHILDREN appeared to enjoy their daycare in court (one child cried when he had to leave), their parents seemed equally pleased. One mother, collecting her 4-and 6-year-olds, said, "I think it's one of the greatest things that's happened. It's real convenient. And you can hear in court. You don't have to say shhh."

The playroom is supported by dues-paying members and fund-raising events.

"I want it to be free of taxpayer's money," Mrs. Bresler said. "If it isn't funded privately, they'll have to increase the public's taxes. I don't want children to be a pawn."

She said the foundation wants to establish childcare centers throughout Chicago and Illinois and that a federal volunteer organization approached her to head a drive to open up courtroom daycare centers across the nation.

Honeymoon in New Orleans

Newlyweds Susan and Dennis Kroll spent a week's honeymoon in New Orleans after their May 25 wedding in Immaculate Conception Church, Chicago.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Michalski of 909 E. Kenilworth, Palatine. Dennis' parents are the Witold Krolls of Park Ridge.

The couple exchanged vows and rings at two in the afternoon, then greeted 165 guests at a reception at Park Ridge Inn. They are making their home in Des Plaines.

As she came down the church aisle, Susan wore an A-line gown featuring a peau d'ange lace bodice and white organza skirt. The bodice had a high neck and bishop sleeves. The organza skirt ended in a scalloped lace hem and chapel train. THE BRIDE'S triple, chapel-length veil was secured by a portrait cap of peau d'ange lace trimmed with satin ribbon. Her bouquet was a nosegay of white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Susan's sister, Judi, was her maid of honor. She wore a pale green voile gown with white Venise lace yoke and cuffs on the bishop sleeves. The full skirt had a flounce at the hemline.

The bridesmaids, attired exactly as the maid of honor, were Dennis' sister, Judith, Mrs. John Rindemacher of Chicago and Mrs. John Sweeney of Bensenville. They carried white daisies tied with yellow streamers.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Kroll

THE BRIDE'S young niece and nephew, Debra and Michael Michalski of Palatine, were also in the wedding procession. Five-year-old Debra was flower girl

Bride, groom wear matching eyelet ensembles at wedding

"His and hers" matching outfits in ivory eyelet were worn by Donald F. Savage Jr. and his bride, Jackie Lynn Archer, for their wedding May 30 in Messiah Lutheran Church, Burlington, Iowa.

Both Jackie's 18th Century gown with leg o'mutton sleeves and full skirt of ruffled tiers and Don's long Nehru shirt were made by Jackie's mother, Nola Archer, Burlington. Jackie is also the daughter of Jack L. Archer, Burlington, and Don is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald F. Savage, 328 S. Wheeling Rd., Wheeling.

A graduate of Wheeling High School, Don received his B.A. in physics from Knox College and is currently studying for his master's in physical chemistry at Iowa State University, Ames. He will graduate in August. A student teacher at Iowa State for the past two years, Don works in the Atomic Energy Commission Lab at Ames.

HIS BRIDE is a junior at Iowa State University studying fisheries and wildlife biology — journalism curriculum. Don and Jackie met during her freshman year when Don was her chemistry lab instructor.

The couple wrote their own vows for the contemporary double ring service which was held at 7 p.m. in candlelight. Official witnesses, who sat in the audience, were a couple Jackie and Don stood up for last year.

The service was followed by a reception for 100 guests in the bride's mother's home after which the newlyweds honeymooned at the Amana Colonies, Iowa. The couple is now making their home in Boone, Iowa.

Childbirth film

"The Story of Eric," a film about the Lamaze method of childbirth, will be shown at 8:30 Friday night at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village.

Techniques involved in preparation for childbirth as well as actual labor and delivery will be shown. All expectant parents as well as the interested public are invited. A question and answer period will follow the film and a recently delivered couple who used the method will share their experience with the audience.

Further information is available from Mrs. George Levitt, 882-5656.

Reception in church garden

A buffet reception for 300 guests in the garden of the church followed the June 16 wedding of Lynn Hughson and Eric Delzer. The couple were married in the Elm Grove Methodist Church, Elm Grove, Wis., where Lynn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Hughson, 202 E. Council Trail, Mount Prospect, teaches art in Elm Grove Schools in nearby Brookfield.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Armand F. Delzer, Waukegan, Wis., is with Delzer Lithograph in Waukegan. He is a '64 graduate of the University of Michigan. Lynn, a '66 graduate of Prospect High School, is a '70 graduate of Carroll College, Waukegan.

For the 2 o'clock, double ring service Lynn chose a mid-Victorian organza gown in candlelight. The high bodice and full, bishop sleeves were appliqued in flowers with pearl centers. Her bonnet headpiece was covered with an heirloom mantilla of Belgium lace.

MAID OF HONOR Martha Mayer, New Berlin, Wis., wore a coral pink chiffon gown trimmed in candlelight Guipure lace as did the bridesmaids, Mrs. D. A. Sauer, Evanston, Mrs. Stephen Silles, Green Bay, Wis., and the groom's sister, Jane Delzer, Cincinnati, Ohio.

The groom's brother, Marc Delzer, Waukegan, was best man, and the couple's brothers, Kirk Delzer, Wau-

The newlyweds honeymooned for a week in Georgia and are now making their home in Waukegan.

Going to Europe this summer? Beware of the Swiss watch swindlers!

Peddlers selling fake Swiss watches on the streets to unsuspecting tourists have been raking in profits ranging from 3,000 to 5,000 per cent and have generated great concern in both the watchmaking and tourist industries in Europe, according to United Press International.

The best defense for the tourist is simply not to buy a watch in the streets, especially in Italy. The watches are turned out by legitimate watch factories using movements bought from France. Worth about $5 to $10, the watches are bought in quantities (around 400,000 annually) by swindlers, who sell them to tourists for $50 to $500.

Switzerland's Watchmaking Federation has estimated between 3 and 4 million fakes are being sold annually all over the world. West Germany, Latin America and the United States have also reported the problem.

Tourists warned of fake Swiss watch peddlers

Feminine deodorant sprays may soon come under further restriction by the Food and Drug Administration. The agency reportedly is readying a proposal that manufacturers of the sprays be required to label them with warnings that the product may cause irritation and that it has no known medicinal benefit.

The requirement could cut further into sales, which were pinched by the recent ban of hexachlorophene because of adverse effects.

The industry leader, Alberto-Culver, manufacturer of FDS, is expected to protest — but not too much. The label requirement would still leave the products on the shelf, where they chalked up sales of $55 million last year. A legal battle could conceivably end up with the sprays either banned or controlled as drugs.

An FDA advisory, a panel of obstetricians and gynecologists last fall urged that the deodorants be classified as drugs, which would require controlled tests proving safety and effectiveness. As cosmetics, the sprays need not be so proven.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: You could do me and countless others a great service by telling us whether that old faithful — sticky flypaper — is still made, and where we can buy it. They did a good job and we never had to resort to sprays which are always a worry when there are children and pets around. — Mrs. Mary Beth Brogan

Not until you brought it up did I realize that I haven't seen one of those sticky strips in years. True, they are unsightly, but I agree they did a good job.

First thought was that they had gone out (in the name of progress). Early checks around retail stores brought only odd looks. But then Sol Blank, who is in the wholesale hardware field, said he only recently got a shipment from Japan.

Now where you are going to be able to buy them I don't know, but since they are being made and imported, your hardware store ought to be able to order them for you. Luck.

The panel also warned that there is "some presumptive evidence that they (the deodorants) aren't safe."

Consumers Union a year and a half ago began urging consumers not to use the sprays and has been calling for action by the FDA. CU reported that soap and water is a more effective hygienic and that complaints of irritation caused by the sprays have been received at 10 times the rate FDA considers normal for cosmetics.

The "foam" plastic used in mattresses and pillows, furniture cushioning, tables, chairs, panels and siding, insulation, plumbing and lighting fixtures and innumerable other places around the home creates a serious fire hazard, the Federal Trade Commission has charged. The agency has ordered 28 chemical companies and two trade organizations to stop using invalid tests for testing flammability and misrepresenting the plastics as "non-burning" and "self-extinguishing." The manufacturers are being asked to provide warnings of the fire hazard and to take steps to minimize it.

More than one billion pounds of the plastics were marketed in 1972, mostly for use in construction and home furnishings as substitutes for such materials as wood, glass and cotton. But, the FTC said, the plastics spread flame and generate extreme heat more quickly than the other materials, and also produce more toxic and flammable gases and smoke.

The FTC charged that the industry has known of these hazards since at least 1967 and failed to disclose the facts or to attempt remedies.

Two Palatine residents were recently named to consumer posts. Jacquelyn Kendall, co-director of National Consumers United, an Evanston-based consumer organization dealing with the food industry, was reappointed to the Midwest Consumer Advisory Board of the Federal Trade Commission. She also was elected North Central Regional director of the newly formed National Consumer Congress.

Marc Gaynes, student co-ordinator of NCU, was also elected to the board of the Consumer Congress.

The National Consumer Congress was convened by Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal (D-NY) following the April meat boycott. A meeting of the North Central Regional conference is tentatively planned for July.

Dear Dorothy: These suggestions might be of help to Betty W. in using up sewing scraps.

If she's crocheting with a fine hook, she can make the holes in the material with the hook. These holes can also be made with a large unthreaded needle set at the longest stitch.

If she's fortunate enough to have a hemstitching cam attachment, this would also make lovely holes. And if she gets tired of working with the scraps, she can find a quilting friend who'll be delighted to accept or trade scraps. — Dorothy A. Brown

Dear Dorothy: Tried the reader's suggestion of cornmeal mush slices dipped in flour so they would brown. I didn't care for the taste so tried it plain fried in margarine but with a lid. Came out fine, browned nicely. Just love your column. Have added lots of calories from your recipes — but keep 'em coming. — Dorothy York

Irwin-Fodor wedding a family affair

Mrs. Gene Fodor

The May 26 wedding of Laurie Jean Irwin of Arlington Heights and Gene Fodor of Niles was a real family affair.

Several relatives took part, headed by the minister who married the couple at four in the afternoon in the First United Methodist Church of Arlington. He is Laurie's grandfather, Dr. John C. Irwin. Assisting him was Dr. Charles Jarvis, pastor of the church, who many years ago was a divinity student of Dr. Irwin's.

Before the double ring ceremony began, the altar candles were lighted by the bride's youngest brother, John, and her cousin, Bradley Irwin.

Laurie's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. James Irwin of Detroit, also shared in the nuptials. Mrs. Irwin as soloist and her husband recording the entire ceremony and random remarks by guests in the receiving line.

THE BRIDE is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence C. Irwin of 2515 E. Olive St. Gene's parents are the James Fodors of Niles.

Three of Laurie's sisters were in the wedding procession. Linda Irwin of Des Moines was maid of honor; Mrs. Liz Bremner of Mundelein and Sharon Irwin, bridesmaids.

Gene also had relatives attending him. His brother Gary was best man and three cousins ushered. Ron Glera is from Niles and George Stachnik and Larry Powers from Chicago.

There were three other bridesmaids, Lyn Buchele of Evanston and Pat Tackes and Sheri Jaroch of Elk Grove. Two other ushers were Bill Spahn and Jim Paluch of Chicago.

Laurie chose a princess styled gown of ivory Lutesong, enhanced by a wide center panel of Alencon lace. Lace flounce cuffs trimmed the long sleeves and the lace also edged the chapel train. Completing the ensemble, made by the bride's mother, was a chapel train edged in lace and flowing from a lace crown.

The bridal bouquet was composed of cymbidium orchids, Tailsman roses and stephanotis.

LAURIE'S ATTENDANTS were gownned alike in pale yellow and apricot floral prints with a cape collar lined in apricot crepe. They wore white garden hats trimmed with yellow ribbons and carried white baskets filled with Tailsman roses, white carnations and baby's breath.

Each of the girls wore an antique silver and yellow porcelain locket which was a gift from the bride.

Dinner and dancing at Carpenters Hall in Des Plaines followed for 200 guests.

The couple honeymooned in Montego Bay, Jamaica, and since their return are living in Rogers Park, Chicago. The bride works for Equitable Life Assurance, Evanston; the groom for J. S. Paluch Co., Chicago.

Laurie graduated from New Trier High School and Sawyer Business School in Evanston. Gene attended Notre Dame High, Quincy (Ill.) College and served in the U. S. Army.

The Potting Shed

by Mary B. Good

Last week, the bird lady and I gave a program at a women's club spring banquet on the predator aspect of organic gardening, in which birds are attracted, fed, and protected in order to help control garden pests.

So that people could see and hear the various birds, we played taped bird calls along with our slides. Then we got around to asking the women what birds they thought they would like to be if they could be a bird. We told them that the choice gives insight into personality.

For instance, if you like owls, you seek stability, maturity and value your personal dignity.

The choice of a hummingbird means a person is clumsy; a goldfinch personality craves money. Eagle people are submissive, while woodpeckers are down-trodden. Robins are maternal, and a pelican has been on a diet too long! If your favorite bird is a vulture, you probably need a head shrinker! It was all in fun, of course!

SINCE THEN, however, I've begun to apply the psychology to flower fanciers. Join me, if you care to, in a quick quiz. The following is a list of garden favorites, pick the flower you most prefer to grow or you simply admire: roses, daisies, columbine, trillium, orchids, hoya, geraniums, poppies, nasturtiums, dandelions, water lilies, bleeding hearts, gladiolus, iris, peonies, pansies, candytuft.

If you chose columbine, you have a quick mind. Roses mean a complex personality, as opposed to the daisy person who is simple and uncomplicated.

"Don't fence me in," might be the song the trillium or other wildflower fancier chooses — she is very independent. If you love orchids, you probably thrive on challenge. Hoya people are idealists, real head-in-the clouds dreamers, while geranium folks are down-to-earth practical. Poppy people are free with their money; nasturtiums are so tight that they squeak. Dandelions are non-conformists.

IF YOU chose pansies, you probably are an extrovert — true introverts would have chosen candytuft.

Water lilies are addicted to recreation, but if you are a stay-at-home, you probably would prefer the bleeding-heart for a favorite flower.

Gladiolus fans prefer a structured existence; iris buffs have sex hangups.

Now if you chose peonies, you are probably passionate, dynamic, lovable, vivacious, beautiful and talented. You may ask how I came up with that one — er, peony is MY favorite flower!

Now that I have conned you into some truly frivolous reading that you can take with a grain of tea-leaf reading, I will leave you with at least one good gardening tip that respects the educational responsibility of this column to its readers:

THE VALUE of mulching is at least four-fold: It smothers weeds, it conserves water, it stabilizes soil temperatures, and controls garden pests. Remember, too, that mulching also will retard the growth of young seedlings if applied too early in the season. A good rule of thumb is to wait until the Fourth of July to apply mulch. Wet newspapers covered with grass clippings are a good choice for the vegetable garden. Mulch around the trunk of trees with stones, pea gravel or the like to discourage rabbits and rodents from digging.

Redwood bark is fine in the flower beds, and if you drop your seed potatoes in a straw mulch instead of burying them in the soil, you won't even have to dig them up to harvest them. Primroses, overgreens and wildflowers do well with a mulch of pine needles, as do all acid-loving plants.

And for all the gardeners with complex personalities, try mulching those roses of yours with cocoa bean hulls to cut down on the instance of black spot.

AND EVERYTHING NICE ABOUT FOOD

For an exciting new barbecue menu designed to get you out of the kitchen and onto the patio, start with an old favorite, kabobs. The word also spelled "kebab" and "cabob" means a small piece of roasted meat. It takes on a new meaning now as cooked zucchini, fresh whole mushrooms and cherry tomatoes stand in for the meat.

The vegetables are alternated on 7-inch skewers and placed on an outside grill. A spicy Parmesan butter sauce, tart with lemon juice, is the flavor extra that gives these kabobs their unique difference.

Butter goes inside the rotisserie-broiled chicken — and is the basting secret, too. The butter not only adds flavor but helps in the browning.

Kabobs star in patio performance

The cottage slaw salad is made special with a cottage cheese dressing. Crisp and cool, the salad is just the right complement to this outdoor meal.

Complete the barbecue with a luscious fruit-topped pie. The vanilla wafer crust and lime sherbet-vanilla ice cream filling can be made ahead of time and frozen. Just before serving arrange chilled fruit on top of the pie, then crown it with glaze. Refrigerate for a few minutes before serving.

Butter-Barbecued Chicken

- 2 broiler-fryer chickens (2 1/2-3 lbs. each)
- Salt
- 1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter
- Melted butter

Wash chickens; pat dry. Rub cavities with salt. Place 2 tablespoons butter in cavity of each chicken. Push rotisserie rod through center of chickens; place birds close together anchoring securely with prongs. Tie tail and legs together and wings flat to body. Brush chickens well with melted butter. Place rod in position and start motor. Cook over medium coals about 1 1/2 hours or until tender. Makes 8 servings.

Vegetable Kabobs

- 4 small zucchini
- Fresh whole mushrooms
- Cherry tomatoes
- 6 tablespoons (3/4 stick) butter
- 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon leaf oregano

Cook zucchini in small amount of boiling water about 10 minutes; cut in 1/2-inch slices. In a saucepan melt butter; stir in cheese, lemon juice and oregano. To prepare Kabobs: Alternate zucchini, mushrooms and tomatoes on eight 7-inch skewers. Place on grill 5-6 inches from coals. Cook 8-15 minutes turning occasionally and brushing with Parmesan butter sauce. Makes 8 servings.

Cottage Slaw

- 2 cups cottage cheese
- 1/4 cup milk
- 3 tablespoons wine vinegar
- 2 teaspoons prepared mustard
- 3/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 6 cups shredded cabbage
- 3/4 cup chopped celery
- 1/2 cup chopped green pepper
- 1/3 cup chopped pimiento
- 2 tablespoons sliced green onions

In a small mixing bowl beat cottage cheese until fairly smooth; add milk, vinegar, mustard, salt and Worcestershire sauce. In a large bowl combine cabbage, celery, green pepper, pimiento and onions. Just before serving pour cottage cheese dressing over cabbage and toss. Makes 6 servings.

Fruit-Topped Ice Cream Pie

CRUST:

- 2/3 cup vanilla wafer crumbs (15 vanilla wafers)
- 3/4 cup coconut cookie crumbs (10 bar cookies)
- 1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter, melted

FILLING:

- 1 pint lime sherbet
- 1 pint vanilla ice cream

FRUIT TOPPING:

- 2 fresh peaches, peeled and sliced
- Sugar
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- 1 cup sliced strawberries, chilled
- 1/2 cup halved and seeded grapes, chilled

To prepare Crust: In a bowl mix together vanilla wafer and coconut cookie crumbs and butter. Press mixture evenly and firmly against sides and bottom of 9-inch pie plate. Chill. Spread sherbet in crust; freeze. Spread vanilla ice cream over sherbet; freeze. Peel and slice peaches; sweeten to taste and chill. Prepare fruit topping shortly before serving. Drain syrup from peaches; add sufficient water to make 1/2 cup. In a saucepan combine 1 tablespoon sugar and cornstarch. Gradually add peach syrup. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Cook 2 additional minutes. Stir in lemon juice; chill. Arrange fruit on top of pie; pour glaze over all. Refrigerate 5-10 minutes before serving.

Macedoine of fruit

Diet-minded desserts

These sweets are easy on calories

Desserts as well as appetizer, soup, salad or entree can be both nutritious and low caloric.

Macedoine is the French word for medley or mixture of fruits; fruit salad in English. Fruits provide vitamins A and C, some minerals and carbohydrate and a tiny bit of fat. One cup of fruit salad sprinkled lightly with sugar will average between 80 to 100 calories. Fruit salad really perks up when topped with a spoonful of rum flavored sauce. There are two sauces to choose from. Caribbean Sauce is a combination of fruit juice and rum while Creamy Snow Sauce contains cream cheese, skimmed milk and rum. A dollop of either does not add appreciably to the total calories per serving of this dessert.

Meringue Shells are simple-to-make and very versatile. Any number of sherbets, ice milks, puddings, or fruit salad may be served in a meringue. Each shell is about 80 calories. A meringue with a small scoop of Avocado Buttermilk Sherbet totals about 200 calories. Egg whites help satisfy your daily requirements for protein; vitamins and minerals will probably be present in whatever you fill the meringue with.

Dieters have long relied on plain sponge cake when they had a yen for cake. Yogurt Cake is also a plain cake that helps satisfy dairy, protein and carbohydrate requirements without being high caloric. Each slice will be about 200 calories or less depending on thickness.

Melon Surprise is an especially attractive dessert for guests. Fruit is molded in a melon shell, then sliced for serving.

INDIVIDUAL MERINGUE SHELLS

2 egg whites
1/8 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon cream of tartar
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
Beat egg whites, salt and cream of tartar until foamy throughout. Add sugar, 2 tablespoons at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Continue beating until meringue will form stiff shiny peaks. Add vanilla and beat well. (Entire beating process takes about 10 minutes.)

Using a spoon or pastry tube, shape meringue in rounds on brown paper cut to fit baking sheet, making each about 3 inches in diameter and 1 1/4 inches high. With a spoon, make a depression in the center of each. Bake at 250 degrees for 40 minutes; turn control to off and let remain overnight in oven. Makes 4 to 6 shells. About 80 calories per shell.

Note: Recipe may be doubled for 8 to 10 shells.

AVOCADO BUTTERMILK SHERBET

4 cups buttermilk
1 cup granulated sugar
1 cup light corn syrup
1/2 cup lemon juice
6 tablespoons grated lemon peel
2 cups pureed ripe avocado
Mix thoroughly buttermilk, sugar, corn syrup, lemon juice and lemon peel. Freeze. Remove from freezer and beat in ripe avocado. Return to freezer. Makes about 2 quarts. About 150 calories per medium scoop.

YOGURT CAKE

3 eggs
1 cup granulated sugar
1 cup yogurt
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
Cream eggs with 1 cup sugar. Add yogurt, flour and baking soda. Beat until smooth. Pour into greased 8-inch pan and bake at 375 degrees for 30 to 40 minutes or until cake tester inserted into center comes out clean. Remove from oven. Makes 6 to 8 servings. 200 to 250 calories per serving.

MACEDOINE OF FRUIT

Choose fresh, frozen or canned fruit for contrast in color, shape and texture. Allow 1/2 cup or more per serving. Some particularly good choices are avocado in slices or cubes, orange and grapefruit sections, seeded grapes, melon balls, any of the berry family, pineapple, pears, peaches, plums, nectarines, apricots and apples. Squeeze lemon juice over any fresh fruits so they won't darken. Drain the canned or frozen fruits. Select a novel serving dish such as large crystal vase, compote bowl or brandy snifter. Layer the fruits, sprinkling a little powdered sugar between each layer. Serve with a dollop of Creamy Snow Sauce or Caribbean Sauce. 80 to 100 calories per cup of fruit.

Creamy Snow Sauce
1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese
1/4 cup skimmed milk

1/3 cup granulated sugar
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon dark rum or rum extract
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
Put cream cheese and milk in a bowl; mash the cheese with a fork. Beat with an electric mixer until mixture is completely smooth. Add sugar, lemon juice, rum and lemon rind. Continue beating until well blended. Chill. Makes 1 1/2 cups. About 38 calories per tablespoon.

Caribbean Sauce

2 teaspoons cornstarch
1 cup unsweetened fruit juice, fresh, frozen or canned
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons rum (optional)
Dissolve cornstarch in a small amount of the 1 cup juice. Mix remaining juice with sugar and lemon juice in a saucepan. Bring to a boil. Add dissolved cornstarch and continue boiling until sauce is slightly thickened and clear. Cool. Stir in rum and thoroughly chill. Makes about 1-1/3 cups. About 18 calories per tablespoon.

MELON SURPRISE

Ripe cantaloupe, Persian or Spanish melon
3 envelopes unflavored gelatin
1 cup rose or dry white wine
1 cup hot water
1/2 cup granulated sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 cup diced fruit, fresh, frozen or canned
Cut a slice off the top of the melon. Scoop out the seeds and drain the interior very well. Soften gelatin in the wine, then dissolve it in hot water. Add sugar and lemon juice, stirring until dissolved. Set melon in a bowl so that it won't topple. Fill melon with well drained fruit. Pour gelatin mixture over the fruit until it reaches the top. Replace melon cap and chill several hours or overnight until gelatin is very firm. To serve, slice melon horizontally into thick slices. Makes 4 to 6 servings. About 160 to 220 calories per serving.

Note: A large melon will require additional gelatin and fruit.

Protein for salads and desserts

by JEANNE LESEM

When you're looking for ways to stretch expensive protein in the form of beef, veal, pork and lamb, put supplementary protein in salads, salad dressings, vegetable mixtures and even desserts.

Here are some recipes that do just that with eggs, cheese and other dairy products and canned tuna. They're geared to summer meals and some can be made a day ahead.

Cheesy salad dressing is good on cooked mixed vegetables or as a dip for raw ones, such as carrots, celery sticks, cauliflower and broccoli. Combine 1/2 cup of crumbled blue cheese with 1/2 cup of cream style cottage cheese, 1/4 cup of plain yogurt, 1/4 teaspoon of liquid red pepper sauce and 2 tablespoons of milk. Blend well and chill before serving. Makes 1 cup.

Cottage cheese is the major protein source in spicy cole slaw. In a large bowl, combine 1/2 cup of mayonnaise with 1 teaspoon each of prepared yellow mustard and seasoned salt or chili powder. Blend well. Add 1 cup (8 ounces) of cottage cheese and 4 cups of finely shredded cabbage. Toss to coat well with dressing. Chill. Makes 4 servings.

Yogurt supplies the protein in this low calorie fruit and vegetable salad. Combine 1/2 cup of plain yogurt with 1 tablespoon each of lemon juice and prepared yellow mustard and 1/2 teaspoon each of sugar, onion salt and paprika. Stir in 2 unpeeled apples, cored and chopped, and 3 cups of unpeeled thinly sliced raw zucchini. Chill. Serve on lettuce leaves or a bed of shredded lettuce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

THIS MOLDED main dish salad contains only 135 calories per serving.

Sprinkle one envelope of unflavored gelatin over 1/2 cup of cold water in a small saucepan. Stir constantly over low heat 3 to 4 minutes, or until gelatin dissolves. Stir in 1 teaspoon of salt, 1 teaspoon of spicy prepared mustard and 1/4 teaspoon of liquid red pepper sauce. Chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture is consistency of unbeaten egg white. Mix 1 1/2 cups of chopped fresh uncooked spinach with 4 tablespoons of lemon juice. Place 1/4 cup of cottage cheese and 3 tablespoons of water in an electric blender container, cover and process at high speed until smooth, or beat until smooth with an electric mixer. Add spinach mixture, cottage cheese and 4 hard-cooked, diced eggs to gelatin and mix well. Chill until firm in 3 cup mold. Unmold to serve and garnish with small fresh spinach leaves. Makes 4 servings.

Tuna, tomato and zucchini salad should be made several hours to a day ahead. Drain liquid from a 1-pound 12-ounce can of tomatoes — reserving tomatoes — into a small saucepan. Sprinkle 2 envelopes of unflavored gelatin on the tomato juice and stir constantly over low heat about 5 minutes, or until gelatin dissolves. Remove from heat, stir in 1/4 cup of minced raw onion or 2 tablespoons of instant minced or chopped onion that has been reconstituted in water and drained, 2 tablespoons of chopped fresh parsley, 1/2 teaspoon of dried leaf basil and 2 teaspoons of salt. Chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture is consistency of unbeaten egg white. Cut the drained tomatoes into small pieces and fold them into the gelatin mixture along with 1 cup of shredded raw zucchini and 1 1/2 or 2-ounce can of tuna, drained. Chill until firm in a 6-cup mold. Makes 8 servings.

A PINT of fresh strawberries stretches to six half cup servings in this frozen dessert. Reserve 3 berries from a 1-pint basket. Place remainder in an electric blender container with 1 pint of vanilla yogurt, 1 egg white, 1/2 cup of light corn syrup, 1/4 cup of sugar and 1 tablespoon of lemon juice. Blend until smooth. Freeze until firm in a shallow 1-quart bowl. Scoop into chilled dessert dishes and garnish each with a strawberry half. (United Press International)

Franfare

by Fran Heckart

Home cooks who work or operate on busy schedules are faced with an additional budget variable — time. They're expected to prepare appealing, hopefully economical, meals in limited time.

Summer weather only adds to the problem since a hot, steamy kitchen usually results in a wilted cook and loss of appetite.

Unfortunately, many of the inexpensive made-from-scratch recipes require more preparation time than higher priced convenience foods. And all of these economical meat cuts call for time consuming cooking methods.

While oven casseroles are usually cheap to make, baking time often is in inverse ratio to price — and an over-heated kitchen is inevitable.

One pot, range top casseroles make good alternatives. In this case, the home-made kind are just as easy to prepare as ready-mixes that cost more per serving. Rice and pasta provide the basis for a wide variety of dishes.

MAIN DISH salads that combine raw cooked ingredients should not be overlooked. They can be inexpensive as well as quick and easy to make.

Make your own salad dressings, barbecue sauces and marinades. They can be mixed together in minutes, are cheaper than bottled ones or those made from dry mixes and infinitely better tasting.

Individual meat loaves cook in just 15 minutes in a pre-heated 400-degree oven if you bake them in muffin tins instead of the traditional loaf pan. If your meat mixture contains pork, be sure the juices no longer run pink when you serve the loaves.

Seasonal fresh fruit, alone or with cheese, makes a hard-to-beat summer dessert. There is no involved preparation and fruits are usually available at moderate costs during the season.

WHEN APPETITES flag during a heat wave, serve a cold soup (made the evening before) and hot salad. Main dishes containing fish, cheese, eggs or poultry in addition to raw and cooked vegetables are also easy to prepare.

Pressure cooked vegetable salads take less than five minutes cooking time in some cases.

One example is dilled green beans vinaigrette. Snap ends from 1 1/2 pounds of washed, drained green beans. Place 1/2 cup of water and the rack in a 4-quart pressure cooker or 1 cup of water for a 6-quart cooker. Add beans and coat them with a well shaken mixture of 3 tablespoons salad oil, 1 tablespoon vinegar and 1 teaspoon dried dill weed or 2 tablespoons chopped fresh dill weed.

Close cover of cooker and cook as manufacturer directs, but cut cooking time to about 2 minutes if you prefer a crispier salad. Cool cooker at once under cold running water, pour beans and their liquid into a dish and serve warm or at room temperature.

If you substitute frozen cut green beans, remove cooker from heat as soon as pressure regulator starts to rock and cool it at once.

A special snap for green beans

Spices and herbs dress up any green vegetable. Add some onion powder and red pepper in condensed cream of mushroom soup for a different sauce to top Snappy Green Beans.

SNAPPY GREEN BEANS
2 packages (9 ounces each) frozen French-style green beans
1 can (10 1/2 ounces) condensed cream of mushroom soup
1/4 cup can milk
1 teaspoon onion powder
1/8 teaspoon ground red pepper
1/2 cup coarsely crumbled corn chips

Prepare green beans as label directs. Drain. In a medium saucepan combine soup, milk, onion powder and red pepper. Simmer 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Stir in corn chips. Pour over green beans. Makes 8 portions.

Springtime salad with mushrooms

Cukes add salad crunch

Salads are at their crunchy best when crisp, flavorful cucumbers are added. This tapered vegetable, available year 'round, blends beautifully with so many of its garden companions. Our molded salad, which combines cucumbers with onion, celery, green pepper and fresh tomato is a great "go-with" for any fish or meat entree. It makes 8 to 10 generous servings, can be prepared early in the day or even the day before serving, and is a handsome addition to the buffet or dinner table.

Buy firm, well-shaped cucumbers with good green color. Keep them in the humid part of your refrigerator and use within a few days.

MOLDED GARDEN SALAD

3 envelopes unflavored gelatin
3 1/2 cups cold water, divided
6 tablespoons sugar
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon minced fresh onion
3/4 cup fresh lemon juice
1 1/2 cups chopped pared, seeded cucumber
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup chopped green pepper

Boom in oranges

The tonnage of oranges produced in Florida during the 1972-73 citrus season will be more than the combined tonnage of all other tree fruits from all 50 states, says the Florida Citrus Mutual. Mutual said total orange production in Florida in the 1971-72 season was 6,388,000 tons, with a projected tonnage in the 1972-73 season of 7,740,000 tons. This compares with the output nationally in 1971-72 for apples, peaches, pears, cherries, plums and apricots of 6,187,000 tons.

Citrus processing

Florida Citrus Mutual predicts that 92 per cent of the 1972-73 Florida citrus crop will be used in production of citrus products.

The giant growers cooperative says that 74 per cent will be used for frozen concentrated orange juice, 13 per cent will go into chilled orange juice and the rest will be used for other products such as sections and salads.

"In the mushroom world it's always night and always springtime," a poet has romanticized. "It's always softly dark, with the cool dampness of an April evening. Mushrooms are cool and mossy — like eating violets!"

Beautiful to behold, too, as witness the Mushroom Jewel Salad, a topaz mold of lemon gelatin studded with slices of fresh mushrooms, diced celery and apple. Italian dressing is stirred right into the mixture before it sets.

This salad should be started several hours in advance. To arrange the mushrooms and celery artistically, spoon the gelatin into the mold in three layers. The first layer, at the bottom of the mold, should be about an inch deep — just enough gelatin to hold your arrangement of mushroom slices. Let it chill.

Add the celery and apple to the rest of the gelatin and keep it at room temperature until time to layer it, each layer decorated with sliced mushrooms and chilled to hold them in place. This is really a very easy salad and one which will be much admired by your guests.

MARINATED MUSHROOMS and Peppers is a luscious dish, redolent of garlic and oregano. Serve as a relish after the mixture has had a chance to marinate for 12 hours or longer.

MUSHROOM JEWEL SALAD

1/2 pound fresh mushrooms
2 1/2 cups boiling water
2 packages (3 oz. each) lemon flavor gelatin
1/2 cup bottled Italian salad dressing
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 cup diced apple
1/2 cup diced celery

Rinse, pat dry and slice fresh mushrooms; place in a medium saucepan. Add water; bring to boiling point. Cover and simmer for 5 minutes. Drain off cooking liquid and pour over gelatin; stir to dissolve. Set mushrooms aside. Into gelatin stir salad dressing and lemon juice. Refrigerate until mixture is the consistency of unbeaten egg whites. Spoon a thin layer of the gelatin into a 6-cup mold.

Press a few mushrooms into side of mold; chill until firm. Stir apple and celery into remaining gelatin. Pour a layer of gelatin over mushrooms; chill.

Stand a row of mushrooms around side of mold; carefully spoon gelatin mixture into mold to reach top of mushrooms; chill until firm; repeat with a second layer. Chill until ready to serve. Or, if desired, stir the poached mushrooms, apples and celery into the slightly thickened gelatin. Pour into a 6-cup mold; refrigerate until firm. Unmold onto a lettuce-lined serving plate.

Yield: 8 portions.

MARINATED MUSHROOMS AND PEPPERS

1 pound small fresh mushrooms
1 cup white vinegar
1 jar (7 1/2 oz.) sweet roasted peppers, diced
1/3 cup diced celery
1/3 cup olive oil
2 cloves garlic, sliced lengthwise
1 1/2 teaspoons oregano leaves
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper

Rinse, pat dry, trim ends and halve fresh mushrooms. In a medium saucepan combine mushrooms and vinegar. Bring to boiling. Cover and simmer 3 minutes. Drain mushrooms; turn into a large bowl. Add remaining ingredients; mix gently. Cover and refrigerate 12 hours or longer. Yield: about 1 quart

Hearty and economical

Salmon soups, smooth or chunky

With a pantry well stocked with convenience items, come who may, come what may, the homemaker is ready for anything.

As a year 'round pantry shelf favorite, few choices can top canned salmon. It's a food with a flare for helping out in sandwiches, soups, snacks and full course meals; it can jump into the breach at a moment's notice.

There are good reasons for salmon's popularity. There is almost no waste to canned salmon, no shrinkage and no fat to be cut away. A pound can will serve four to five persons. From a nutritional standpoint it is a valuable complete protein food, which offers a wealth of delicious ways to serve your family wisely, economically and well.

Chunky salmon chowder or velvety smooth salmon bisque are just a couple of suggestions for quick early spring meals. For added protein, serve these soups with piping hot salmon muffins.

SALMON CHOWDER

- 1 cup sliced onions
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 2 cups sliced raw potatoes
- 1 cup diced celery
- 1 cup diced carrots
- 1 teaspoon salt,

- or to taste
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 2 cups water
- 1 one-pound can or two 7 1/2 ounce cans, canned salmon
- 4 cups milk

Saute the onion in butter until transparent, but not brown. Add potatoes, celery, carrots, salt, pepper and water. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer, covered, about 20 minutes, or until vegetables are tender. Add salmon with liquid and 4 cups milk. Heat to boiling, but do not boil. Serves 4 to 6.

SALMON BISQUE

- 6 tablespoons butter
- 1 tablespoon minced onion
- 5 tablespoons flour
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 1/2 cups milk or chicken broth
- 1/2 cup white wine
- 1 tablespoon tomato paste
- 7 1/2 ounce can salmon
- 1 cup heavy cream

Sour cream, chopped parsley or chives for garnish

In saucepan melt butter with minced onion. Stir in flour. Add bay leaf. Gradually stir in milk or broth and cook, stirring, until sauce is smooth and thick. Stir in white wine and cook over low heat for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Discard bay leaf and stir in tomato paste and liquid from can of salmon. Mash salmon with a fork and stir into the soup. Empty into blender container, cover and blend on medium speed for 15 seconds. Return to saucepan. Stir in cream, add salt to taste and heat to serving temperature. Serve with a garnish of sour cream and chopped parsley or chives. Serves 4 to 6.

SALMON GUMBO

- 1 one-pound can salmon
- 1 chicken bouillon cube
- 1 cup boiling water
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1/2 cup chopped green pepper
- 1 clove garlic, chopped
- 1/4 cup butter
- 1 one-pound can tomatoes
- 8 ounce can whole kernel corn
- 1 cup sliced okra
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon thyme
- 1 dash red pepper
- 1 whole bay leaf

Drain salmon, reserving the liquid.

Break salmon into large pieces. Dissolve bouillon cube in boiling water. Sauté onion, green pepper and garlic in butter until tender. Add reserved salmon liquid and remaining ingredients. Bring to a boil and simmer for 15 minutes, or until vegetables are tender. Discard bay leaf and serve piping hot. Serves 4 to 6.

SALMON CORN MUFFINS

- 1 cup all-purpose flour
- 1 cup cornmeal
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 7 1/2 ounce can salmon
- Milk
- 1 egg
- 1/4 cup melted butter

In mixing bowl combine the flour, cornmeal, baking powder, sugar and salt. Drain salmon liquid from can into measuring cup and add enough milk to measure 1 cup. Combine this liquid with the egg and butter. Add to dry ingredients and mix just enough to moisten. Fold in salmon. Fill oiled muffin cups 2/3 full and bake in a preheated 425 degree oven for 20 minutes. Makes 1 dozen medium muffins.

Ham 'n' Cheese Snack Sandwiches

Easy snack sandwiches

Summer days and lighter than usual appetites call for special planning at meal time. One idea to use when the temperature soars, is Ham 'N' Cheese Snack Sandwiches.

These easy to eat "sandwich-snacks" may be made ahead in the cool of the morning, then wrapped in foil and reheated at serving time.

To make this quick idea, start with ready-to-use triangles of refrigerated crescent roll dough and top with a ham and cheese combo that's flavor sparked with green onion and mustard. Seal the filling inside, brush with egg and sprinkle with poppy seed, then bake until golden.

Serve warm and offer a variety of fresh garden relishes alongside. You'll find these taste-tempting snacks make great patio fare!

HAM 'N' CHEESE SNACK SANDWICHES

1 3-oz. package (1 cup) thinly sliced

- ham
 - 1/2 cup (3 oz.) shredded Swiss cheese
 - 1 tablespoon finely chopped green onion
 - 1 1/2 teaspoons prepared mustard
 - 1 8-ounce can refrigerated quick crescent dinner rolls
 - 1 tablespoon water
 - 1 egg, slightly beaten
 - 1/2 teaspoon poppy seed
- Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Grease 8 muffin cups. In small bowl, combine first four ingredients. Separate crescent dough into 8 triangles. Spoon meat mixture on wide end of each triangle. Wrap dough around ham mixture; completely cover mixture and press edges of dough lightly to seal to prevent leakage during baking. Place in prepared muffin cups. Combine water with egg and brush on tops of crescents. Sprinkle with poppy seed. Bake at 375 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes until golden brown. Refrigerate any leftovers. Makes 8 snacks.

THE HERALD

Thursday, June 21, 1973

Section 7 —7

Poultry (Szarnyas) is an important dish for Hungarians. Chicken is prepared in many ways including "fricassee" and "paprika." An Americanized version of a Chicken Magyar brings the additional flavoring of green pepper, tomatoes, Worcestershire and dairy sour cream to the chicken. Serve with potatoes, rice or noodles and a cucumber/ onion salad.

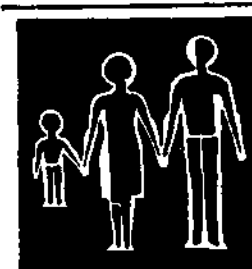

CHICKEN MAGYAR

2 chickens (2½ to 3 pounds each), cut into serving size pieces

½ cup flour
3 teaspoons salt, divided
5 tablespoons butter, margarine or safflower oil
1 cup finely chopped onion
¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
1 clove garlic, finely minced
1 can (1 pound) tomatoes, broken up
2 tablespoons paprika, divided

2 tablespoons and 1 teaspoon original Worcestershire sauce, divided 1½ cups dairy sour cream
2 egg yolks, beaten
Dredge chicken in flour mixed with 2½ teaspoons salt. Shake off excess. In a large heavy saucepan melt butter. Add a few pieces of chicken at a time and brown well. Remove chicken when browned; set aside. To fat remaining in saucepan add onion, green pepper and garlic; saute 5 minutes. Stir in tomatoes, 1 tablespoon paprika and 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce. Return chicken to saucepan. Cover and simmer 30 to 40 minutes or until chicken is tender. Remove chicken to heated serving dish; keep warm. Mix sour cream, egg yolks, remaining 1 tablespoon paprika, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and ½ teaspoon salt. Stir into saucepan. Heat, but do not boil. Pour over chicken. Serve with potatoes, rice or noodles. Makes 6 to 8 portions.

She uses canned goods for breezy summer meals

by LOIS SEILER

Casualness is the key word for entertaining during the summer months. Maryjane Holmes of Mount Prospect puts this into practice at the family's summer home where she and her husband, Jim, enjoy entertaining friends on weekends.

Because cottages are seldom equipped as well as the family home, Maryjane prefers recipes that require few utensils and are quick and easy to make. A large mixing bowl, baking pan, mixing spoon and can opener are all the equipment needed to make some of her specialties. In fact, all of the ingredients for one of her favorite recipes comes out of cans.

"You can keep everything on hand," she said. "All you need to do is open the cans and mix the ingredients. While the casserole bakes you can enjoy a swim with your guests."

The cans she refers to contain chicken noodle soup, cream of chicken soup, boned chicken, chow mein noodles and evaporated milk.

"Although a simple dish, it is most effective as I've had many requests for the recipe," Maryjane remarked. As accompaniments she suggests either a tossed or fruit salad and a good dessert that can be made ahead.

Such is Iowa Slush, a refreshing combination of strawberries, pineapple, apricots and bananas frozen in a sugar syrup.

"A supply of this dessert can be kept in the freezer for use anytime," Maryjane said. "It is slushy in consistency, similar to sherbet, and makes a nice, light dessert." She scoops it into sherbet glasses about ten minutes before serving.

Maryjane has used the chicken casserole for informal patio entertaining at home, and also served it at a luncheon for the board of the Women's Association at the Mount Prospect Community Presbyterian Church, of which she is president. She is also active in the garden club and a member of the Alpha Gamma Delta Alumnae.

Whenever the Holmes' college-age children, Ken and Nancy, invite their friends to the cottage, Maryjane can prepare Pizza Burgers with only a few minutes notice.

Ground beef is browned and then mixed with pizza sauce. Spooned onto hamburger buns and topped with cheese slices, the burgers are popped under the broiler until bubbly. The pizza burgers appeal to adults, too, for lunch, supper or as a party snack. Maryjane serves them with celery and carrot sticks and potato chips.

Not only are these recipes simple to make, but they are also economical — an important factor with today's high food prices.

If she wishes to prepare fancier fare, Maryjane's choice is Chicken Breast Supreme. This is made with boned and skinned breasts which are browned, then baked in a creamy mushroom sauce. The sauce coats the chicken, both flavoring it and keeping it moist.

This dish is elegant enough for a formal sit down dinner, or may easily be served buffet-style as Maryjane does at the cottage, letting her guests choose a dining spot indoors or on the deck outside their A-frame. As accompaniments she suggests a rice dish, vegetable and a salad.

CHICKEN CREAM CASSEROLE

- 2 cans chicken noodle soup
 - 2 cans cream of chicken or mushroom soup
 - 2 cans boned chicken (13 ounces each)
 - 2 cans (5 ounces each) evaporated milk
 - 2 cans (3 ounces each) chow mein noodles
- Set aside about half of one can of chow mein noodles. Mix all remaining ingredients together in a large bowl. Turn into an ungreased 9 by 13-inch baking dish. Sprinkle with remaining noodles. Bake, uncovered, one hour at 350 degrees.

grees. Serves 10 for dinner, 12 for a luncheon.

IOWA SLUSH

- 3 small packages frozen strawberries, partially defrosted
 - 1 No. 2 can pineapple rings, well-drained
 - 1 No. 2½ can apricots, well-drained
 - 6 bananas, sliced
 - 1 cup water
 - 1 cup sugar
- Cut pineapple rings into small pieces and cut up apricots with scissors. Combine all fruit in a large bowl. Bring water to a boil and add sugar. Stir until dissolved. Pour hot syrup over all the fruit and stir until well-mixed. Cover bowl and freeze immediately. About ten minutes before serving, scoop into sherbet glasses.

PIZZA BURGERS

- 1½ pounds lean ground beef
 - 1 8-ounce can Pastorelli Italian Chef Pizza Sauce
 - 8 slices American cheese
 - 8 hamburger buns
- Brown ground beef. Drain off fat. Add pizza sauce, mix with meat and heat thoroughly for flavors to blend well. Spoon into bottom half of hamburger buns on baking sheet. Place slice of cheese on top and slip under broiler just long enough for cheese to soften. Top with remaining bun half and enjoy. Serves 4.

CHICKEN BREASTS SUPREME

- 12 large chicken breasts, boned, skinned and halved
 - 1 pint sour half and half or sour cream
 - 2 cans cream of mushroom soup
 - 2 cans mushroom pieces
- Lightly flour chicken breasts and brown them lightly in butter on both sides in a skillet. Place them into a large, ungreased baking pan. Mix together sour half and half, soup and mushrooms. Pour over chicken. Bake, uncovered, at 350 degrees for one hour. Sprinkle with paprika and serve. Serves 10 to 12.

A FEW TWISTS of the can opener and Mrs. Jim Holmes, Mount Prospect, has the ingredients for Creamed Chicken Casserole. Chicken noodle soup, boned chicken, chow mein noodles and evaporated milk are mixed together to form this easy summer main dish. Mrs. Holmes likes to serve the casserole with a salad and dessert at her summer cottage.

Sweet-sour pork chops

The five distinct schools of Chinese cooking — Canton, Fukien, Shantung, Szechwan and Hunan — have a unifying principle. In all Chinese cooking a harmonious mixture is the goal. This means a perfect balance of sweet and sour, smooth and crunchy, hot and cold, salty and bland.

To the Chinese, food preparation is a highly developed art in which aroma, visual appeal and good taste play equal roles. Although Americans adapt Chinese recipes to suit our own palates and are guided by what ingredients are available, the goal is similar. Hunan Pork Chops for example, get the sweet and sour treatment, indigenous to the Hunan school.

HUNAN PORK

- 1 egg, slightly beaten
 - ½ cup cornstarch
 - ¼ cup unsifted flour
 - ¼ teaspoon salt
 - 2½ cups chicken broth or bouillon
 - 6 pork chops, about 1-inch thick, trimmed of fat
 - 1 pound carrots, peeled and cut into thin 3-inch long strips
 - ½ cup sugar
 - ½ cup red wine vinegar
 - ¼ cup sweet pickle liquid
 - 2 teaspoons soy sauce
 - ½ cup water
 - 1 bunch scallions, cut into 2-inch pieces (about 1½ cups)
 - 1 cup drained sweet mixed pickles
 - 4 cups hot cooked rice
- Prepare batter for chops by blending together egg, ¼ cup cornstarch, flour, salt, and ¼ cup chicken broth. Heat oil in large skillet. Dip pork chops into batter. Fry in hot oil until lightly browned on both sides. Transfer browned chops to rack in shallow baking pan. Bake uncovered in 375-degree oven for 35 minutes.

Meanwhile, discard all but about 2 tablespoons of the oil left in the skillet. Sauté carrots until crisp-tender, about 10 minutes. Add sugar, vinegar, pickle liquid, soy sauce and remaining chicken broth. Combine remaining ¼ cup cornstarch with water and gradually stir into mixture. Stir constantly until mixture thickens; simmer about 3 minutes. Add scallions and pickles; simmer about 2 more minutes. Arrange pork chops on bed of rice and pour some of sauce over chops. Serve remaining sauce in small bowl. Makes 6 servings.

High cost of food bills related to eating habits

by JEANNE LEBLANC

Eating habits that depend increasingly on convenience foods, including snacks, are partly responsible for the high cost of food served at home.

This is an escapable conclusion based on the first quarter report of the National Menu Census, a study made every five years by the Market Research Corporation of America MRCA.

The report covers July-September, 1972, but "we have found in past years that what you learn in the first quarter carries through, except for seasonal items," says Edgar Nelson, board chairman of MRCA.

In an interview, Nelson said he expects the pattern to continue, despite consumer complaints about spiraling food prices.

Trends sighted in the report include a 15 per cent increase in carried lunches, but Nelson thinks this is due as much to an increase in the working population as it is to economy-minded consumers.

Supporting the big spender theory is a 50 per cent increase in wine consumption over the same period five years ago; expanded consumption of frozen multiple-course dinners in smaller towns and areas and an increase in the number of households serving them, and no decline in household consumption of expensive beef cuts.

However, roast beef consumption was down eight per cent, he added, while ground beef consumption rose 30 per cent and fish, 12 per cent. The latter two could be tied to budgeting, but the growth also can be linked with what an associate of Nelson termed a tremendous growth in sales of packaged dry mixes for making main dishes with ground meat or tuna.

Nelson said the most frequent users of frozen dinners are low-income, one-person households — presumably older and retired persons. He said the group also includes some young, unmarried persons. He profiled the least frequent users as two-member farm households in the east-south-central region of the United States with an education level of less than ninth grade.

He said the increase in wine serving was observed in lower income groups although the greatest growth was in upper income households.

The menu census, first made 20 years ago, tried to determine why people eat what they eat. Analyses of the information gathered in the census are sold to manufacturers for — among other things — guidance in developing new products and new uses for existing ones, planning advertising campaigns and tailoring products to specific markets.

The 4,000 households included in the census are chosen every five years from a national consumer panel of 7,500 households which have submitted weekly diaries of their food and beverage purchases. The smaller group submits daily forms showing not just what they cooked and served and what ingredients they used, but also whether the cooking was done in an oven or on a range-top, when meals were served, how many persons were present and how many were on a diet.

Predictably, many fall into the last category. The first quarter report showed that about 11 per cent of all males over 18 and almost 20 per cent of all females over 18 were on some form of diet — losing, gaining or maintaining weight.

Try to reconcile that finding, if you will, with a simultaneous boom in sales of high caloric snack foods, such as fried corn and wheat products, mixed nuts and fried onion rings.

Nelson said meal skipping is increasing but many snacks are served not at snack time but as part of a meal. Forty per cent of all corn chips product servings are in carried lunches.

Breakfast is the meal most often skipped, and the number one group of skippers consists of men and women 18-24 years old. The second most frequent breakfast skippers are the 13-14 year olds.

But midmorning snack incidence has increased only one per cent over five years ago, while afternoon snacks are up 10 per cent and evening ones, eight per cent.

At the same time, fewer regular main meals are being served. They represented 66 per cent of total meal serving occasions in 1967, but dropped to 63 per cent by 1972, while total snack serving occasions increased six per cent during the same period.

Nelson said the heaviest users of commercial snacks are high income households, but households of five or more persons also use commercial snacks frequently.

Skillet dinner made with tuna

A tuna skillet dinner is an economical way to make hash out of those rising meat costs. Tuna is a complete protein and offers more per serving than a comparable, edible portion of lean red meat. Dress it up with chopped onions, diced green pepper and diced cooked potatoes.

TUNA HASH

- 2 cans (6½ or 7 ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil
- ½ cup chopped onion
- 1 cup diced green pepper
- 2 cups diced cooked potatoes
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper

Drain 4 tablespoons of the oil from tuna into a large skillet. Add onion, green pepper and cook until tender, but not brown. Add potatoes, tuna, salt and pepper. Cook over moderately high heat, stirring occasionally, until heated through. Makes 4 servings.

Nearest station will respond to fire

Village, Arlington pool fire protection resources

by RICH MONACK

Residents of Arlington Heights and Buffalo Grove who live between Checker and Palatine roads are now being served by one fire department — for all practical purposes.

As of 5 p.m. yesterday, the departments from both villages began operating out of the same communication center. They also started serving residents within the designated boundaries as one area without village limits.

This means that if there is a call in the northern section of Arlington Heights, the Buffalo Grove department will respond automatically to back up Arlington's units. If a call comes to the communication center from Buffalo Grove, Arlington Heights will respond with backup units.

The new system is designed to give residents of both fire protection areas better coverage, according to fire chiefs John Hayden of Arlington Heights and Wayne Winter of Buffalo Grove.

THE CHIEFS have been working on the arrangement for several months. "We thought that because of the high cost of fire protection and fire equipment we would use the departments to complement each other," said Hayden.

Winter said, "In essence, what has happened is Buffalo Grove has gained four stations and Arlington one station. We have also saved the villages and residents more than $600,000."

The saving comes from the fact that Arlington Heights has a need for certain Buffalo Grove equipment and vice versa. If the departments did not join service they would have had to eventually buy this equipment at a cost of more than $300,000 each.

According to the chiefs, the new system is also better because of the geographical layout of the two villages between Dundee and Palatine roads.

For example, Buffalo Grove's Mill Creek subdivision is located almost directly across from Arlington Heights' Station No. 4. Under the old system, units in that station could not respond without Buffalo Grove's permission. Under the new plan, they can respond immediately.

"THE DISPATCHER will have the responsibility as to who to call first. The closest station will always get the initial call," said Winter. "We will be there faster and have more equipment without requesting it."

The chiefs said the only thing they are worried about is residents thinking that they are being short-changed. "This service was done to benefit them, not hurt them," said Hayden.

"We don't want to get involved in village politics or 'this is my territory, stay out' kind of thing. All we want is for the residents of that area to get the best fire protection they can," Hayden added.

Both chiefs also said residents should not be upset when a fire truck or paramedic unit from another village arrives for an emergency. "These men are all trained and residents should be assured they are there to help them," said Winter.

Hayden said the idea for merging the two departments is not a new one. He said the area's mutual aid system is very similar, except for the fact that a department does not respond unless it is requested or there is a general box alarm.

"When we have all the equipment we need and there are no problems, but it's the individual homeowner we are concerned with helping. We can no longer just sit and watch a house burn because it is not in our village or district, and believe it or not, there are some departments like that," said Hayden. "We have to start putting aside our petty jealousies."

THE CHIEFS also said the rest of their villages will not be left unprotected if they are responding to calls outside the village boundaries. "Other departments will still be called to help fill in our weak spots as they do now," said Winter.

The two officials said they would eventually like to see a more regionalized fire service, with maybe four or five departments on a central dispatch. In some cases they foresee even sharing the cost of equipment and stations that would be located in an area that best serves surrounding communities.

"We would still be individual departments but working for a common cause," said Hayden. "With today's boundaries of the different villages, it's got to be done. Why have three fire stations within a mile of each other, when you could have one big one doing the same job? And it would save thousands of dollars."

Even though the new system works from one location, residents should continue to call the same telephone numbers to report an emergency. The telephone systems are tied together and there will be no reason for any changes.

Builder to go ahead with original plan

Mill Creek gives up park land fight

by JILL BETTNER

Mill Creek homeowners are giving up their fight for more park land in that subdivision, stepping aside to allow construction of the final phase of the development that will include 12 more apartment buildings.

The developer, Miller Builders Inc. offered residents a 3.5-acre park site in Phase II of the project, providing the village would grant permission for a 1.97-acre commercial area at the north end of the development.

Miller also wanted to change his original plan to build four-story condominiums instead of two-story apartments.

Residents voted Tuesday night at a homeowners' meeting to let Miller complete his original plan, settling for a 5.5-acre park adjacent to Washington Irving School, which is under construction.

ACCORDING TO Wayne Barto, a Mill Creek resident and chairman of a committee organized about six months ago to negotiate with Miller for more park land, most of the Irving park site is useless because of drainage problems.

Barto said because of Metropolitan Sanitary District retention requirements, the grade of the badly sloping site must be kept intact. That means, he said, only about 50 square feet of the site is usable.

Barto said he was "discouraged" at the poor turnout at the meeting. Only 25 out of 70 families eligible to vote on Miller's park site offer showed up to cast ballots. There were 15 votes to reject Miller's offer and 10 votes to accept it.

"I know what's going to happen in a few years," Barto said. "People are going to come to a homeowners' meeting and demand more parks and we're just going to have to say we blew our chances. What we have now is a mess."

Calling the Irving park site a hazard to children in the neighborhood, Barto said there is a creek about four feet deep that runs through the property. The area is littered with trash and construction materials, he said, and pockets of standing water breed mosquitoes.

CONTRARY TO information Park Dir. Stan Crosland gave the Herald last week, Barto said park board pres. Gene Muryn told homeowners at the meeting there is little park money available for development of the Irving park site.

Crosland told the Herald $250,000 was on hand for use at the Irving site and a proposed park in the Cambridge subdivision. He said it had not been determined how the funds would be divided.

Barto said Muryn told the homeowners most of the $250,000 had already been used for improvements at other park sites and only $5,000 had been earmarked for the Irving park.

Muryn confirmed yesterday that only $5,000 in park funds is intended for use at the Irving park site.

"We never budgeted that kind of money for the work there," Muryn said. "We're not going to do any extensive work there until we find out what the MSD is going to do."

Muryn added that he was sorry to see the residents reject Miller's offer of the 3.5-acre park.

"Now that we know we won't have that 3.5 acres, we'll just have to take a long hard look at the Irving site and we'll do our best to make it usable, but we just can't make any promises."

"IT WAS VERY misleading for Crosland to say that $250,000 was available," Barto said, adding that the $5,000 would probably cover nothing more than the cost of seeding the park site.

Barto said the Mill Creek residents' committee intends to try to persuade the MSD to reduce the amount of land at the Irving park site designated for retention to gain more recreation area.

Barto added that he feels it is unfair that so much of the Irving park site is designated for retention of water he says comes from the Kenroy Industrial park, just across Arlington Heights Road in Arlington Heights.

"We've been out there on rainy days," Barto said, "There's a culvert about 6 feet by 4 feet that gushes out water that's unbelievable compared to the amount of water coming from Mill Creek."

The committee will also talk with Arlington Heights officials about their plans for a lake just south of Palatine Road. Barto said the plans for the proposed recreation lake call for eliminating small retention facilities in the area. He feels there may be a possibility retention at the Irving park site could be reduced because of the construction of the lake.

Barto said state conservation officials that were consulted on development of the Irving Park site suggested that if no additional land could be obtained, the area should be maintained as a nature preserve.

"I just hope people realize we gave up our last chance to get anything better," Barto commented. "What Miller offered us was the last open area we had and it's gone now."

Eucharist vigil set

The Eucharist prayer vigil for the northern Chicago area will begin at 8 p.m. tomorrow at St. Mary's Church, Buffalo Grove.

The vigil will begin with a mass celebrated by Rev. Donald J. Duffy. Also scheduled is a procession with the Pilgrim Virgin statue, recitation of the rosary, consecration of the parish and confessions.

Buffalo Grove pageant set

Almost every young girl dreams of becoming Miss America, and local girls will soon have a chance at the title. The Miss Buffalo Grove Pageant, preliminary to the Miss Illinois Pageant and the national Miss America Pageant, is scheduled for Aug. 23.

The contest is open to all girls between the ages of 10 and 25 residing in Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Appleton, Long Grove, Prairie View and north Arlington Heights.

Any entrant must be a high school graduate by Sept. 3, 1974. Girls must be single and never married.

The winner of the contest will compete in the Miss Illinois Pageant, and possibly in the Miss America Pageant. Judging will be based on the same values considered at the Miss America Pageant.

Poise, beauty, and talent are the three major requirements. Each contestant will be judged in evening gown, swimsuit, and the presentation of some talent.

Mrs. Jan Strablan, chairman of the contest, said the talent requirement is flexible and no girl must necessarily be trained in a specific field. She said many contestants in previous pageants did not realize they possessed a particular talent until they considered entering the contest.

SHE SAID that in almost every national Miss America Pageant, conducted in Atlantic City, N.J., there have been state winners who presented dramatic readings, comedy monologues, or gymnastics for the talent requirement.

The winner and the first and second runner-ups in the Buffalo Grove contest will receive cash prizes.

The Buffalo Grove Jaycees are asking local organizations to encourage girls to enter the pageant.

The deadline for entering the contest is July 8. Further information can be obtained from Mrs. Strablan at 537-7926 or from Mrs. Sharon Cuculic at 537-7579.

Two midwestern senators called for a further delay of up to 14 months in construction of a pipeline to carry Alaskan oil to U.S. markets.

It will take about $213 billion and an all-out effort to convert to nuclear power to enable the utility industry to best meet the demand for electricity by 1985, the National Petroleum Council said yesterday.

A bill cutting the state sales tax from 4 cents on the dollar to 3½ cents was being considered in the House.

Along Northwest Highway

City beautification program comes out of the weeds

by MIKE ZAREMBA

The weeds growing and covering the evergreens and trees were becoming noticeable to anyone driving along Northwest Highway.

Two years ago, the city spent over $3,000, not including labor, to plant 717 trees and evergreens next to the Chicago and North Western Ry. right-of-way along Northwest Highway between Mount Prospect Road and the 'S' curve. This project was part of the City Council beautification committee's attempt to "beautify" the landscape along Northwest Highway.

The weeds, trees and evergreens went unattended for more than a month this year, before city forester Larry Komos and public works crews "had time" to go out and work on them.

Work on the Northwest Highway landscaping started earlier this week.

City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach had been calling the public works office for the past two weeks, telling them "that if they didn't get out there," she was going to pull the weeds herself.

MRS. ROHRBACH uses Northwest

Highway to come to work every morning and she said the sight of all the weeds was "getting a little disgusting."

After working on the beautification committee during 1969-71, Mrs. Rohrbach said, she has been very upset with the slow progress being made on the landscaping along Northwest Highway. "They just haven't been doing their jobs."

Komos said his biggest problem, next to a personnel shortage, has been the rain.

Komos said the forestry department is having trouble budgeting time with all its different responsibilities: tree planting, trimming, pruning, surveying, checking contractors, mowing, emergencies, among other duties. The forestry department consists of two people — Komos and his assistant.

"The rain hasn't helped. We just finished the work on the downtown depot landscaping and the North School parking lot," Komos said.

THE BEAUTIFICATION committee was hoping to accomplish something similar to the Arlington Heights landscape along Northwest Highway, Mrs. Rohrbach said. "They did a beautiful job and so did Mount Prospect. The Northwest Highway right-of-way is 100 per cent better, but it's far from complete. We have a long way to go."

"I can't see how someone can start a project and just not take care of it. It's a matter of pride," Mrs. Rohrbach said.

Joseph Schwab, commissioner of public works, said the forestry department should be able to catch up on their work with the addition of summer help to the public works crews. But Schwab agreed with Komos, "We just don't have enough men to do all the work."

"We are building a new department and I'm hoping every year we can hire more personnel. Right now, there is no beautification help. When we have to take a tree down we have to draw from the streets and sanitation crews," Schwab said.

The forestry department does not have its own equipment, which makes things even more difficult, Schwab added. "We are hoping to at least get a truck for them by next fall," he said.

"The beautification committee wanted us to start working on another project along Mannheim railroad tracks. I told them they'd have to get a contractor because we simply don't have the time."

Komos said another problem he faced was the small budget allocated by the beautification committee two years ago. "I would have liked to buy bigger shrubs and trees, but I had to remain within the budget they gave me," Komos said.

Komos said the combined costs for trees and shrubbery for both the downtown train depot and the Northwest Hwy. was under $5,000.

Park Ridge spent $7,855 last year on trees, plants and shrubbery as a beautification project for its downtown area.

This year, Mount Prospect hired nine full and part-time summer workers to help maintain the landscaping along Northwest Highway and other areas of the city.

The forestry assistant said the crews must tend the grounds along Northwest Highway weekly, "to keep the grounds looking good."

YOU CAN'T SEE the shrubbery for the weeds on some places along the Chicago and North Western Ry. right-of-way. The evergreens and saplings were planted last year by the city but some have died or been covered by weeds.

Forest case may see new legal tactic

Des Plaines may switch legal tactics in its case against Forest Hospital's use of Rand Road homes.

City Atty. Robert DiLeonardi is expected to file a complaint in the Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court by next week charging that the hospital is using three single-family homes for rooming houses and offices.

The city filed a "short form" complaint against the hospital last week in Des Plaines branch of the Circuit Court. The case asks the court to fine the hospital for misuse of the homes at 1840, 1800 and 1796 Rand Rd.

Hospital officials received a summons Thursday to appear at a July 9 traffic court hearing on the charges.

The "short form" case — which is based on a complaint by Building Commissioner Alfred Prickett and allows quick trial on the charges — can only result in a fine and cannot lead to an injunction against misuse of the housing, DiLeonardi said.

"TRAFFIC DIVISION judges are not used to handling this," DiLeonardi told the council Monday. "We should change from the 'short form' to a fine and injunction relief by going to Niles court."

The Niles case "hasn't been completed," he said yesterday. "It's on my desk. We'll get it filed within the next week."

The "short form" case will be dropped when the charges are filed with the Niles court.

Ald. Joseph Szabo (1st) asked the building department Monday to check ownership of homes on the south side of Rand near the hospital. "We should have asked for that the first time," he said, seeking a report by the July 3 council meeting.

A building department investigation of the north side Rand homes last week confirmed hospital ownership. Building department officials found as many as nine, unrelated persons living in one house. City ordinance limits occupancy of a single-family home to three unrelated persons.

City officials found that two of the houses, at 1800 and 1796 Rand, are used for offices and postgraduate school classrooms.

Hospital officials have refused comment on the charges.

Kidnap case hearing soon

by JOHN MAES

A formal arraignment is expected sometime next week for Roy Stover of Arlington Heights, charged in the March 20 armed robbery of a Des Plaines food store and the kidnapping and sexual assault of a 16-year-old store clerk.

Three separate indictments, including six charges, were returned against Stover, 24, of 702 Haven St., by a Cook County Grand Jury last week.

The first indictment accuses Stover with the abduction and sexual assault of the Des Plaines girl as well as the armed holdup of the Convent Food Mart, 1920 Mannheim Rd. which netted $35 cash.

A second indictment charges Stover with another Des Plaines food store holdup; the third names him in the robbery of a Mount Prospect store and the aggravated assault of a store clerk.

No trial date has been set for Stover but spokesmen at the Cook County Circuit Court in Chicago said a date should be assigned to the case shortly after he is arraigned.

STOVER WAS arrested March 20 by Cook County Sheriff's Police outside his home a few hours after police said he robbed the store and abducted the girl.

Stover had allegedly entered the store that night and drew a pistol announcing the holdup after pretending to buy groceries.

Police said he then ordered the girl into the car after two unidentified customers pulled up. The girl was later released in Oak Park where she alerted police.

Police used an auto description and license number to track down Stover. A similar car description linked him to the other Des Plaines food store robbery, police said.

In that holdup, Stover allegedly struck a store clerk with an iced tea jar before taking $100 cash.

THE DAY after his arrest, Stover was charged by the state's attorney's office with sexually assaulting the 16-year-old girl.

Mount Prospect authorities charged Stover with armed robbery and aggravated battery in connection with the March 9 $90 holdup of the Western Fashion Store, 1740 Golf Rd.

Police said he struck an employee there with a pistol.

The woman, Mary Kozel, 140 Morrison Ave., Mount Prospect, was released late in March from Northwest Community Hospital after suffering a fractured skull.

Developer seeking hockey-minded landowner

A hockey rink developer has started the search for "an angel" in Des Plaines.

Enlisted to aid in the hunt are Mayor Herbert Behrel and Des Plaines' 18 aldermen. The effort may be more difficult than flipping a puck through Chicago Black Hawks' goalie Tony Esposito.

Qualifications for the post are as hard as an ice rink's surface. Only one "angel" is required.

Cross your hockey sticks. The benefit to city residents may be a two-skating rink building here. No tax money — only superleaching to find the site — is required.

Price of the land is the only problem that could prevent year-round skating as suburbia's hockey mania reaches for Des Plaines.

LAKE COUNTY hockey rink developer John McNulty, in an appearance before the city council Monday, asked for help in finding a "reasonably priced, five-acre" site for indoor skating.

McNulty does not want city financial aid for the $1.3 million, two-rink project. A co-partner in fledgling Century Leisure Sports Inc., he says he doesn't want something for nothing.

"There's no place where land is as expensive as Des Plaines," McNulty said. "Des Plaines is an ideal site for a good skating facility."

McNulty's limit is about $40,000 an acre for the project. Available land costing between $80,000 and $150,000 an acre was shown to McNulty by Mayor Herbert Behrel last week.

"I'm looking for you people to give it some thought and try and come up with an answer for us," McNulty told the council. "We can't build this unless we get a fair price for the land. Maybe you know someone with five acres who wants to contribute to recreation of the community."

McNULTY AND his partner, Gerry Pfeiffer, a Des Plaines businessman, have "put the cart before the horse. We've already got the money. All we need is the site. We've let other people make the mistakes in building ice rinks. Now we're going to do it right."

Leisure Sports plans to begin construction next month of its first rink in Mundelein. The group paid $13,000 an acre for unincorporated land there.

The Mundelein rink will be called "First Century." The group plans six identical rinks in the Chicago area with "Second Century" planned for Des Plaines.

"I'm hoping we can find an angel," said Behrel. "That person would say, 'This is good for the city, so I'll take less for my land.'"

PLANS FOR the structures include two skating surfaces, a 200-by-90-foot hockey rink and a 100-by-50-foot figure-skating rink. Seating for 1,500 is planned.

"There are ice rinks everywhere but here," he said. "We'll pay $100,000 a year in property taxes. This is a commercial endeavor. But we can't pay $500,000 to $600,000 for land."

McNulty is a director of Loyola University's hockey club and is a color commentator for the Chicago Cougars of the World Hockey Association. Cougar officials have proposed a $20 million professional hockey arena near Palatine and met Monday with village trustees to discuss the 18,000-seat project.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Two midwestern senators called for a further delay of up to 14 months in construction of a pipeline to carry Alaskan oil to U.S. markets.

It will take about $213 billion and an all-out effort to convert to nuclear power to enable the utility industry to best meet the demand for electricity by 1985, the National Petroleum Council said yesterday.

John W. Dean III testified that President Nixon succeeded in stalling a 1972 congressional investigation of the Watergate bugging and requested that tax audits be halted for some friends. A Senate summary of the ousted White House counsel's private testimony revealed.

Skylab's flying physician said the astronauts felt surprisingly good and had no problems working in zero-gravity during the world's longest spaceflight.

The mayors of Cincinnati and San Francisco demanded that the Conference of Mayors that the White House explain why President Nixon is holding up $265 million, already appropriated, to provide summer jobs for youths.

President Nixon's reelection finance committee was fined $3,000 for failing to report the $200,000 campaign contribution from financier Robert Vesco.

The Senate Armed Services unit voted to continue production of the F111 fighter bomber for another year.

The state

Thousands of people swindled out of their life savings when the City Savings Association of Chicago folded in 1964, would get their money back if a bill passed yesterday by the House becomes law. The money would come from the state's general revenue fund.

Police charged Antonio Barrientes with the ax and dagger slaying of a pair of college students in a small Maywood private school.

A bill cutting the state sales tax from 4 cents on the dollar to 3½ cents was being considered in the House.

The world

Former President Juan Peron returned to Argentina after 18 years of exile, but an airport shootout between disident factions of his followers at a huge welcoming rally, forced diversion of his plane from Buenos Aires to a military air base.

Foreign Minister Abba Eban voiced concern in Jerusalem over the sale of U.S. warplanes to Saudi Arabia.

I think I was in Detroit last weekend. It all happened so fast I'm really not sure but as I remember I did set foot on foreign soil for at least a few minutes.

I was scheduled to go to Detroit — Dearborn actually — for the National Federation of Press Women's annual convention. I was supposed to attend the Saturday night awards banquet at 6:30 their time (5:30 p.m. ours).

So a friend and I made reservations on a 2:05 p.m. plane out of O'Hare, reserved a room at a Holiday Inn in Dearborn and were set to go.

The first downpour Saturday afternoon delayed my friend and we missed the 2:05 plane. No problem, said I, there's another leaving at 3:05, we'll arrive in Detroit at about 5 p.m. and have plenty of time.

O'Hare was its usual busy mess. Hundreds of people were milling around, lines were long, flights had been slightly delayed because of the heavy showers.

WE ARRIVED in plenty of time, waited for 20 minutes to check our bags and pick up our tickets, grabbed a hot dog (first food of the day for both of us) went through the very thorough security check, and boarded the plane.

It was uncanny. Between the time we boarded and the captain roved the engines to the tune of "This is your captain speaking . . . welcome aboard" the sky went black and all hell broke loose from the heavens.

So we sat. We sat through the initial cloudburst, a second cloudburst and the departure of the 28 planes ahead of us.

The stewardesses decided after the first half hour to serve drinks and during the ensuing two hours many passengers didn't care if they sat on the ground for the rest of the weekend.

Around 5:45 p.m. we took off. The captain apologized for the delay; the stewardesses tried to soothe frustrated passengers; the passengers gave a half-hearted cheer as we sailed into the air.

AFTER BUMPING around in the clouds for 45 minutes we landed in Metropolitan Airport in Detroit. It was about 7:30 p.m. their time and the cocktail hour at the banquet was already over.

We dashed to the Holiday Inn to find they had given our room away when we hadn't show up on time. We dashed to another motel, then another and finally found a room.

We dashed to the banquet — now it was nearly 8:00 p.m. — and arrived just in time to see the last waitress clear away the last dish of half-eaten ice cream.

We sat through the awards presentation nursing a glass of water and trying to muffle the growls from our stomachs.

While everyone else went off to a reception we collapsed at the door of a restaurant and begged for food.

We arrived at the reception just as it was ending, gave up for the night and went back to the motel.

Our plane Sunday was due to take off at 12:45 p.m. We had plenty of time and decided to take a quick drive around Dearborn to see what was there (all that's there is the Ford Motor Co., Ford this building and Ford that building) have a leisurely breakfast, drop our rented car off and get on the plane.

WE MISCALCULATED slightly. The driving tour was a quicky. Breakfast, however, went from leisurely to interminable. There must have been 1,000 persons packed into the restaurant. By the time we got our check we had 30 minutes to make the plane.

The countdown was on. We ran to the car, sped to the airport, missed the terminal on our first try and found it on the second.

We didn't have time to return the car so we threw the keys into the glove compartment, locked the car and left it in a no parking zone (and prayed it wouldn't be towed away before we reached Chicago and called to explain).

We ran through the airport, dragging our luggage, yelling at the ticket counter people to hold the plane. We ran through the security check area, panicking the security guard who grabbed our suitcase and purses so he could rummage through them while we ran to the gate.

We barreled through the waiting area, screaming to the ticket agent that the plane sitting out there was ours and to make it wait.

SHE GRABBED HER keys, tried to unlock the door to the boarding ramp, ran back for another set of keys (the right ones), unlocked the door and yelled "Run."

And we ran down the boarding ramp, puffing and panting and waiting for our lungs to collapse. When we got to the end there was only daylight. The plane was about four feet away, showing off to taxi.

All was not lost — except for our ability to breathe normally. We were rescheduled for another plane that would leave 45 minutes later. And as we dragged ourselves back through the terminal to check in at a new gate we received a lot of sympathy from people who had been pulling for us in our mad dash.

The rent-a-car people weren't too thrilled when we told them where their car was but they were understanding and sent us away with a "these things do happen."

Looking back the whole rushed weekend is pretty much a blur . . . but I think I had a good time in Detroit.

DES PLAINES

Friendly Town seeks help

Des Plaines residents are being urged to participate in the Friendly Town Program being supported by 12 local churches.

Friendly Town is a program through which inner city children, mostly Latin American, come to live with Des Plaines families for a nine-day period. The dates of the program this summer are July 14 through July 22.

The children came to Des Plaines from Casa Central, an independent social service agency at 2635 N. Kedzie, Chicago, and from Protestant and Catholic churches near Casa Central. The children range from 7 to 11 years of age, and receiving families may request the age and sex of their Friendly Town child.

Persons interested in participating in the Des Plaines Friendly Town program are asked to call a participating church for the name of a church coordinator, or call the Des Plaines coordinator, Barbara Bednarz, at 827-1007.

The participating churches are St. Mary, St. Martin Episcopal, St. Emily, St. Zachary, First United Methodist, Christ United Church of Christ, Trinity Lutheran, Westminster Presbyterian, First Presbyterian, First Congregational, Our Lady of Hope, First United Church of Christ, and Immanuel Lutheran.

Brookwood plans dinner

Senior citizens are being offered a holiday treat by the Brookwood Convalescent Center, 2380 Dempster St., Des Plaines.

A complete Sunday dinner — marking the observance of Independence Day — is scheduled from 1 to 3 p.m. on Sunday, July 1, at Brookwood. Reservations are on a first come — first served basis.

The holiday invitation is extended only to men and women over 65 years of age.

A nominal fee of $1 will be the only cost. The money from the dinner will be donated to the Crusade of Mercy.

Reservations must be made in advance. Senior citizens should telephone 296-3334.

Christian Science meeting

The annual meeting of all Christian Science churches was held recently in the new church center in Boston, Mass. Members of First Church of Christ, Scientist in Des Plaines who attended were Mr. and Mrs. Don Benson, Mrs. Dorothy Thornton, Mrs. Mary Jerousek and Mrs. Marion Bryson.

These members report that the Christian Science Center, international headquarters for the Church of Christ, Scientist is nearly complete.

Maine N. seniors honored

Senior departmental awards were presented to 14 students at Maine North High School's senior honor assembly prior to graduation. The students were selected by faculty members in each department.

The following seniors received department awards: art, Julie Olson; business education, Hildegard Vohs; English, David Dee; home economics, Brook Norlin; industrial education, John Yockey; language, Claudia Ahrens and Martha Hoeve; mathematics, David Tyckoson; music, David Premo; boys' physical education, Curtis Schmidt; girls' physical education, Nancy Ruske; science, Carolyn Sue Hilm; social science, Joseph Dobson; and speech-drama, Geoff Holmes.

Police find pipe bomb at Cumberland School

A four-inch pipe bomb found Tuesday at Cumberland Elementary School, 700 W. Golf Rd., was probably placed there as a Fourth of July prank, according to Des Plaines Police Department property officer William Harz.

The bomb was found under a window near the rear of the school by a custodian, police said. A box of matches was also found nearby, according to police.

The bomb was turned over to Harz who disarmed it.

"This usually happens around the Fourth of July," Harz said. The bomb would have caused relatively little damage, but could have hurt someone if it had gone off," he added.

per hour at the time of the crash, according to sheriff's police.

All Saints 75-foot mausoleum plan dies

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT
A $15 million proposal to build a 75-foot mausoleum at All Saints Cemetery has died before the city council.

The council voted 9 to 6 Monday to deny the height variation after 7th Ward aldermen presented 21 petitions signed by residents who oppose the project. City ordinance would allow a 35-foot height.

The city zoning board recommended approval of the project by the Archdiocese of Chicago.

"I DON'T KNOW what we will do now," John Philbin, executive director of Catholic cemeteries, said yesterday. "We knew that some residents were opposed. But we haven't gone beyond the assumption that it would be approved."

The petitions, offered by Ald. John Seijt (7th) for Des Plaines Terrace homeowners and by Ald. Gerald Meyer (7th) for Craig Manor homeowners, contended that:

- The proposed height variation "would set a precedent for highrise development in the area which has large tracts of undeveloped land."

- The cemetery has 200 acres of land. The building would require only three acres. A 35-foot height is possible."

THE RESIDENTS "encourage the petitioner to revise the plan and construct a building partially below grade or on a larger area."

The residents, who live near Wolf and Central, said that homes are within 1,500 feet of the proposed project.

"I can't see how a variation for a mausoleum creates a precedent for other types of buildings," Philbin said. Part of the building will be two stories or 35 feet.

"We've already gone 5 to 6 feet below ground in the plans. It's impractical because of cost and the water table to go below that. To build a foundation is one thing, but to go further below ground because of the Des Plaines River is impossible."

THE ARCHDIOCESE has constructed two similar buildings — at Queen of Heaven Cemetery in Hillside and at Resurrection Cemetery in Justice. The Hillside mausoleum is across from commercial and residential property.

"If the provision exists that allows a variation, it can be assumed that the drawers of the law saw reasons for variations," Philbin said.

The building, proposed near Central and Rand roads, would include about 20,000 crypts. No objectors appeared at the zoning board hearing.

Voting in favor of the variation Monday were Ald. Joseph Szabo (1st), Ald. Charles Bolek (3rd), Ald. Irene Birchfield (5th) and Ald. Ewald Swanson (6th).

Train slams into car, kills woman

A Park Ridge woman was killed Tuesday night when a Soo Line R.R. freight train slammed into her car at a crossing north of Mount Prospect.

Mrs. Margaret Rogers, 62, was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital after the 7 p.m. accident.

The engineer, Robert Acord, of Fond Du Lac, Wis., told sheriff's police he was traveling southbound about 40 miles per hour when he saw a car start to cross the tracks at a private driveway crossing at Morrison Avenue.

Acord said the car paused on the crossing for unknown reasons, and he was unable to stop the train to avoid the collision. The car was knocked from the tracks and was found about 50 feet from the point of impact, police said.

Sheriff's police said Mrs. Rogers was apparently returning home after a visit with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. David Wunsch, 150 Morrison Ave.

The street does not cross the tracks, but the driveway leading to a few homes on the west side crosses them. Morrison Avenue is in an unincorporated area five blocks south of Kensington Road just west of River Road.

5 elementary schools get new principals by Sept. 4

Five schools in Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 will have new men in the principals' offices when classes begin Sept. 4.

Lively Junior High School and Byrd Elementary School in Elk Grove Village, Dempster Junior High School and John Jay Elementary School in Mount Prospect, and Brentwood School in Des Plaines are getting new principals.

Two principals, Thomas Powers at Dempster and James Fay at John Jay are leaving the district for one-year sabbaticals.

Replacing Powers at Dempster is John Tofano, the present principal at Byrd School. The district is still interviewing applicants for the principal's job at John Jay.

REPLACING Tofano at Byrd School is Thomas Tucker, new in the district. Tucker has taught and served as a principal for two different school systems in Ohio.

Charles Bassford, principal at Lively Junior High School, is to be the district's director of curriculum review. He will move into his new job in the district's central administration office as a member of the department of instruction.

Replacing Bassford at Lively is Phillip Thornton, now the principal at Brentwood School.

Replacing Thornton at Brentwood is Claude Crase, now a principal at Franzen School in Itasca.

4% teachers pay hike OKd

A new 4 per cent pay hike contract for Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 teachers will be effective for the coming school year.

The school board unanimously accepted the contract at Monday's board meeting. The teachers had approved the contract about a week ago.

Teachers' salaries are figured on a base pay determined by the amount of education a teacher has. Each of the base pay levels was raised four per cent. The starting salary for a teacher with a bachelor's degree is now $8,369 a year.

In addition to the base pay raises, teachers also receive an additional four per cent annual raise for each year of service in the district.

School officials have estimated the total cost of salaries at $5.9 million.

Other new provisions in the contract include:

- Allowing women to use accumulated, paid sick leave for maternity leave. In the past, the district only permitted unpaid maternity leave.
- Improved life insurance policy based on a teacher's salary.
- Longevity payments after 20 and 25 years service.
- Simplified grievance procedures.

"everyday"

Interest. That's pretty special. But there's more. That daily interest is compounded daily. Paid quarterly. So you can deposit when you like. Withdraw when you need to. Never lose interest provided you maintain $25 or more in your account at the end of the quarter. In fact, you even gain. All money deposited by the 10th earns from the 1st . . . if you leave it on deposit until the end of the calendar quarter. Sounds interesting? But what does "everyday" interest mean in dollars and cents? It means that our 5% passbook interest actually earns more when compounded every day than the First Federal Savings way. Peony fields were here before Elk Grove Village was, but now all that remains of them is the Peony Parade.

The 15th annual Peony Parade will begin at 1:30 p.m. Sunday with floats, marching units and bands — but not many peonies.

Peony parades and pageants are a tradition almost as old as the village itself. The village was incorporated in 1956, the first parade was in 1959. And the parade has changed through the years just as the village itself has.

Chairman Steve Lewandowski said the parade was started as a means of developing community spirit in a new village. Peonies, however, have now passed from the scene as a major part of the peony parade and pageant.

JOHN RADZIS, charter president of the Jaycees, then called the Junior Chamber of Commerce, was the one who thought of using peonies as a permanent theme for the parade. Large fields of peonies were in the area and one of the early residents said Elk Grove was considered the "Peony Capital of America."

The pageant and parade were considered an ambitious project for such a new village, but Radzis reflected community spirit at the time when he said, "In a community such as ours, where growth is at supersonic speeds, we must think big and move fast to keep up."

Two of the major contributors to the first parade were Centex Construction Corp., which developed most of the village and Klehm Nursery, which owned many of the peony fields. The Jaycees organized and operated the parade.

In the early parades, peonies were used as decorations for the floats. Lewandowski said few floats in recent years use peonies, but use of the flower is still one point used in judging floats for prizes.

VILLAGE RESIDENTS also took part in the peony pageant. Prizes were awarded to the homeowner with the most attractive garden and landscape work using peonies. The peony landscaping contest was discontinued several years ago and residents no longer plant peonies as was done in the past.

Another "tradition" that has died is the selection of a beauty queen for the pageant. The 1962 Miss Illinois was chosen at the peony pageant. Residents recall the Miss Illinois winner was picked at a contest in a "large bubble tent" at Arlington Heights and Higgins roads.

The route of the parade has also changed several times in the 15-year history of the pageant.

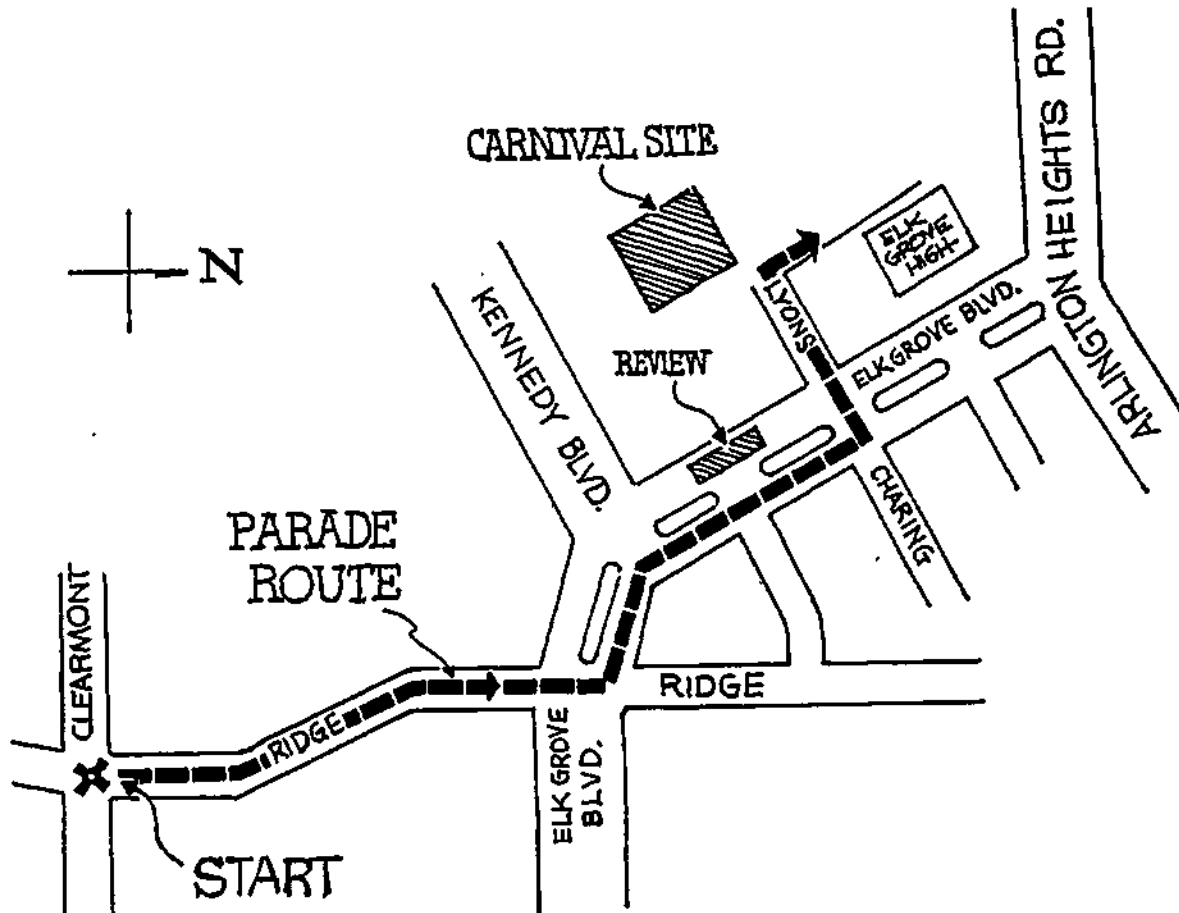

In the late 1950s, the village was mostly north of Lundmeier Road. The first parade went down Oakton Street.

As the village grew southward and westward, the route of the parade was shifted more to the center of the village.

In recent years, the parade went along Elk Grove Boulevard to Kennedy Boulevard and then to Arlington Heights Road, where the units disbanded in the Grove Mall parking lot.

THIS YEAR the route has been changed again. The parade will continue

Village president plans quiz sessions

Elk Grove Village Pres. Charles Zetek says he is available for "accountability sessions" with local organizations to answer questions about village government.

"I am willing to appear before any group at any suitable time," Zetek said. He said that later this summer he will have his first general accountability session in the village hall for residents.

Zetek said yesterday he would have the first general session after a decision is made on the multi-million-dollar Devon-53 housing and commercial project. "I don't know how the decision is going to go, but I feel this may be something people will want to talk about," he said.

Accountability sessions will not be designated for specific issues such as Devon-53, and Zetek said he will not limit the subjects the residents want to discuss. "In order for the sessions to be viable, rewarding discussions, all subjects will be discussed on any level with the residents."

ZETEK SAID he borrowed the idea of accountability sessions from Gov. Dan Walker. "They (discussions) can provide an avenue for people to talk to the village president about anything they want. Government has a responsibility to communicate, and if there is anything the government does poorly, it is communicating," he said.

Zetek promised during the recent election campaign to have these sessions. He said he chose to have the first general session after the Devon-53 decision because of the development's impact on the community. However, he said he has not decided whether or not to have the session after the village plan commission makes its recommendation or after the village trustees make their final decisions.

"A great many residents are interested in Devon-53, and I feel the accountability session would be an appropriate vehicle for residents to express themselves," he said.

Zetek pointed out that residents already are given a chance to voice their opinions during a special segment of each village board meeting, and the accountability sessions will not be the first opportunity to talk.

"I don't know what the residents' response will be (to an accountability session), but I hope the session will prove to be a good experience for the village government and the people," Zetek said.

5 elementary schools get new principals by Sept. 4

Five schools in Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 will have new men in the principals' offices when classes begin Sept. 4.

Lively Junior High School and Byrd Elementary School in Elk Grove Village, Dempster Junior High School and John Jay Elementary School in Mount Prospect, and Brentwood School in Des Plaines are getting new principals.

Two principals, Thomas Powers at Dempster and James Fay at John Jay are leaving the district for one-year sabbaticals.

Replacing Powers at Dempster is John Tofano, the present principal at Byrd School. The district is still interviewing applicants for the principal's job at John Jay.

REPLACING Tofano at Byrd School is Thomas Tucker, new in the district. Tucker has taught and served as a principal for two different school systems in Ohio.

Charles Bassford, principal at Lively Junior High School, is to be the district's director of curriculum review. He will move into his new job in the district's central administration office as a member of the department of instruction.

Replacing Thornton at Brentwood is Claude Crase, now a principal at Franz School in Itasca.

The mayors of Cincinnati and San Francisco demanded that the Conference of Mayors that the White House explain why President Nixon is holding up $265 million, already appropriated, to provide summer jobs for youths.

President Nixon's reelection finance committee was fined $3,000 for failing to report the $200,000 campaign contribution from financier Robert Vesco.

Thousands of people swindled out of their life savings when the City Savings Association of Chicago folded in 1964, would get their money back if a bill passed yesterday by the House becomes law. The money would come from the state's general revenue fund.

THIS WRECKAGE was left after a Soo Line R.R. train smashed into the side of a car driven by Margaret Rogers of Park Ridge, killing her Tuesday night. The accident occurred at Morrison Avenue in an unincorporated area near Kensington and River roads. The train was traveling about 40 miles per hour at the time of the crash, according to sheriff's police.

Center for mildly retarded to open

The Clearbrook Center of Rolling Meadows next week will open its new community living quarters for mildly retarded adults in the convent building at Our Lady of the Wayside Catholic Church in Arlington Heights.

About 10 mildly retarded adults are expected to move into the living quarters on Tuesday or Wednesday, a Clearbrook spokesman said yesterday. By September, 20 young adults will be staying in the former convent building.

The live-in quarters at Wayside are the first such facility for mildly retarded persons in the Northwest area.

Since permission to use the building was granted by the Arlington Heights Village Board in January, Clearbrook has been renovating the building at 432 S. Mitchell Ave. About $15,000 has been spent on the structure originally built to house 27 nuns.

A fire alarm system has been installed along with other fire safety modifications needed to meet state and village fire codes, the spokesman said.

Clearbrook is licensed by the Illinois Department of Public Health to operate the community living facility which must pass inspection by both state and village fire marshals.

IT HAS A three-year lease for use of the building at an annual rent of $12,000. After two years, the center has agreed to provide the village with a written evaluation of the live-in facility.

Boarders will be supervised by "house parents," a married couple living in the building, as well as two assistant house parents or a part-time recreation director who will be available on weekends and in the morning and evening hours.

All of the residents are employed, either at Clearbrook's sheltered workshop in Elk Grove Village or at private jobs in the community, the spokesman said.

The purpose of the live-in center is to give moderately and mildly retarded adults experience in semi-independent living in order that some of them may eventually move into their own apartment.

Men and women at the facility are adults over 18 years of age. All boarders are ambulatory and must either be current or former residents of the Northwest suburban area or be enrolled at a state institution or school.

RESIDENTS WILL BE trained in areas of personal grooming, socialization and communication, management of food, clothing, finances and transportation, vocational training, community services and leisure time activities.

The estimated cost per tenant is $396 per month and will be paid by the state. In addition, persons employed and earning more than $50 a month are responsible for a proportionate amount for room and board.

Establishment of the live-in center was opposed by some residents in the vicinity of the Wayside convent. Other residents, however, said they supported the new use for the building.

Last year the convent building was occupied by only seven nuns and would have been completely empty by the start of the next school year, the church said.

along Elk Grove Boulevard and will not turn on Kennedy Boulevard. The review stand is on Elk Grove Boulevard, between Queen of the Rosary Church and the Lutheran Church of the Holy Spirit.

Eight floats, 10 drum and bugle corps, other marching units and a "large number" of vehicles are scheduled for the parade. Hopefully some of the units in the parade will have peonies.

The Jaycee Carnival, which has become part of the Pageant, will be run tomorrow through Sunday at Lions Park, 180 Kennedy Blvd.

Carnival proceeds are used to finance Jaycee community programs and pay for the next year's parade.

This year a bike-decorating contest will be at 10:30 a.m. Saturday in the Queen of the Rosary parking lot. Nine winners in different age groups will ride in the parade. The grand prize winner will receive a bicycle.

From 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, all children's rides at the carnival will be offered at reduced rates.

4% teachers pay hike OK'd

A new 4 per cent pay hike contract for Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 teachers will be effective for the coming school year.

The school board unanimously accepted the contract at Monday's board meeting. The teachers had approved the contract about a week ago.

Teachers' salaries are figured on a base pay determined by the amount of education a teacher has. Each of the base pay levels was raised four per cent.

The starting salary for a teacher with a bachelor's degree is now $8,369 a year.

In addition to the base pay raises, teachers also receive an additional four per cent annual raise for each year of service in the district.

School officials have estimated the total cost of salaries at $5.9 million.

Other new provisions in the contract include:

- Allowing women to use accumulated, paid sick leave for maternity leave. In the past, the district only permitted unpaid maternity leave.
- Improved life insurance policy based on a teacher's salary.
- Longevity payments after 20 and 25 years service.
- Simplified grievance procedures.

Train slams into car, kills woman

A Park Ridge woman was killed Tuesday night when a Soo Line R.R. freight train slammed into her car at a crossing north of Mount Prospect.

Mrs. Margaret Rogers, 62, was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital after the 7 p.m. accident.

The engineer, Robert Acord, of Fond Du Lac, Wis., told sheriff's police he was traveling southbound about 40 miles per hour when he saw a car start to cross the tracks at a private driveway crossing at Morrison Avenue.

Acord said the car paused on the crossing for unknown reasons, and he was unable to stop the train to avoid the collision. The car was knocked from the tracks and was found about 50 feet from the point of impact, police said.

Sheriff's police said Mrs. Rogers was apparently returning home after a visit with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. David Wunsch, 150 Morrison Ave.

The street does not cross the tracks, but the driveway leading to a few homes on the west side crosses them. Morrison Avenue is in an unincorporated area five blocks south of Kensington Road just west of River Road.

Federal parole violator returned to authorities

John Raymond Van Buskirk, 51, was turned over to federal authorities yesterday in Elk Grove Village to complete a sentence for interstate transportation of fraudulently obtained money.

Village policeman John Bantner arrested Van Buskirk Friday after a citizen complained that the man had threatened him with a gun at a local tavern. Police said Bantner did not find Van Buskirk with a gun, but he was charged with possession of illegal drugs.

At the time of his arrest, Van Buskirk told police his name was Guy James Labonte of Toledo, Ohio. Authorities said Van Buskirk refused to submit to fingerprinting. Later Friday Van Buskirk was taken before a judge in Niles branch of Cook County circuit court, where he was ordered to submit to fingerprinting and bond was set at $10,000.

POLICE SAID the man who called himself "Labonte" still refused to be fingerprinted, but on Monday he revealed his real name was Van Buskirk. Village authorities said they then discovered Van Buskirk was a federal parole violator from Atlanta, Ga.

Village police said Van Buskirk's prison sentence stemmed from marrying widows and bilking them for their savings. Van Buskirk also has been convicted of forgery, theft and rape, according to authorities.

Yesterday Van Buskirk pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor drug charge in Elk Grove Village, and the six days he served in jail was considered his sentence.

"everyday"

Interest. That's pretty special. But there's more. That daily interest is compounded daily. Paid quarterly. So you can deposit when you like. Withdraw when you need to. Never lose interest provided you maintain $25 or more in your account at the end of the quarter. In fact, you even gain. All money deposited by the 10th earns from the 1st ... if you leave it on deposit until the end of the calendar quarter. Sounds interesting? New police exam ordered by judge in cops' lawsuit

A new promotion examination was ordered yesterday for Palatine policemen by Cook County Circuit Court Judge Edward F. Healy, after 18 policemen filed a lawsuit charging that an earlier test was unfairly graded.

Healy's ruling was based on a technicality which requires that all men taking such an examination must agree to waive the right of publishing public notice before the police and fire commission could legally forego publishing the announcement of the test.

The court outcome was a compromise between village and police attorneys. The original two lawsuits filed by the 18 policemen charged that the three-member Palatine Police and Fire Commission had allowed Chief Robert R. Centner to help administer and grade the test, and that the examination was designed for unblinded machine grading, rather than the manual method used by the Palatine commissioners.

JUDGE HEALY'S ruling found that except for the notice, the examination itself and the grading of the test were "in all other respects proper," clearing the three commissioners and Centner of the charges of bias, according to village Atty. William Littlejohn.

All 28 policemen who took the original March 21 test will have to take the new examination to qualify for the one sergeant vacancy. Only seven men passed the first test.

Before someone is given the sergeant rank, the men who pass the upcoming written test will be called to answer an oral examination given by the police and fire commissioners.

The new test will be "rescheduled as soon as possible," according to newly-appointed commission chairman Paul Jung. Three weeks notice prior to the test is required by law, so the exam will probably be rescheduled for mid-July or later.

THREE COMMISSIONERS who were named in the lawsuit were replaced last month on recommendation of village Pres. Wendell Jones, who recommended Jung, Gray M. Sanborn and Roger Mlek to take over the commission.

Former commissioners were chairman Walter Sorokin, William Holland and George Heilmann, whose terms expired last month.

Voters elected a Republican majority to the village board in April, and the new appointments to the police and fire commission are only three of several changes initiated by the new trustees in the village government so far. Earlier this week, Republican trustees called for Centner to step down as chief, alleging that he had failed to develop an effective drug program and was not providing enough leadership for the department.

Village officials put in 'hot seat' by trustees

Two more Palatine department heads were in the hot seat this week, called before the village board to account for what their departments are and are not doing.

Environmental health director Richard A. Dawson and public works director James Bennett were grilled by the trustees for an hour each amid two outbursts by Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun in their defense.

Dawson and Bennett appeared before the trustees following their Monday night board meeting, and the questioning of the two department heads was about as vigorous as in the previous sessions between the trustees and the other four department heads.

And, as in the previous meetings, Braun stood up for the employees, at one point telling the trustees: "If you want any of these men's resignations, you should ask for it and quit pussyfooting around."

BRAUN DIDN'T hide his anger at some of the trustees' questions of Dawson and Bennett, noting that the village board, not the department heads, set policy.

"I think somewhere along the line we as an administrative organization, or I as village manager, or whoever you want as village manager in here, have got to have some kind of direction," he said.

Braun indicated he resented department heads' being asked in an open meeting what their departments have been doing the last six years, "then getting slapped back."

"It's one thing to change direction," he said. "It's another thing to rack a guy up on a cross because he was doing what he was told to do (by a previous village board)."

THE QUESTIONING of Dawson, the health director, was led by Trustee Bryan P. Coughlin Jr., who was armed with several typewritten sheets of questions.

The questions focused mainly on the inspection of restaurants, which the trustees consider the most important function of the health department, and also touched upon other, mostly environmental, programs.

"OK, SLUGGER, keep this arm straight and relax," orders coach Bud Borman, as he works to take the baseball swing out of Palatine kids in beginning golf lessons.

Nine-year-old Howard Burns got the idea by the end of the first session and was swinging with the best of 'em.

Palatine parks program begins

Youngsters become fairway swingers

by JULIA BAUER

A golf club can be pretty unwieldy when it's almost as tall as you are. But 16 avid beginners at the game didn't let that slow them down, as they began swishing away at the elusive white ball at the Palatine Hills Golf Course this week.

Some of the kids addressed the ball as if it was a tricky knuckleball coming at them from the mound. The swing was unmistakable. But by the end of one class, even the Mickey Mantles started resembling the fairway heroes of the country club circuit.

The occasion was the first day of golf lessons for kids in the Palatine Park District. At first glance, it looked like two small armies were facing off across a meadow, shooting for the two young girls running across the no man's land in the middle to retrieve the misfired shots.

In reality, none of the new golf addicts were powerful enough yet to be a real threat to the retrievers. But given another lesson, it may become a challenge to duck the hard white missiles. Perhaps the next lesson for the enthusiasts should include how to use the crucial expression "Fore!"

AT ONE END of the field, coach Bud Borman barked instructions to his lineup of players. Boys ranging from 8 to 12 years old took on fierce expressions, bit their lips, kept their eye on the ball (for a little while), and turned in strange contortions as they tried to imitate the coach's swing.

Some of the kids actually hit the ball the first time. Others gave it a good scare as they skimmed the grass. And the remaining beginners left bare patches as they dug out divot after divot, shooting both the ball and the lawn onto the meadow.

At the other end, older boys and a smattering of girls tried their hand at the game. Here coach Ken Peck from St. Viator High School watched the kids to catch their good and bad habits as they started to develop. If the kids were lucky, their swing was on the mark, the ball sailed onto the field and their follow through was perfect — all while the coach was watching. But invariably, on the next stroke, they'd blow it completely and take on a doubly sheepish grin, as they realized they didn't have the game mastered yet.

When one young girl timidly swung at the ball "in slow motion," as Peck put it, the instructor showed her how to "violently attack the ball," to use the strength in her arms and shoulders to get the ball off its tee.

SOME YOUNGER players had the opposite problem. "Slow up," Borman told the kids. "Don't kill the ball. You're trying to kill it."

If missing the ball while the coach was watching wasn't bad enough, the ultimate indignity came when one by one, each golfer tried his swing under the critical eye of his golfing peers. A miss then was mortifying, and the kids showed it. But with another swing or two, the ball was off the ground, and the reputation was spared.

By the end of the first lesson, the gangling preteens started to get the idea.

When Borman offered a Coke to the guy who hit the best stroke in the final try of the day, the shots improved markedly.

"AH, WHEN THERE'S money involved, you guys get a lot better," Borman teased his following. But it wasn't just money. It was the basic sense of competition and desire to perform well that made the difference.

There are only three more formal lessons in this series with the park district. Each learner will get a try at the irons, woods and putting before the session ends. After that, they're on their own, borrowing Dad's or Mom's clubs whenever they get a chance. Some of them may grow into high school golfers, the next level of instruction for most of the kids. Between now and then, they can keep reading and practicing the swing exercises and techniques they're learning now.

At least one thing is certain. At the end of four weeks, everybody should know the difference between his baseball swing and his golf swing.

Trustees to reorganize village departmental structure

A reorganization in the structure of Palatine village departments will be discussed tonight by village trustees.

Trustee Richard W. Fonte, who heads the village board's administration, finance and legislation committee, will suggest that power be decentralized, with the village manager making fewer decisions and individual department heads more.

"We have an over-centralization of the management function," he said. "And we have a real need for developing managerial capabilities at the departmental levels."

Fonte denied that the reorganization plans suggest a lack of confidence in the village manager, Berton G. Braun.

"I just think he's overcentralized the power structure and overburdened himself with a lot of things," Fonte said. "He's still the prime person, and he's bright. He has got the capability to be a good village manager."

Fonte also will recommend an administrative engineer be hired to oversee the public works and building departments.

The heads of these two departments would work in a supervisory, rather than managerial capacity.

Fonte said he arrived at the recommendations as a result of the managerial review sessions his committee has held with each department head.

The recommendations will be discussed by the village board tonight in executive session.

Fonte classified the finance and fire departments as the best run departments; followed by the public works, building and health departments. The police department, he said, is in the most need of reorganization.

Fonte listed several suggestions which he said would improve the various departments.

He proposed that the finance department change its accounting procedures from fund accounting to "responsibility accounting" to keep better track of how the village money is being spent.

The fire department, he said, should strengthen its fire inspection program while continuing its transition from a volunteer to professional force.

An administrative engineer should oversee the public works and building departments, Fonte suggested, to relieve the department heads of administrative duties.

In addition, he said, the public works department should hire a motor fuel tax specialist to prepare paperwork for the village to apply for more MFT funds, and the building department should hire a planning review specialist to go over builders' plans.

The health department, according to Fonte, should reorganize its priorities, with greater emphasis on food inspection and less on "peripheral environmental programs."

The police department, he said, needs greater managerial and supervisory direction. Fonte said he concurred with other Republican members of the village board in seeking a new police chief.

Fonte said he had not discussed his reorganization suggestions with any of the department heads.

Center for mildly retarded to open

The Clearbrook Center of Rolling Meadows next week will open its new community living quarters for mildly retarded adults in the convent building at Our Lady of the Wayside Catholic Church in Arlington Heights.

About 10 mildly retarded adults are expected to move into the living quarters on Tuesday or Wednesday, a Clearbrook spokesman said yesterday. By September, 20 young adults will be staying in the former convent building.

The live-in quarters at Wayside are the first such facility for mildly retarded persons in the Northwest area.

Since permission to use the building was granted by the Arlington Heights Village Board in January, Clearbrook has been renovating the building at 432 S. Mitchell Ave. About $15,000 has been spent on the structure originally built to house 27 nuns.

A fire alarm system has been installed along with other fire safety modifications needed to meet state and village fire codes, the spokesman said.

Clearbrook is licensed by the Illinois Department of Public Health to operate the community living facility which must pass inspection by both state and village fire marshals.

IT HAS A three-year lease for use of the building at an annual rent of $12,000. After two years, the center has agreed to provide the village with a written evaluation of the live-in facility.

Boards will be supervised by "house parents," a married couple living in the building, as well as two assistant house parents or a part-time recreation director who will be available on weekends and in the morning and evening hours.

All of the residents are employed, either at Clearbrook's sheltered workshop in Elk Grove Village or at private jobs in the community, the spokesman said.

The purpose of the live-in center is to give moderately and mildly retarded adults experience in semi-independent living in order that some of them may eventually move into their own apartment.

Men and women at the facility are adults over 18 years of age. All boarders are ambulatory and must either be current or former residents of the Northwest suburban area or be enrolled at a state institution or school.

RESIDENTS WILL BE trained in areas of personal grooming, socialization and communication, management of food, clothing, finances and transportation, vocational training, community services and leisure time activities.

The estimated cost per tenant is $396 per month and will be paid by the state. In addition, persons employed and earning more than $50 a month are responsible for a proportionate amount for room and board.

Establishment of the live-in center was opposed by some residents in the vicinity of the Wayside convent. Other residents, however, said they supported the new use for the building.

Last year the convent building was occupied by only seven nuns and would have been completely empty by the start of the next school year, the church said.

Las Haciendas development gets county zoning OK

Another chunk of land in northeast Palatine Township was rezoned for apartments this week when Cook County commissioners gave their final approval to the 26-acre Las Haciendas development.

Property on two sides of the newest development has already been rezoned for apartments, including Ivy Glen apartments, the Kassuba Trace apartments and Hidden Creek apartment condominium project. Las Haciendas is in the northeast corner of the Hicks-Nichols Road intersection. It is west of the Ill. Rte. 53 right-of-way and south of the Lake-Cook county line.

Las Haciendas is being constructed by Orloff Associates Inc., a Chicago real estate and building firm.

The California "mission-style" buildings will be two stories tall, with one, two and three-bedroom units, according to Arnold Orloff, who testified at the April zoning hearing for the project.

LONG GROVE officials and residents had opposed the new development, fearing it would bring considerably more traffic to their village north of Las Haciendas.

The county zoning board of appeals overruled the objection by recommending that the county commissioners approve the necessary zoning change.

The development will have 44 buildings with eight units each. As condominium apartments, the 14 one-bedroom units will sell for $20,000, with two-bedroom units costing between $33,000 and $39,000. Three-bedroom apartments will sell for $43,000 to $44,000, according to Orloff estimates.

School Dist. 15 will get $50 from the project for each second and third bedroom in the units, to compensate the district for its two-year tax lag. The schools will not start receiving tax income from the apartments during the first two years, and the developer contribution is designed to relieve the cost of educating children living in Las Haciendas during that lag period.

Train slams into car, kills woman

A Park Ridge woman was killed Tuesday night when a Soo Line R.R. freight train slammed into her car at a crossing north of Mount Prospect.

Mrs. Margaret Rogers, 62, was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital after the 7 p.m. accident.

The engineer, Robert Acord, of Fond Du Lac, Wis., told sheriff's police he was traveling southbound about 40 miles per hour when he saw a car start to cross the tracks at a private driveway crossing at Morrison Avenue.

Acord said the car paused on the crossing for unknown reasons, and he was unable to stop the train to avoid the collision. The car was knocked from the tracks and was found about 50 feet from the point of impact, police said.

Sheriff's police said Mrs. Rogers was apparently returning home after a visit with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. David Wunsch, 150 Morrison Ave.

The street does not cross the tracks, but the driveway leading to a few homes on the west side crosses them. Morrison Avenue is in an unincorporated area five blocks south of Kensington Road just west of Illver Road.

City scholarships won't be available this school year

City funded scholarships for college-bound students in Rolling Meadows will not be available for the coming academic year beginning in September, Ald. Thomas Waldron (2nd) said last night.

Waldron, the new chairman of the city's public information and education committee (PIE) which is studying the scholarship plan, said the amount of work required to set up guidelines and planning for the program before the scholarships are issued make it impossible to begin the program in September.

Mayor Roland Meyer, who originally proposed the plan in December as a possible use for city revenue sharing funds, had hoped the plan could be implemented this year.

"There is nothing we can do for this year," Waldron said at a PIE committee meeting last night. "There is so much work that has to be done beforehand."

THE CITY HAS allocated $10,000 in its current budget for the program. The funds were made available to permit the program to be researched and possibly implemented this year. The money could be carried over to next year's budget if the program is not started this year, or it could be used for other city expenses if the plan is abandoned completely.

Waldron said Meyer had asked him to contact local educators to determine what should be done to plan for the program. Waldron said Robert Hoes, principal at Rolling Meadows High School, told him the committee would "need to do a lot of homework" before starting a program to aid college-bound students.

Hoes also told Waldron the city should reconsider whether it wanted to offer ten $1,000 scholarships, which would require a yearly expenditure of $40,000 in city funds.

Ald. Merrill Wuerch (1st), outgoing PIE committee chairman, said last night the city could terminate the program if it could not afford the expense, but Waldron said he would prefer reducing the scope of the program rather than scrapping the program once it is started.

WALDRON SUGGESTED the city offer two 4-year scholarships at $1,000 per year and two 2-year scholarships at $500 for students who attend Harper College or a vocational school. The proposal would mean only a $10,000 yearly fund would be required in the city budget.

He also suggested several qualifications to be considered in awarding the scholarships, including residency in the city for at least two years, the number of other family members in college and in the family, and an essay from applicants detailing why they would like to win the scholarship.

A minimum grade average of B was also suggested by Waldron, but Wuerch said he would prefer to see students with C averages be included in consideration.

Final decisions on the qualifications of applicants, standards of judging, and the number of scholarships to be awarded will be determined by a special committee to be appointed by Meyer. Recommendations from the committee would have to be approved by the city council.

Wuerch and Waldron agreed the committee should continue working on the proposal with a goal of having the scholarships awarded in June of 1974.

Other PIE committee members Ald. Stephen Eberhard (3rd) and Ald. Daniel Weber (4th) were absent from the meeting.

TYING TOGETHER the Tilt-a-Whirl was one of the many preparations completed yesterday as the Topps carnival got underway in Rolling Meadows.

The carnival will run nightly through Sunday under the sponsorship of the Jaycees. Money raised from the annual event will be used to purchase fireworks for the Fourth of July display put on by the Jaycees in Kimball Hill Park.

Well - almost

Here's a place that's got everything

There's a small world of entertainment, knowledge and fantasy located under one roof in Rolling Meadows. It's a place that people usually only go to when they need a book or an encyclopedia, but it houses much more than that.

The place is the Rolling Meadows Library, 3110 Martin Ln., and it is more than just someplace where a person can check out a book, according to Virginia Connell, librarian.

"A library is a resource center. What else can it be called?" she says. Residents can find just about anything they would need in the way of educational material at the library from the 39,000 books and almost 100 magazine collections at the library, she says.

In addition, the library provides pamphlets giving information on health programs, social security and other government services, more than 2,000 records ranging from language instruction to literature, opera, classical and rock music; and educational films.

THERE ALSO are slides in the art department that can be checked out by adults, numerous reference books, paperback books, U.S. telephone directories for all parts of the country, daily newspapers from the Washington Post to the Wall Street Journal and special children's reading and film hours for the summer and winter.

And in case a person still can't find what he's looking for, chances are the library can get it for him through the library with facilities at suburban libraries from Evanston to Elgin.

"We're going in so many directions at one time," Miss Connell says of the expanding services. "At the rate we're going, we're going to have to expand at least by 1975 or hopefully sooner."

Earlier this year, the library opened a new children's section on its lower level. The special section is highlighted by a carpeted well used for story hours. The well is decorated with psychedelic lighting and is located next to a fairytale cardboard castle.

THE ARTWORK throughout the rest of the section reflects the talents of youngsters in the city, including a paper-mache, near-life-size camel named Ginger, after Thomas Ginger, the sixth-grade boy who patiently worked at the library to complete what began as a class project.

Expansion of the reference and periodical rooms are on tap for the library, according to Miss Connell. New telephone lines are being added as well because one line into the library is no longer adequate, she says.

Part of the library's expansion is due to contributions from private citizens, Miss Connell says. The library's paperback book collection is entirely donated as are many older titled books. Recently a resident, Robert L. Cramer, presented the library with a collection of works on Egyptian history, two framed artworks depicting ancient Egypt's view of life after death and a small statue of an Egyptian pharaoh.

Plans are still in the working for a library on wheels in the form of a bookmobile, but at present, those plans are "at a standstill," Miss Connell says. "We had hoped to get a government surplus vehicle loaned to us through the Civil Defense, but it seems the government isn't loaning out any of the equipment."

"WE'RE MORE or less stymied until we can get a vehicle," she says. "The Civil Defense was going to subsidize it and in the event of an emergency, it could be converted for Civil Defense use."

Much of the work in getting the bookmobile and other equipment and materials for the library is done by the Friends of the Library, a group of local residents who volunteer their time for the library.

The Friends sponsor fund-raising drives for the library and assist in special programs like the children's story hours. "Practically all of our expensive reference books have been purchased with funds raised by the Friends," Miss Connell says. The group also purchased a microfilming machine for the library last year.

"The Friends actually started the library," Miss Connell says. "This building was built five years ago. Before that the library was in a house on Meadow Dr. The kitchen was the children's section, the garage had the book stacks, and the bedrooms were the reference rooms."

"We've come a long way since then," she adds. "A library is a poor man's university, and it should serve that purpose."

The nation

Two midwestern senators called for a further delay of up to 14 months in construction of a pipeline to carry Alaskan oil to U.S. markets.

It will take about $213 billion and an all-out effort to convert to nuclear power to enable the utility industry to best meet the demand for electricity by 1985, the National Petroleum Council said yesterday.

John W. Dean III testified that President Nixon succeeded in stalling a 1972 congressional investigation of the Watergate bugging and requested that tax audits be halted for some friends, a Senate summary of the ousted White House counsel's private testimony revealed.

Skylab's flying physician said the astronauts felt surprisingly good and had no problems working in zero-gravity during the world's longest spaceflight.

The mayors of Cincinnati and San Francisco demanded that the Conference of Mayors that the White House explain why President Nixon is holding up $265 million, already appropriated, to provide summer jobs for youths.

President Nixon's reelection finance committee was fined $3,000 for failing to report the $200,000 campaign contribution from financier Robert Vesco.

St. Colette losing a friend—Father Eugene Faucher

"It's like attending your own wake," said the Rev. Eugene Faucher, talking about his transfer from St. Colette parish in Rolling Meadows to St. Bernadine's parish in Forest Park.

Father Faucher will celebrate his last mass at St. Colette Church at 1 p.m. Sunday. The mass will be followed by a reception for Father Faucher in the church hall.

Nearly six years of memorable experiences and friends are being left behind by Father Faucher, who moved into the St. Bernadine Rectory on Tuesday.

The transfer was not requested but automatic under a new personnel board policy of the Chicago Archdiocese which requires priests to be transferred every five years to provide them with a greater variety of experiences.

"THE NEW PARISH can be seen as a new challenge, but I don't think I ever got in a rut here," said Father Faucher.

Father Faucher was ordained in 1951 and taught Latin, Greek and religion in the Minor Seminary at Quigley for 10 years before coming to St. Colette in October of 1967.

"I was delighted to get back into parish work," he said, explaining he didn't think he was cut out to be a classroom teacher. "I had never been in the suburbs before and I thought people were caught up in their community and ready to give their life and blood for the church, but I soon discovered this was only a limited percentage."

"Out here there are all kinds of exciting causes," he said. "There are a greater number of mothers and fathers who are both working and don't have the time to come forward and volunteer their services," he said.

Despite his disappointment that more people did not come forward, Father Faucher says his "experience here (at St. Colette) has been fulfilling and delightful and the people have been marvelous."

Father Faucher first experienced the kindness and responsiveness of the St. Colette parish only four months after his arrival at St. Colette when he came down with tuberculosis. He spent seven months at the county sanitarium in Hinsdale and still remembers "how wonderful" the people were about sending cards and visiting after he was released.

AT ST. COLETTE Father Faucher was the chairman of the 10-member liturgy committee and taught a couple of classes at St. Colette School.

Changes in the liturgy had just been introduced before Father Faucher's arrival and there was still a great deal of reluctance to the new liturgy to be overcome. He feels as people became more familiar with the new liturgy there was a greater acceptance.

Father Faucher explains the new liturgy by saying "before we prayed together in the same building but we were really not praying together, the prayers were 'me' centered. Now the parish prays a prayer in common for all the parish." He feels this helps tear the liturgy away from an egocentric base.

Father Faucher still does not know what his responsibilities will be at St. Bernadine, but hopes to remain centrally involved in liturgy planning. He will be replaced at St. Colette by the Rev. Edward Reading, who was formerly with Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church in Glenview.

Headstart chiefs seek new office after parks fire

Officials of Project Headstart said recently they will work to reach an agreement with the Northwest Human Resources Development Center in Rolling Meadows for office space there in the wake of a fire last week that destroyed Headstart offices at the Pioneer Park field house.

Ann Anderson, director of Headstart, said she will meet with representatives of the center to attempt to negotiate an agreement that would allow Headstart offices there. "We had approached them before," Miss Anderson said. She said no other sites have been considered for Headstart.

Headstart offices were completely destroyed in a Friday afternoon fire at the Pioneer Park field house in Arlington Heights. A short circuit in an electric fan has been blamed as the cause of the fire.

MISS ANDERSON said the fire claimed all records and files kept by Headstart for the past several years. Desks, chairs, two typewriters, a borrowed photo copier and movie projector were among the items lost in the fire, she said.

She said insurance was carried, but an agent told her the entire amount lost may not be recovered because the fire caused such extensive damage.

Headstart offices are temporarily being located in the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows, said Miss Anderson. "We don't have a centrally-located office now and it's most inconvenient because people don't know where to call," she said.

She said she has not discussed with opportunity center director Bruce Newton how long Headstart may stay in their offices.

Train slams into car, kills woman

A Park Ridge woman was killed Tuesday night when a Soo Line R.R. freight train slammed into her car at a crossing north of Mount Prospect.

Mrs. Margaret Rogers, 62, was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital after the 7 p.m. accident.

The engineer, Robert Acord, of Fond Du Lac, Wis., told sheriff's police he was traveling southbound about 40 miles per hour when he saw a car start to cross the tracks at a private driveway crossing at Morrison Avenue.

Acord said the car paused on the crossing for unknown reasons, and he was unable to stop the train to avoid the collision. The car was knocked from the tracks and was found about 50 feet from the point of impact, police said.

Sheriff's police said Mrs. Rogers was apparently returning home after a visit with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. David Wunsch, 150 Morrison Ave.

The street does not cross the tracks, but the driveway leading to a few homes on the west side crosses them. Morrison Avenue is in an unincorporated area five blocks south of Kensington Road just west of River Road.

City gets $101,637

A total of $101,637.80 in sales tax rebates was sent to Rolling Meadows by the state for the month of March, Deputy City Clerk Elizabeth Houdsworth reported. The sum represents a percentage of the total sales tax collected in the city in March.

Park meetings changed

Regular monthly meetings of the Rolling Meadows Park District have been changed from the fourth Thursday of the month to the second Thursday of the month.

Park board meetings will be held at 8:30 p.m. in the park office, 1 Park Meadow Pl.

U.S. cash to be used for water fund

The Rolling Meadows City Council has voted to allocate its federal revenue sharing money from the first half of 1973 to rebuild the city's water fund.

The water fund has been depleted due to major capital expenditures for a sixth well site for the city. City Treasurer Robert Cole had recommended last month that the city consider using revenue sharing money rather than a water rate increase to replenish the water fund.

In voting to divert the revenue sharing money to the water fund, the council replaced about $102,000 of $128,000 taken from the fund. The funds represent revenue sharing money given to the city from January to June this year.

City Mgr. Jim Watson told the council Tuesday the transfer of funds will not affect the purchase of flood control equipment which will be paid for with revenue sharing money from 1972. The equipment was purchased with some $65,000 of the $177,000 revenue sharing total allotted to the city from the federal government last year.

Business license law OK'd by city council

A new business license ordinance regulating the operation and license fees of businesses in Rolling Meadows was approved last week by the city council.

The new ordinance is essentially the same as the city's previous ordinance except for a new section added to regulate carnivals and circuses, according to Ald. John Rock (3rd), who chaired the ordinance committee when the new law was written.

The ordinance sets the license fee for carnivals and circuses at $50 per day of operation with a minimum fee of $200. Rock said most other business fees in the ordinance remained the same because they are in line with fees charged in surrounding communities.

Library summer fun for children

Children's summer activity at the Rolling Meadows Public Library this year will include movies shown at the library and a "reading for fun" program, according to librarian Virginia Connell.

Movies will be shown from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays at the library, 3110 Martin Ln. Children may also begin registering this week for an eight-week summer reading program. Children who read 12 books in the session will receive certificates. Those who read 15 or more books will be invited to a picnic at the library, Miss Connell said.

Police confiscate 93 lbs. of dope; one arrest made

Schaumburg police yesterday afternoon confiscated 93 pounds of marijuana in what chief Martin Conroy called the village's "biggest bust ever."

The merchandise, valued at $15,000 was obtained from a house at 827 Down Court. Arrested in the incident was Charlene D. Hunt, who listed a Bensenville address. Bond has been set for her at $25,000.

Two weapons were seized in the raid, a .38 automatic and a .22 revolver.

Chief Conroy said it is believed Miss Hunt has been living in the house and a warrant is being sought for another person police believe is residing there too.

"It's real good stuff; real good," Conroy added, in reporting the estimated sale price at $160 per pound.

The arrest, made in cooperation with MEG (Metropolitan Enforcement Group) police, came after a surveillance of the house by Schaumburg police, said Conroy.

The MEG people obtained the warrant to enter the house based on observations made by Schaumburg police, he added. The confiscation and arrest was made about 5:15 p.m. yesterday.

MISS HUNT has been apprised of her rights and "she's not talking; not saying a word," said Conroy, adding that there may be other arrests to follow.

There could be more than one person living in the house, believed to be rented, and police were checking with the owner yesterday evening to see whose name is on the lease. "We still have the house staked out," the chief added at 6 p.m. yesterday.

Conroy said the house had mattresses scattered all over, adding to the possibility that more persons are involved. He added there is other merchandise in the house, being checked out to determine where it came from.

"It's a good bust, and there's a good spirit of cooperation between MEG and ourselves," said Conroy. The village's second biggest marijuana confiscation was only 15 pounds, less than one sixth the amount taken yesterday.

Local police credited in the arrest included Sgt. John Barabas, in charge of Schaumburg's police detective bureau; Det. Howard Winkelhake and Det. Thomas Osterman.

Firemen face possible pay cut, lay offs

Hoffman Estates firemen were faced with possible 10 per cent pay cuts or lay offs of up to five men after they demanded a response to charges they filed against Deputy Chief Edward Kalasa.

Board Pres. William Brilliant last night cited the "serious financial status" of the fire district due to lower than anticipated tax revenue in announcing the board is exploring alternative solutions to a fund shortage. Among planned action is asking the Village of Hoffman Estates to give the district part of its federal revenue sharing allocation.

But, Chief Carl Selke added, other alternatives to the list when he announced the board had directed him to "voice my opinion as to operations . . . to stay within our means."

The district could lay off some men, and give others pay raises; could reduce all salaries by 10 per cent, or could lay off some men, grant raises to others and return to a previous duty schedule which would "rely heavily on volunteer staffing at nights," said Selke.

IN LINE WITH his findings, Selke directed Kalasa and shift officers to file efficiency reports on all men within 30 days. Selke could base a decision on furloughing, or laying off, up to five men until more funds are available on the reports, he said. The reports are to evaluate ability as firemen, paramedics and emergency medical technicians and general "attitude toward this department." The district employs only 18 firefighters, after the resignation of one man who now will not be replaced.

The district board members and Selke insisted the only reason for the pay cuts or lay offs, if they become necessary, would be lack of money. The district tax revenue increased by only about $10,000 in the current fiscal year, from about $300,000 last year, they said. Since last year, the district has increased expenses by instituting training programs and expanding duty shifts to have paid firemen on duty 24 hours per day, said Brilliant.

Parking holding up Woodfield Plaza OK

Inadequate parking is still holding up approval of Woodfield Plaza, planned for two eight-story office buildings and a three-screen movie theater.

A spokesman for the Schaumburg Plan Commission said J. Emil Anderson and Sons, developer of the plaza, presented a plan with 455 parking spaces. At the initial meeting two weeks ago, the plans commission asked Anderson to provide 520 parking spaces.

The commission asked Anderson to rework the plans and resubmit them to the village engineer for review. A special meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday before the village board meeting to consider the new drawings.

Woodfield Plaza presently contains the drive-in facility of Woodfield Bank. Richard Bateman, vice-president of J. Emil Anderson, said General Cinema Corp. has approached the firm and is interested in operating the theater.

The proposed office buildings will together contain about 130,000 square feet of rentable space.

COMMERCIAL CRITIC Joyce Kroll discusses her experience rating commercials for the Leo Burnett Public Opinion Center in Woodfield Mall. The Hoffman Estates resident found watching the same commercials for an hour a day over a two-week period an enjoyable and interesting project.

Honesty and credibility are of prime importance in a good commercial, she said.

And now a word from our . . .

She gets to play commercial critic

by MARILYN HEISER

Some people make a career out of watching television.

Joyce Kroll now can qualify as a professional when it comes to viewing — not programs, but commercials.

A Hoffman Estates housewife and chairman of the Schaumburg Township Committee on Youth, Mrs. Kroll recently spent 11 days watching commercials and airing her reactions for the Leo Burnett Public Opinion Center in Woodfield Mall.

Seventy women spent an hour Monday through Friday for two weeks viewing a total of 14 different commercials, Mrs. Kroll said. The 11th day was spent in group discussion.

"I THOUGHT IT would be fun for an hour a day to watch commercials," Mrs. Kroll said laughing at the suggestion that this was a mild form of torture.

According to Stuart Agres, Leo Burnett staff member who directed the survey, the women's views would not directly affect any commercial presently on the air.

"The purpose was to find out how many times we can show a commercial before we annoy, before it wears out. And do different commercials, like cartoons versus live performers, affect people differently."

Commercials were viewed at the public opinion center in screening rooms, and after each 30-to 60-second spot, the women filled out a questionnaire rating the message. The first six days the women saw the same nine commercials. The last four days, five new commercials were added to the group.

Vegetables, milk, detergent, face soap, deodorant, coffee and chicken — the commercials, some on the air now, some old, advertised items women use regularly in their homes. Two products were ones not marketed yet in the Chicago area, Agres said.

OF ALL THE products advertised, Mrs. Kroll said the only one she was likely to go out and buy was one not yet available in this area, a laundry detergent. What sold her? Honesty, a low keyed pitch, and believability.

"The products that made claims you know can't be lived up to were annoying. No one product can get everything clean a fact this commercial recognized," she said.

Information and encouragement to try a new product were the prime effects Mrs. Kroll attributed to television commercials. "I don't think commercials will make a person use a product if it's not a good product. And if it is a good product, people will use it despite the commercial."

A discussion held the last day was particularly interesting, she said. "I was surprised so many of us thought alike on the commercials." There were 10 women in her subgroup and each was instructed not to discuss the commercials between sessions. Despite wide differences in ages, women seemed to like the same commercials — and hate the same ones, even if for different reasons, she added.

As far as he could tell, Agres said the women reacted to commercials on their individual merits. No general trends were visible, he said.

"WHAT SURPRISED me is the ladies got so involved in the experience. They said, 'It isn't very often people ask me for my opinion on commercials.'"

Mrs. Kroll said she was selected for the study through her membership in the Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates Provisional League of Women Voters.

Agres said the women seemed to have had the idea they would be upset at watching the same commercials daily. Surprisingly, this didn't happen.

"People use commercials more intelligently than usually given credit for. I don't think commercials work on people subtly or through the subconscious," he said.

THE GENERAL consensus of the women was, "we don't like being lied to," Mrs. Kroll said. "We don't like being told a certain face soap alone can make you beautiful; or a deodorant can make the captain of a ship your husband."

"I think women feel they want to know about a product. They're looking for specific information, and not general 'I'm great' claims. Most people realize to have free programming commercials are necessary. But the don't have to be obnoxious or insulting."

"I'd do it again. I hesitated before I said yes, but how many times do you get a chance to tell someone who can do something about it how you feel about commercials."

School district residents to help formulate goals

Schaumburg Township residents will help formulate educational goals for students and teachers in School Dist. 54.

School officials Tuesday will begin planning how the district will meet a requirement of the state that every public school district to develop a written program plan.

The plan, to show goals of the educational system, must be submitted by Jan. 1, 1974, and must include input from community residents as well as district administrators and board.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. in the Helen Keller Junior High School, 820 Boda Rd., Schaumburg.

Donato Ridd, board of education president said, interested citizens are invited to attend the meeting and help the district write a plan of service.

CARL SELTZER, assistant superintendent of curriculum, said the state is requiring districts to submit the plan in order to answer the following questions:

- Where are we?
- Where do we want to be?
- What must be done to get there?
- How will we do it?

Planners OK Motorola plans for headquarters relocation

Motorola, Inc. came one step closer last night to relocating its corporate headquarters in Schaumburg, directly south of its present Communications Division plant at Algonquin and Meacham roads.

The Plans Commission gave its approval to constructing a twelve-story office tower and two-story building joined by indoor walkway. The two-story building will contain the corporate computer center and a cafeteria.

The commission will recommend to the village board Tuesday that Motorola be granted the nine-story or 135-foot height variation needed to construct the tower. Zoning in a manufacturing district allows three-story buildings, 45 feet high.

Additionally, the commission okayed Motorola's request for a 100-foot antenna placed on top of the twelve-story building, if such a transmitter ever proved necessary.

CORPORATE headquarters, with its 200 employees, will be moved to Schaumburg from the O'Hare Office Plaza, in about three years, Walter Scott, Motorola vice president, said.

The sales force for the Communications Division will occupy the building by late 1974 or early 1975, Scott added. Together, about 800 employees will be housed in the new building, totaling 210,000 square feet.

A traffic expert hired by Motorola projected Meacham and Algonquin, widened to four lanes, would be adequate to handle cars through 1980. Projections, he said, were based on a possible 11,000 employees using the facilities. Presently, about 5,200 persons work in the Schaumburg Communications Division.

ROAD IMPROVEMENTS he suggested included turning bays, a new access road off Algonquin along the west side of the existing building, and traffic signals at all entrances to the plant. The traffic lights should be in operation by fall, he said.

Two retention lakes covering a total of about 12 acres are planned. Motorola owns 325 acres in Schaumburg, Scott said the extensive landscaping and campus appearance would be maintained and that Motorola has no plans at present to further use or sell its undeveloped land.

Scott said the policy of staggering the arrival and departure of employees will be maintained to alleviate the traffic situation. Peak hours will continue to be 7-8

• After we have begun, how do we know how well we are doing?

Seltzer said the district has set itself a time schedule for accomplishment of the program plan.

BY THE END of this month the district expects to define its goals, and by the end of July assess its needs. Performance objectives for the educational system should be established by September, and during September and October a plan of evaluation should be developed.

Preparation of the written plan and its final reviews and approval should be done in December and the plan ready for the state in January.

Seltzer said the state is asking each school district to measure its progress toward accomplishing its educational goals and tell the state how this is to be accomplished.

Included in the plan will be explanations of the district's plan and its techniques for determining accomplishment.

The state also wants to know who is involved in preparation of the plan.

Seltzer said noncompliance could result in a cut-off of state aid funds.

Firemen face possible pay cut, lay offs

most immediately an exchange with firefighter Richard Cordova and Michael Lass over the charges against Kalasa and the board's failure to recognize a fire fighter's union. Lass is a staff representative from the International Association of Fire Fighters, AFL-CIO. The firemen have been seeking recognition for Local 2061 of that union for two years.

Cordova asked to have Lass speak for the men in asking for some response to misconduct charges the union members filed against Kalasa.

But the board refused to let Lass speak, saying that privilege is allowed, under its rules, only to residents of the district, taxpayers, employees or attorneys, and Lass met none of those requirements. When Lass asked for a copy of the rules, the board said it was not required to give him one, and refused.

Selko reported he found the charges against Kalasa "without substance or foundation or concerning matters that had been corrected." The board commended Kalasa for his performance, and suggested the firemen "strive to achieve" his "dedication and devotion."

Village to provide residents copies of flood report

In about five weeks, Mount Prospect residents will receive copies of the village's flood control program.

The flood control report outlines projects to be conducted under the $1.8 million program and contains a 41-page section on the "how and why" of flooding in the village and on procedures homeowners can take to floodproof their basements.

The village board Tuesday approved the expenditure of $1,500 to print and distribute the report. The report will contain some device for residents to inform the village board of how they feel the program should be funded. The exact details of the survey have not yet been formulated.

The booklet is to be put together by Monday. Three weeks for printing and one for distribution will be needed before residents receive their own copies. The booklets will be distributed by Boy Scouts, according to Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley.

Trustee Errol F. Richardson was the only one to vote against sending out the booklet. He said "The $4,500 could be better spent funding the (flood control) project." His suggestion was that persons interested in reading the report could do so by borrowing a copy from the public library or the village clerk's office.

THE BOARD ALSO agreed to seek preliminary proposals from at least three consulting engineering firms while board discussions on the program continue.

Those discussions were postponed Tuesday until a special board meeting on July 23. Mayor Robert D. Teichert requested the continuance because several related discussions have been scheduled in the next five weeks. He said he felt the board should have the benefit of these meetings' results before making decisions on the program.

A June 26 meeting will be conducted between the Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights flood control groups in Arlington Heights to work out what the two communities want for a retention basin to be located north of Central Road at Busse Road between the towns. The results of this meeting will then be brought to the Metropolitan Sanitary District for a July 9 meeting downtown.

Both communities would like the MSD to begin work on the basin as soon as possible, while the MSD's priorities do not call for the basin to be built before 1980, at the earliest. Some money from Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights will have to be contributed if the basin is to be built early, because the MSD lacks sufficient funds.

TEICHERT ALSO said the board had not received information from local utility companies on how a utility tax could be started and how much revenue it would generate. A 6 per cent utility tax has been discussed as a means of financing the flood control program.

A second means of financing, a non-referendum bond issue that would increase real estate taxes, may be in jeopardy if proposed Springfield legislation becomes law, Teichert said. Such bills include a proposed property tax freeze for two years and a severe limitation of non-referendum bonding power. Teichert said it would be wise for the board to wait until after the current Illinois General Assembly's session ends in two weeks to see if either proposal becomes law.

The final reason Teichert gave for the delay would be to allow the village's new engineer, Bernard Hemminger, who starts July 1, to acquaint himself with the program.

During the board discussion, Trustee George B. Anderson said illegal downspout connections to the sewer systems cause a large part of the village's flooding problem. He suggested that public works personnel be told to disconnect the illegal connections at no charge to homeowners, although homeowners would have to pay for any supplies needed.

WITH A RAISED VOICE and the touch of his hands, Mount Prospect were a nun and some other persons who evangelist Donald Odon claims to heal the sick through, testified as to his effectiveness. Not everyone in the audience went away satisfied, however.

Faith healer

Circus-tent ministry comes to town

by MARY HOULIHAN

The voices came slowly at first, anxious and hesitant — "Hallelujah, Praise the Lord!"

Salesmen, businessmen, teenagers, they are all a little new to this kind of ministry, this faith healer. But they watch evangelist Donald Odon with expectancy.

A very ordinary-looking man in a blue, summerweight suit, Odon came to the Town Hall at Randolph Shopping Center in Mount Prospect to speak. To speak, and to bring the Lord's power to His people. About 40 came to listen and watch.

Despite their attendance, they are still a little unsure. Testimonials and faith healing are more at home in the South — but this is Mount Prospect, not Mississippi.

BUT BEFORE the spectacle begins, there is the mundane issue of cash. Following a singing session, with hymns about lifting up your hands to the Lord, the song leader takes the microphone in hand.

"We're going to take up a collection now and get it out of the way," he says. "So get your checkbooks out and start writing."

Several large white boxes are passed through the audience. Change and dollar bills are thrown in. Some people just pass the box without throwing anything in.

Finally, Odon begins. "I am here to acquaint you with the power of God," he tells the small audience. "My preaching is not really all that much good. All I do is tell you what happened to me, and I try to heal the sick."

AS THE AUDIENCE settles in, he begins to tell of some of his healing: A Japanese woman, his interpreter at one time, who had been blind in her right eye since birth. "She had tears come periodically out of her right eye," Odon says. "She told me how even on her wedding day, she had tears in her eye."

"While she was interpreting for me, God healed her right eye in front of everybody. What a joy it was. And then, many Japanese suddenly accepted the Lord Jesus," he tells them.

"Glory, glory!" calls out an older man sitting in front of Odon.

Odon begins to get into the main part of the program.

"You can be delivered even tonight," he says. "You may have had some healing before, but you are still under construction. So this short hour will not be in vain. I will pass something on to you to promote you. You will get something plus, if I couldn't give you that I would stop preaching," he says.

THEN, ALMOST as a proof to his words, he calls for a testimonial. An older, Roman Catholic nun from the order of the Daughters of Charity stands up to give witness to her healing.

"Several months ago I came to listen to you preach about the Epistles," she says. When it came time for the healing, she and the other Sisters and I got up to leave. But then you asked for anyone who had arthritis to come up to the front. I felt like a little girl walking up. But I felt you were being guided in what you were doing."

"I wore a steel brace," she says, "because of a degenerative arthritis in my back."

As Odon laid his hands on her to pray, she told the audience, she couldn't hear the exact words of the prayer. "All I could hear was the thumping of bones because they were being shoved into place," she said.

"My brace is packed away now. I have not worn it since that night," she told the people.

The nation

Two midwestern senators called for a further delay of up to 14 months in construction of a pipeline to carry Alaskan oil to U.S. markets.

It will take about $213 billion and an all-out effort to convert to nuclear power to enable the utility industry to best meet the demand for electricity by 1985, the National Petroleum Council said yesterday.

John W. Dean III testified that President Nixon succeeded in stalling a 1972 congressional investigation of the Watergate bugging and requested that tax audits be halted for some friends, a Senate summary of the ousted White House counsel's private testimony revealed.

Skyline's flying physician said the astronauts felt surprisingly good and had no problems working in zero-gravity during the world's longest spaceflight.

The mayors of Cincinnati and San Francisco demanded that the Conference of Mayors that the White House explain why President Nixon is holding up $265 million, already appropriated, to provide summer jobs for youths.

President Nixon's reelection finance committee was fined $3,000 for failing to report the $200,000 campaign contribution from financier Robert Vesco.

The Senate Armed Services unit voted to continue production of the F111 fighter bomber for another year.

The state

Thousands of people swindled out of their life savings when the City Savings Association of Chicago folded in 1964, would get their money back if a bill passed yesterday by the House becomes law. The money would come from the state's general revenue fund.

Police charged Antonio Barrientes with the ax and dagger slaying of a pair of college students in a small Maywood private school.

A bill cutting the state sales tax from 4 cents on the dollar to 3½ cents was being considered in the House.

The world

Former President Juan Peron returned to Argentina after 18 years of exile, but an airport shootout between dissident factions of his followers at a huge welcoming rally, forced diversion of his plane from Buenos Aires to a military air base.

Faith healer brings his ministry to area

Is very quiet. Several people appear to be praying to themselves, heads bowed almost into their laps. They are listening to Odon's every word.

"Perhaps many of you ask why didn't the Lord heal her before?" Odon asks. "Apparently, we are not enough to go around," he explains, referring to the shortage of faith healers.

"But don't try to understand everything. Just believe this," he tells them.

"Here is now the opportunity for Jesus to edify and save you," Odon says. "Together with your faith and my faith in Jesus, we will receive healing in God."

"Who wants to confess Jesus by standing up?" he asks. Without a second's hesitation, 95 per cent of the audience stands.

"Praise God," Odon intones. The people enthusiastically repeat the praise.

Then the healing prayers begin.

Odon asks the people to raise their right hands, if they have any pain. "Just as a test case before the Lord," he explains. Eight hands go up.

"As I pray, expect the Lord to touch you," he says.

ODON SQUEEZES his eyes shut tight and begins the prayer. "I cast these evil powers out in the name of Jesus." His voice rises and becomes more powerful as he reaches the end of the prayer. "Be thou holy. Praise the Lord."

There doesn't appear to be any change in the audience. "God is not a liar," Odon shouts. "Don't be passive. Enter into your healing."

Finally, he asks who has been healed.

A teen-age girl tells him a slight pain is gone. Another tells of a sinus headache that was healed.

Then Odon points to a woman about 40 years old, sitting near the front of the stage. Her arthritic pain is still there, she tells him. He asks her to come to the front of the stage, next to him.

Again he calls on Jesus to cast out the pain. The powerful windup begins as he lays his hand on the woman's head and back. Suddenly, as his voice rises, she faints and falls back.

People stand up to see what has happened. The woman is lying face up on the floor trying to get up.

Odon looks embarrassed. He asks some women from the audience to help the woman up. Then he asks her if the pain is gone. "It's still there," she says. He asks how she felt when she fell back. "I just lost my own balance," she explains.

THE EVANGELIST becomes somewhat irritated. "You must cooperate," he tells her. "Visualize Jesus Christ with arthritis on his body. You must focus your faith in the moment. Why don't you be a bit simple?"

"I'll try," she says softly, feeling embarrassed in front of the audience. "Don't try," he said. "Just be simple."

The ordeal has been an emotional one for the woman and Odon begins to realize it. "Would you like to sit down there and I'll pray for you," he says. "Some difficulty has to be readjusted."

She moves slowly into the chair in front of him.

As the evening progresses, Odon moves from one to another, singling people out for the healing power. Another woman faints, later saying that she knew that God had touched her. She tells Odon her pain has "loosened."

Later, a boy, partially deaf in one ear, claims that Odon has healed him.

"Isn't it wonderful? Praise God," Odon exclaims, his eyes filling with tears. The boy cries with him.

Slowly, he raises the audience up at this emotional level to have them sing and slowly end the meeting.

THIS WRECKAGE was left after a Soo Line R.R. train smashed into the side of a car driven by Margaret Rogers of Park Ridge, killing her Tuesday night. The accident occurred at Morrison Avenue in an unincorporated area near Kensington and River roads. The train was traveling about 40 miles per hour at the time of the crash, according to sheriff's police.

Larwin abandons plans for Tara Village

by LYNN ASINOF

The Larwin Multi-Housing Corp. has decided to abandon plans to build Tara Village, a 1,200-unit apartment complex at the southwest corner of Hintz and Wheeling roads, Wheeling.

Since the project has been abandoned, an agreement between Larwin, School Dist. 23 and developers of Pleasant Run condominiums will also become void. The agreement resolved an ongoing drainage problem at the John Muir School site on Drake Terrace in Prospect Heights.

Allen Weinstein, president of Larwin's midwest division said Monday that the firm was no longer involved with development in Wheeling. "Our corporate officials just felt it was better not to build in the Northwest suburbs of Chicago," he said.

ATTORNEY Byron Delman, representing Larwin, also said he understood that the project has been abandoned. "As it stands right now, I believe their intention is not to develop at present," he said. "With respect to the Wheeling area, the intent is currently not to develop Tara."

Delman said he did not know if Larwin has decided to scrap the project entirely, to postpone development or to sell their position to another development firm. He noted that Larwin does not own the 75 acres proposed for the project.

Edward Grodsky, superintendent of Dist. 23, said he has heard numerous rumors that the Tara Project had been abandoned. He said he is hopeful that the developers of Pleasant Run will consider putting in the proposed drainage system anyway.

ACCORDING TO the original settlement, school district officials agreed not to oppose the development in exchange for a $42,000 donation to the school district and Larwin's promise to accept storm water drainage from Pleasant Run in their retention basin.

Presently, drainage from Pleasant Run flows onto the John Muir School site, resulting in ponding on the school property. School district officials have charged that this ponding is a hazard to the school children.

Developers of Pleasant Run, in turn, charged that school district officials filled in the school property, preventing the natural flow of rain water from the development across the Muir site.

When the settlement was reached in April, developers of Pleasant Run said they would drop a lawsuit against the district which charged them with preventing the natural flow of water. It is not yet known if the suit will be reopened because of Larwin's abandonment of the project.

ORIGINALLY, school district officials opposed Tara Village because of the large number of school-aged children expected to live in the development. The project included 600 two-bedroom, 480 three-bedroom and 120 four-bedroom apartments.

If Larwin has sold its position to another development firm, it is possible that the project as originally presented to Wheeling officials would still be built.

Wheeling Village Mgr. George Passolt said that a firm buying the Larwin project would not have to go through village channels unless they planned major changes in the development. He said, however, he would expect the buyers of the project to contact the village, and said no such contact has yet been made.

Train slams into car, kills woman

A Park Ridge woman was killed Tuesday night when a Soo Line R.R. freight train slammed into her car at a crossing north of Mount Prospect.

Mrs. Margaret Rogers, 62, was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital after the 7 p.m. accident.

The engineer, Robert Acord, of Fond Du Lac, Wis., told sheriff's police he was traveling southbound about 40 miles per hour when he saw a car start to cross the tracks at a private driveway crossing at Morrison Avenue.

Acord said the car paused on the crossing for unknown reasons, and he was unable to stop the train to avoid the collision. The car was knocked from the tracks and was found about 50 feet from the point of impact, police said.

Sheriff's police said Mrs. Rogers was apparently returning home after a visit with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. David Wunsch, 150 Morrison Ave.

The street does not cross the tracks, but the driveway leading to a few homes on the west side crosses them. Morrison Avenue is in an unincorporated area five blocks south of Kensington Road just west of River Road.

THIS 1½-STORY brick house, now on a lot fire officials have purchased for an addition to the Prospect Heights Fire Station, was sold in public auction last night. Volunteer fireman Randall Stephenson, who purchased the home for $10, plans to move the house at 10 Camp McDonald Rd. to a vacant lot and sell it. Fire officials estimate they saved up to $3,000, the cost of demolishing the house and carting it away.

March opts to not resign

Rather than resign as chairman of the village's flood control group to avoid any chance of charges of impropriety, George March has asked that his engineering firm not even be considered for the flood control program.

March, Drainage and Clean Streams Commission chairman, said, "I probably wouldn't be in my, or my firm's or the village's best interest if I were to resign and turn around and do some of the engineering." March is a partner in the Arlington Heights firm of Alstot and March.

Mayor Robert D. Teichert last week issued to March a "friendly request" to resign. March refused, saying, "I want to see the project through, now that we at last have a plan." Teichert said he thought the situation would be unfair to March. "I wanted George to be free to be competitive."

Apart from supplemental storm sewers in the combined sewer area of the village, some $1,788,000 worth of projects are recommended. Based on current Illinois Society of Professional Engineers guidelines, March's firm could lose approximately $103,038 in consulting fees (if the board had chosen his firm for all the flood control projects recommended).

THE SUPPLEMENTAL storm sewers will not be started until the Metropolitan Sanitary District begins construction of its deep tunnel system under Weller Creek. This is estimated to be at least 1980.

Teichert this week said his request for March's resignation was "not a matter of legality as much as propriety."

"It would have been above-board and honest," he said, if March remained chairman and his firm got the consultant's job. "But I'm aware of the natural tendency of those who criticize to look for boogie men. I'm not adverse to doing what I think is right. It was just a matter of accommodation on my part."

Teichert said he understood March's decision. "He's put too much of his own knowledge and life into it (the flood control program)." Teichert met with March Monday to work out the situation.

'Undevelopment Commission' member answers criticism

by TOM VON MALDER

A statement in defense of a newly formed citizens group in Mount Prospect touched off further stormy debate at this week's village board meeting.

Michael H. Minton, 1207 W. Lonnquist Blvd., a founding member of the Concerned Citizens Committee or Undevelopment Commission, described the group as a grassroots movement "primarily concerned with civic commitment and improvement." He said the group was formed May 22 mainly as a means to keep members informed of village government actions and deliberations and secondly, to "work with the village board to approach the problems of the village."

Minton's statement came in response to a memorandum by Mayor Robert D. Teichert, dated June 5, which criticized the new group, stating "their goal is publicity and their format will be constant criticism of the village administration."

TEICHERT FURTHER wrote that because of the timing and the individuals involved, "I consider it (the group) an extension of the past campaign and the establishment of a political base for future elections."

In his remarks to the board, Minton said he feared Teichert's memorandum and subsequent comments would have the effect of discouraging residents from joining the new group.

"Campaign differences for most of us were set aside on April 17 (election day)" Minton said. "This committee could be labeled as an Undevelopment Commission. By this, we hope to keep the advocates of unchecked development off balance with the knowledge that the residents of Mount Prospect are concerned."

The opposition to the growth theme is motivated by concern for the quality of life."

He further said the group opposes "increased land development" with "new and often inappropriate buildings." The group will stand for moderate growth, he added. Minton cited a series of costs that he said multi-family and high-rise developments bring to a community.

IN RESPONSE TO Minton's response, Teichert said what Minton had recited was a series of "platitudes" obtained very easily. Teichert said what really counted was the study that the village commissions, committees and board put in on a development proposal.

Teichert told Minton he should use figures to back his general statements.

Trustee Patrick J. Link was the first to be critical of Minton's statements Tuesday night. He asked if Minton had been involved in the writing of the preamble to petitions against the Colony project, a development to be located at the northwest corner of Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street.

Minton told Link he had been one of a group who worked on the preamble. Link then read the controversial paragraph from the preamble that accused village board members of having "embarrassed, intimidated, harangued or harassed" residents who spoke at public hearings on the Colony project.

LINK ASKED Minton to name which trustees Minton had embarrassed, intimidated, harangued or harassed residents. Link also asked for the times of such incidents and who the residents were.

The preamble was written, Minton said, because of the alleged treatment of Norma Murauskis, 1826 Pheasant Trail, when she addressed the board May 1. However, Minton said he did not want to name specific board members, other than the mayor, without hearing the tape recording of the meeting.

Minton suggested to Link that Link listen to the tape himself. Link, however, persisted in asking Minton for names and dates and each time he asked, Minton refused to give them.

Link said he personally took "strong exception" to any group of residents carrying around petitions with such charges contained in them.

AT ONE POINT, Minton said he felt Link's questioning of him was a case in point of the intimidation the preamble referred to. Minton said he felt a citizen should be able to address the village board without a barrage of questions following.

Trustee Donald B. Furst also criticized the new citizens group because he had received calls from residents who think the group is to watch over "a bunch of crooks" in the village government. Furst said he never harassed Mrs. Murauskis. Minton replied that the new group, despite statements by some members, is not going to function as a watchdog. He accused Furst of trying to get "personal."

Teichert said he agreed with Minton that "this is no longer a campaign. Therefore we have a right to insist that you tell the truth."

He said the statement in the preamble was not true, and he had listened to the tapes of the May 1 meeting. "I'll exercise the right to tell you when you are lying and I expect you to substantiate (what you say)," Teichert told Minton.

Link makes public 'Minton' letters

The April village election was partially dragged over the coals again this week when Mount Prospect Trustee Patrick J. Link made public some correspondence between him and Michael Minton.

The letters made reference to an alleged conversation that took place April 17 at the precinct 16 polling place. Subject of the conversation was alleged payoffs made to Mayor Robert D. Teichert by "various contractors."

Minton, who was defeated by Teichert in the mayoral race, yesterday said Link's action with the letters was an attempt to downgrade Minton's credibility.

The first letter was from Link to Minton, dated May 24. In it Link asked Minton to come forward with information of the alleged payoffs, information Minton allegedly told Link he had April 17.

Minton, in a reply letter dated June 12, denied the statements alleged to him by Link. Then Minton said Link allegedly approached him and "promised to turn over any information . . . of secret meetings with land developers and contractors."

The third letter, to Minton from Link, was delivered verbally at Tuesday's village board meeting. In it, Link denies the statements alleged to him by Minton in Minton's letter.

AFTER THE LETTERS were read into the record of the board meeting, Teichert permitted Minton to answer Link's latest letter. Minton used the time to again deny the statements alleged to him and to further question Link's motives in making the "personal letters" public. He called it a "publicity attempt to discredit me and a group of citizens."

Teichert then stated he had affidavits from residents in which it is stated that Minton allegedly made similar accusations against him in conversations with the residents.

Link told the village board he read the letters to put an end to letters.

Kidnap, robbery suspect's hearing next week

by JOHN MAES

A formal arraignment is expected sometime next week for Roy Stover of Arlington Heights, charged in the March 20 armed robbery of a Des Plaines food store and the kidnapping and sexual assault of a 16-year-old store clerk.

Three separate indictments, including six charges, were returned against Stover, 21, of 782 Haven St., by a Cook County Grand Jury last week.

The first indictment accuses Stover with the abduction and sexual assault of the Des Plaines girl as well as the armed holdup of the Convenient Food Mart, 1920 Mannheim Rd., which netted $35 cash.

A second indictment charges Stover with another Des Plaines food store hold-up; the third names him in the robbery of a Mount Prospect store and the aggravated assault of a store clerk.

No trial date has been set for Stover but spokesmen at the Cook County Circuit Court in Chicago said a date should be assigned to the case shortly after he is arraigned.

STOVER WAS arrested March 20 by Cook County Sheriff's Police outside his home a few hours after police said he robbed the store and abducted the girl.

Stover had allegedly entered the store that night and drew a pistol announcing the holdup after pretending to buy groceries.

Police said he then ordered the girl into the car after two unidentified customers pulled up. The girl was later released in Oak Park where she alerted police.

Police used an auto description and license number to track down Stover. A similar car description linked him to the other Des Plaines food store robbery, police said.

In that holdup, Stover allegedly struck a store clerk with an iced tea jar before taking $100 cash.

THE DAY after his arrest, Stover was charged by the state's attorney's office with sexually assaulting the 16-year-old girl.

Mount Prospect authorities charged Stover with armed robbery and aggravated battery in connection with the March 9 $90 holdup of the Western Fashion Store, 1749 Golf Rd.

Police said he struck an employee there with a pistol.

The woman, Mary Kozel, 140 Morrison Ave., Mount Prospect, was released late in March from Northwest Community Hospital after suffering a fractured skull.

Village to join Buffalo Grove in fire services

by RICH HONACK

Residents of Arlington Heights and Buffalo Grove who live between Checker and Palatine roads are now being served by one fire department — for all practical purposes.

As of 5 p.m. yesterday, the departments from both villages began operating out of the same communication center. They also started serving residents within the designated boundaries as one area without village limits.

This means that if there is a call in the northern section of Arlington Heights, the Buffalo Grove department will respond automatically to back up Arlington's units. If a call comes to the communication center from Buffalo Grove, Arlington Heights will respond with backup units.

The new system is designed to give residents of both fire protection areas better coverage, according to fire chiefs John Hayden of Arlington Heights and Wayne Winter of Buffalo Grove.

THE CHIEFS have been working on the arrangement for several months. "We thought that because of the high cost of fire protection and fire equipment we would use the departments to complement each other," said Hayden.

Winter said, "In essence, what has happened is Buffalo Grove has gained four stations and Arlington one station. We have also saved the villages and residents more than $600,000."

The saving comes from the fact that Arlington Heights has a need for certain Buffalo Grove equipment and vice versa. If the departments did not join service they would have had to eventually buy this equipment at a cost of more than $300,000 each.

According to the chiefs, the new system is also better because of the geographical layout of the two villages between Dundee and Palatine roads.

without Buffalo Grove's permission. Under the new plan, they can respond immediately.

"THE DISPATCHER will have the responsibility as to who to call first. The closest station will always get the initial call," said Winter. "We will be there faster and have more equipment without requesting it."

The chiefs said the only thing they are worried about is residents thinking that they are being short-changed. "This service was done to benefit them, not hurt them," said Hayden.

"We don't want to get involved in village politics or 'this is my territory, stay out' kind of thing. All we want is for the residents of that area to get the best fire protection they can," Hayden added.

Both chiefs also said residents should not be upset when a fire truck or paramedic unit from another village arrives for an emergency. "These men are all trained and residents should be assured they are there to help them," said Winter.

Hayden said the idea for merging the two departments is not a new one. He said the area's mutual aid system is very similar, except for the fact that a department does not respond unless it is requested or there is a general box alarm.

"When we have all the equipment we need and there are no problems, but it's the individual homeowner we are concerned with helping. We can no longer just sit and watch a house burn because it is not in our village or district, and believe it or not, there are some departments like that," said Hayden. "We have to start putting aside our petty jealousies."

THE CHIEFS also said the rest of their villages will not be left unprotected if they are responding to calls outside the village boundaries. "Other departments will still be called to help fill in our weak spots as they do now," said Winter.

The two officials said they would eventually like to see a more regionalized fire service, with maybe four or five departments on a central dispatch. In some cases they foresee even sharing the cost of equipment and stations that would be located in an area that best serves surrounding communities.

"We would still be individual departments but working for a common cause," said Hayden. "With today's boundaries of the different villages, it's got to be done. Why have three fire stations within a mile of each other, when you could have one big one doing the same job? And it would save thousands of dollars."

Even though the new system works from one location, residents should continue to call the same telephone numbers to report an emergency. The telephone systems are tied together and there will be no reason for any changes.

SHINY BLACK Cadillacs all in a row and uniformed drivers such as Chuck Gosch of the Arlington Limousine Service, 2001 S. Arlington Heights Rd., can take you anywhere. The family-owned business, headed by Ray Gosch and his sons Chuck and Ron, has been in operation since 1965.

Owner of Arlington Limousine Service

by BETTY LEE

His son told him he was crazy, but Ray Gosch went ahead and bought a shiny black limousine.

That was back in 1965 when Gosch was considering going into the limousine transportation service, while operating a landscaping and nursery business.

Eight years later and minus the landscaping business, Gosch's one car service has grown into a 14-car enterprise called Arlington Heights Limousine Service. It is operated from his home at 2001 Arlington Heights Rd.

He and his sons, Chuck and Ron, operate a 24-hour service, using dispatch radios in high-polished Cadillac limousines. "I remember he had one customer the first month and two the second month," said Chuck. "I told him he was crazy."

"It's like everything else," Gosch said. "You just work into it."

A customer can use the service to go to the airport, or down to the Loop, for weddings, funerals and any occasion. All the customer need do is call for an appointment at least four hours in advance.

FOR THOSE WHO think limousine service is for the wealthy, don't be surprised if one of their drivers, dressed in a dark blue uniform and a cap, drives you to the airport, gives you door-to-door service and charges you about the same amount you would have paid for a taxi.

But unlike a cab, there's no waiting, and there's the air-conditioned luxury of riding in a plush car.

"We like to keep them clean," said Gosch. "I was up at 6 this morning and washed five cars. With a little bit of dust and rain, they look like the dickens."

The Goschs have a full time mechanic, Fred Binder, to provide maintenance for the cars and for emergency cases, if any of the cars break down while on assignment.

"I drive more than 50,000 miles a year," Chuck said, "so there's a lot of work to be done on the cars just because they're used so much."

ON MONDAY afternoon Chuck had two assignments, one at noon to drive a party to O'Hare Airport, another, to pick up someone at the airport at 12:38 p.m. Ninety per cent of the business is transportation to and from the airport.

"We're prompt," he said. "We have to allow time to get us to the people on (Continued on page 3)

Low-income housing suit postponed to autumn date

A trial date in a year-old lawsuit that charges the Village of Arlington Heights with discrimination in its decision not to rezone 15 acres of land for low and moderate-income housing has been postponed to sometime this fall.

A date of July 9 had been set by U. S. District Court Judge Thomas R. McMillen, but the trial was postponed yesterday on request of the attorney for the Metropolitan Housing Development Corp., which filed the suit a year ago.

No new trial date was set, but a clerk in McMillen's office said the case would not come to trial before the fall. Summer vacations were the reason for the postponement.

MHDC is asking the court to overrule village objections to the construction of 190 townhouses on land immediately east of St. Viator High School, Euclid and Dryden Avenues in Arlington Heights.

THE DEVELOPMENT, called Lincoln Green, would house families of low and moderate incomes.

MHDC, a non-profit development corporation, filed the suit in behalf of three families whose members work in Arlington Heights but reportedly cannot afford housing in the village.

The legal action was taken after the village board turned down a rezoning petition for the development in September, 1971, on grounds that multi-family building on the Viator property would be incompatible with surrounding single-family neighborhoods. This is also expected to be the village's base of defense in the case.

Arlington Heights Village Atty. Jack Siegel, who will represent the village, said court proceedings likely would last "at least a week" once the trial is begun.

SINCE THE suit was filed, two village motions to have the case dismissed have been denied by federal judges.

In seeking a court injunction to bar the village from interfering with the development of Lincoln Green, the suit alleges that village zoning ordinances are "arbitrary, unreasonable, capricious and unconstitutional" as they have been used to block the project.

MHDC attorneys are expected to try to prove the appropriateness of multi-family zoning for the site.

Plans for Lincoln Green were the subject of numerous long and emotion-charged public hearings, culminating in the village board's 6 to 1 decision not to approve the project.

Lincoln Green is the first and only subsidized housing development proposed for Arlington Heights that was carried through to the village board level.

4% teachers pay hike OKd

A new 4 per cent pay hike contract for Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 teachers will be effective for the coming school year.

The school board unanimously accepted the contract at Monday's board meeting. The teachers had approved the contract about a week ago.

Teachers' salaries are figured on a base pay determined by the amount of education a teacher has. Each of the base pay levels was raised four per cent.

The starting salary for a teacher with a bachelor's degree is now $8,369 a year. In addition to the base pay raises, teachers also receive an additional four per cent annual raise for each year of service in the district.

School officials have estimated the total cost of salaries at $5.9 million.

Other new provisions in the contract include:

- Allowing women to use accumulated, paid sick leave for maternity leave. In the past, the district only permitted unpaid maternity leave.
- Improved life insurance policy based on a teacher's salary.
- Longevity payments after 20 and 25 years service.
- Simplified grievance procedures.
